F. H. Mills, who went to Medford a few days ago in the interest of the county court, returned last evening.

A. C. Bunnell, who has a ranch on the Merrill Road, was in town yesterday, transacting business with the local merchants.

Dale Soule, little son of Mrs. Geo. Stratton, is just recovering from an attack of erysipelas from which he has been suffering recently.

H. R. Reynolds arrived here last night for a brief visit. His many friends will be glad to learn that he is greatly improved in health.

Jack Wooden, who has been working as foreman in Kesterson's sawmill during the summer passed through the city today on his way to his home at Merrill.

Reverend Rossman, pastor of the Lutheran Church of this city, with his bride, are spending a few days at the home of Mr. and Mrs. V. Carstensen, on the Keno Road, near the city.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Koppen and baby left this morning for a visit to their former home in Saginaw, Mich., and a tour of other parts of the East. They will return about January 1st.

Miss Helen Cowgill, assistant leader in Industrial Club Work, is in Klamath Falls, for the purpose of attending the fair at Kilgore Grove, in the interest of the exhibits of the boys and girls of the county who have participated in the club work.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Smith, who have been in Klamath on matters in connection with the freight department of the Southern Pacific Railroad, of which Mr. Smith is an official, left this morning for southern points. Their son Robert Smith, was here at the same time is returning to his home in Portland where he is engaged in the practice of law.

Mrs. Sallie Hopper, with her son Austin and his wife, were shopping in the county seat yesterday. Austin Hopper recently purchased considerable acreage on the Klamath River, adjoining the ranch of his parents, and is making considerable progress clearing same and getting the land ready for cultivation.

Don Bowen of Yreka, who has been in the city for a few days visiting with relatives, left yesterday for Montague, California.

At the Theatres

Magnetic, beautiful and charming as ever is Madge Kennedy in her newest Goldwyn Picture, "Day Dreams," written for her by Cosmo Hamilton. The star of "The Kingdom of Youth" and "A Perfect Lady," productions that have enthralled picture enthusiasts in every part of the country, has given even more of her wondrous self and her unerring sense of comedy in the picturization of the brilliant Cosmo Hamilton story.

Madge Kennedy's joyous mood is given full expression in "Day Dreams." Never has the delightful artist, with whom success has become a habit, been seen in a more lovable role than as Primrose. It held an appeal greater than any character she had previously been asked to portray and the enthusiasm with which she entered work on the production prompted Goldwyn to announce that "Day Dreams" is certain to be the most acclaimed of all Madge Kennedy's productions.

That it will be none of her world of admirers will deny, Madge Kennedy has a store of surprises in "Day Dreams" that are certain to delight the most exacting photoplay adherent when Goldwyn presents this brilliant comedy drama at the Star Theatre beginning tonight.

"Her Inspiration," which is the next picture in which May Allison will be seen at the Liberty Theatre, tonight, deals with an old and ever loved subject in a delightfully new and original way.

This Metro play will transport the beholder into the heart of the Kentucky hills—right into a guarded village of the moonshiners. Here Kate—a fascinating young barefoot beauty—meets Harold Montague, a play right in search of the originals of his plot. A romance in the beautiful surroundings of the wild country free from any city conventions—is enviable but—she is a barefoot girl and he a man high in his profession.

Present plans are that the High School will close all day Friday so that the pupils may have an opportunity to attend the county fair.

Whether or not the grade schools will also close in the city, is still in doubt as there seems to be a difference of opinion among the members of the school board as to whether or not the time can be spared from the regular school studies.

WATERMELON A LA FILIPINO Well-Meant Effort of Native Chef Spoiled Surprise American Army Officer Had Planned.

The Filipinos, it seems, have more than one way of serving a watermelon. The melons grown in the far eastern archipelago are small in size and inferior in flavor. Lieutenant Smith, stationed in one of the towns of northern Luzon, hankered for the juicy succulence of a melon from his own sunny southland. So his family in Tennessee carefully crated a choice watermelon and shipped it to him by express. It cost him a good many pesos, but no matter. It was a beauty and arrived in perfect condition.

He instructed the cook to prepare a good dinner that very day; the splendid melon was to be served as a crowning glory. The provincial treasurer, the school teacher and the few Americans in the town were invited to partake of a treat that was to be a surprise to them.

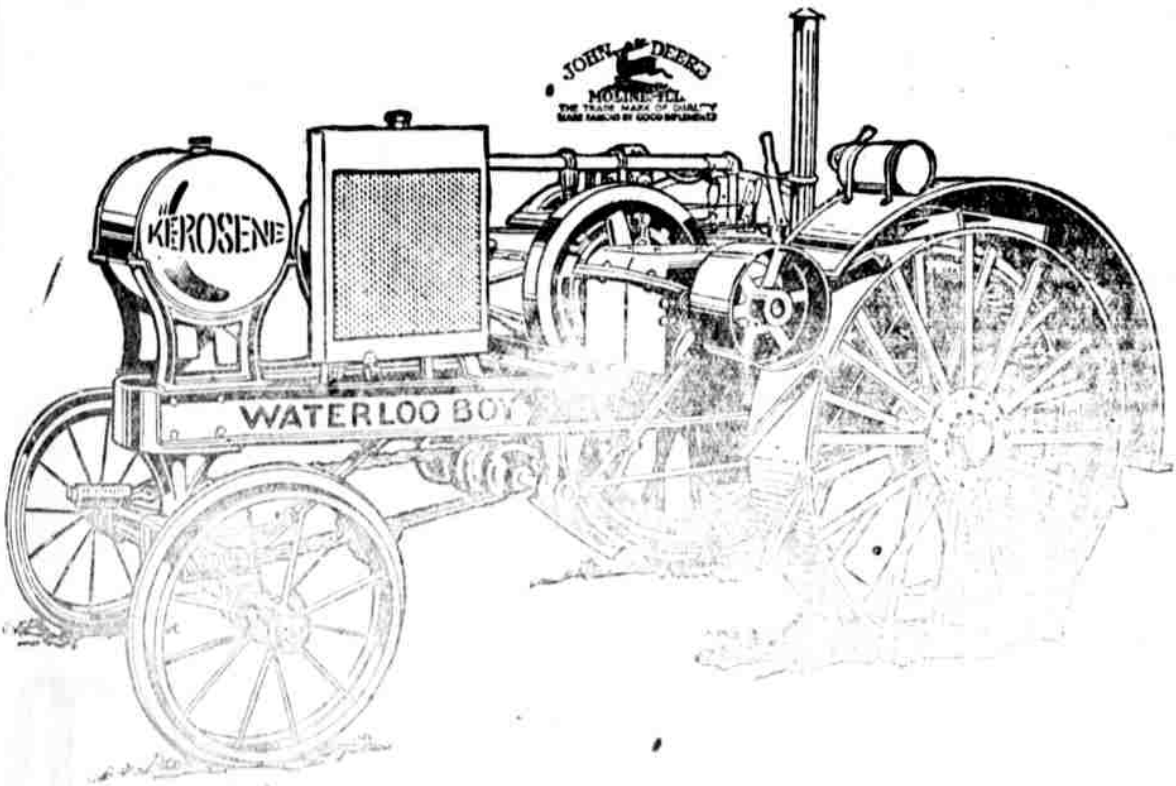

The dinner went forward successfully; but there was much curiosity concerning the surprise that the host had promised his guests, and all eyes were turned frequently toward the door through which it was expected to appear. At last it came. The cook entered, bearing aloft an immense platter, and there came from the company a chorus of "Ahs!" The platter was placed on the table under a halo, no, a cloud of—steam. The melon was bedded, thoroughly bedded.

The quick rising of the host to his feet with the carving knife in his hand convinced the cook that he had better make the quickest exit possible, which was through the window, and involved a leap of ten feet to the ground. Reports from the second balcony on the road leading north were that he was still running when he passed through. Lieutenant Smith has not been able to stifle about that watermelon yet.—New York Herald.
