One Frenchman's Sacrifice.
Thirteen sons dead, that represents part of the war's cost to a French farmer who lived at Reulinghe, near Ypres—surely a record. He had 38 children, and 20 of his 22 sons fought on the various fronts. In 1917 the widow of one of the sons was killed by a German shell at Dunkirk. The farmer himself and one of his daughters met a tragic end. In October, 1914, they went to Lille to take part in celebrating the hundredth birthday of a relative. They were met on their return by a German patrol and were shot.

Making Mother-of-Pearl.
The secret of another German key industry has been discovered, the manufacture of artificial mother-of-pearl. J. W. H. Dew, a fellow of the British Royal Society of Arts, found the process after much patient experimenting. Doctor Dew was engaged during the whole period of the war in reconstructing, step by step, the method of manufacture. Artificial mother-of-pearl is used for making guney buttons, dress trimmings and many other articles. Before the war most of it came from Germany.
