REFUSED HAND, GETS FORTUNE

LONDON, Sept. 23. (By The Associated Press.)—John Burns' many friends have been almost as much surprised as gratified that Andrew Carnegie should have left him 1,000 pounds a year, for Burns once refused to shake hands with Mr. Carnegie. Moreover Burns was very proud of having done so and fond of telling about it. It happened in the precincts of the House of Commons in the days before "Honest John" had accepted the responsibilities of a ministerial office and was still an untamed Socialist.

Mr. Carnegie was being shown through the House of Commons by some distinguished English friends. In the lobby John Burns was encountered and Carnegie's attention was directed to him. As Burns used to tell the story of their meeting Carnegie stepped up to him smiling and with outstretched hand and said, "Andrew Carnegie offers his hand to John Burns." To which Burns replied, "John Burns refuses to take the hand of Andrew Carnegie" and turned his back on the multi-millionaire.

Burns had said many violent things against capitalists. There is no doubt that Carnegie had a sincere admiration for Burns as a self-educated and self-made man. And possibly in later years Burns changed his opinions concerning Andrew Carnegie.

RESERVATION IS BIG ASSET FOR KLAMATH

Indians are engaged: 150 in livestock business, two in logging operations and one each in the hotel business, restaurant business, wholesale meat and butcher business, garage owner, and two in real estate and insurance.

"There are in the neighborhood of 1,100 Indians on the reservation whose estimated worth is $30,000 ing of it would amount substantially to the following: Value of timber $33,000,000, logging $44,000,000, milling operations $55,000,000, transportation and labor $55,000,000, total $187,000,000.

Klamath Indians Progressive

"About 100 of the Klamath Indians have been declared competent to manage their own affairs and the Klamath Indians as a whole are declared the most progressive and intelligent in the west. They are industrious and live in modern homes and are keeping step with the onward march of civilization. Some of them engaged in the livestock business have an income of from $10,000 to $15,000 per annum.

"The Indians are now engaged in a fight to secure their pro rata partition of their estate, share and share alike, and should they be successful it would mean the making available of the Klamath forests, which would necessitate the building of more railroads to make available some 20,000,000,000 feet of timber contiguous to the reservation. This would contribute an additional $340,000,000 to Klamath's industrial activities and prosperity.

Justice Is Wanted

"I want to make a plea to our guests for their assistance either in opening up this great reservation or for the distribution of the tribal assets per capita, to allow this people to take their place in our strata of civilization, become citizens and taxpayers and give them a chance to conduct their own affairs, have their own schools, their own directors, hire their own teachers and take up the burden of the white man to its fullest extent. I believe this is the true and feasible way in which they can advance and learn how to become more valuable citizens.

"In conclusion, let me say that the Klamath Indians sent their sons 'over there' when the call came and bought thousands of dollars of bonds and war savings stamps, in addition to furnishing quantities of beef to help sustain our fighting men and their nation, thus proving their patriotism.

"You know there are lots of people who think the great war has been fought in vain, because Ireland has not received self-government. That is just the way we feel about the Klamath Indians here."
