Bloody Civil War Battle.
 In 1862, on the 31st day of May, the battle of Fair Oaks, Va., took place. It was a small engagement, but in proportion to the number of men engaged was one of the most sanguinary of the Civil war. An advance guard of the Army of the Potomac, numbering 10,000 men, was attacked by a force of about 15,000 Confederates a few miles east of Richmond. The battle lasted a day and a half and resulted in a technical victory for the northern soldiers. Each side lost more than 7,000 men in killed, wounded and missing.

TITLED AMERICANS TO VISIT THE U. S.

Lady Decies, who was Vivian, daughter of George Gould, pictured on the left, was active in Red Cross work on the Rumanian front during the war and later became vice president of the American Red Cross Care Committee. Princess Antoinette Albert Radziwill, who was Miss Dorothy Deacon of Boston, was forced to flee from the historic residence at Niewiesy in Poland during the war. She was afterward engaged in war work in England.

USE FOR LUMINOUS PAINT

Material Found Almost Invaluable in War Might Also Be Well Employed in Peace.

Here is a wartime application of luminous paint that should be useful in summer camps, on the hikes of boy scouts, in penitence maneuvers of citizen soldiers, in marking the landing places of aircraft, etc.

The British army had disks or buttons two or three inches in diameter, coated with luminous paint and having a sharp spike on the under side. These were stuck upon the sides of trenches, buildings, fences, etc., or were swung by hand to give signals in the well-known code where bright lights were dangerous or where silence was golden.

The luminous disks were visible from 30 to 60 feet, so they formed valuable landmarks. Luminous ribbon also was used for marking trails through the woods, and luminous patches were attached to the backs of stretcher bearers to prevent them from being fired upon by their own troops. The Scientific American suggests that the names and numbers of city streets might well be marked with this luminous paint.

The Fanciulla d'Anzio.

One of the gifts that President Wilson received in Italy was a silver model of the statue known as the Fanciulla d'Anzio, presented to him by the Roman municipality. The original is a Greek statue, discovered not long ago at the villa of Nero, in the seaport town of Anzio, near Rome, and purchased by the Italian government for 45,000 lire. Admirers of art and students of archeology had traveled from all over Europe to see it, and the youthful draped figure, carrying a platter from which the object it long ago held had been broken, was named the Maid of Anzio. Then somebody noticed that the long robe was lifted a little, as if to avoid tripping over it, that the biceps muscle of the bare arm was more boyish than girlish, and so on, until modern judgment has decided that the title Fanciulla d'Anzio is a misnomer, and that the unknown sculptor was really modeling the figure of a handsome youth performing some service in an ancient temple.

Bran Muffins.

Roger W. Babson of the department of labor said at a dinner in Washington:

"Speaking of labor, it has been a tough job to eat some of the health foods that were turned out during the war."

"A young lady said to a young man at a Washington dance:

"Are you the same young man who ate so many of my bran muffins at the Red Cross last fall?"

"No," he answered, "and what's more, the doctor says I never will be."

The Sign on the Church.

Many a pedestrian and motorist looked, observed and smiled Wednesday night as he passed a church on Clinton hill. Obvious and elaborate preparations for a wedding were under way. Coaches and tourist wagons were bustling. The unmistakable canopy was being erected from sidewalk to door. And in big letters on the front of the church was blazoned the minister's subject for an approaching service: "This Is the Life."—Newark News.

Movable.

"Where is Mr. Flubdub lunching today?"

"Well, he may be at the next corner or he may be a couple of blocks down the street."

"I thought his habits were very regular. Can't you tell me where he is lunching?"

"Not precisely. He lunches at a banana cart, but it moves around."—Louisville Courier-Journal.
