DOGS STAND WATCH

OVER MASTER'S BODY

CANYONVILLE, Ore., Nov. 1.—Charles Cantillea, who was lost in the mountains recently while hunting, was found dead yesterday. His three faithful dogs guarded their master's body and searchers approached with great difficulty as the dogs tried to keep them off.

The Basis of Our Better Service Is CORRECT FIT

After all, no last or combination of lasts will make an ill-fitted shoe comfortable. And most people can wear any style they desire if their shoe man knows how to fit them.
That's where our service wins friends. We know how, and do really fit every person who buys here.
Speaking of lasts, we have some new ones. Be sure to see them before you buy.

Lives in Old "Pillbox."
A Belgian farmer, who has returned to his shell-shattered fields near Poelcapelle, has solved his own particular housing problem by converting an undamaged "pillbox" into a temporary home for himself and family. "Pillbox" was always an unfortunate and misleading name for concrete forts. Nearly all of them were rectangular and contained four or more large rooms. Very little work would be required to turn them into comfortable and even lasting homes. Some near Boesinghe are already being fitted up as cafes. In anticipation of tourist parties which will throng the battlefields as soon as passports and travel restrictions will be relaxed.

HAS WON PLACE OF HONOR

Salvation Army's Work for Fifty-Four Years Recognized as Worthy of the Highest Praise.

Except for the war the Salvation Army would have celebrated its fiftieth birthday four years ago, but there could hardly have been a better reminder of what the army had done and become in a half century than the recent award of the Victoria Cross to three Salvation Army soldiers for their service in France. Fifty-four years ago things were very different; the first appearances of the salvationists aroused opposition, rowdies tried to break up the meetings, and on at least one occasion members of the future army were arrested in England as "disturbers of the peace." Originally simply an attempt to make converts by outdoor preaching, the movement which William Booth started in July, 1865, was put on a military basis and became the Salvation Army in 1878, since which time it has grown from 75 corps in England to about 9,000 corps and outposts in more than 60 countries. The army was officially recognized by King Edward VII when he received the founder at Buckingham palace in 1904; a different yet remarkable "official recognition" occurred quite recently when a tableau honoring the Salvation Army was made the climax of the current "Ziegfeld Follies" on Broadway.

SUFFERED FOR OTHER'S SIN

Pathetic Story Told as an Example of the Peril That Lies in Inefficiency.

A. R. Hawley, president of the Aero club, told in New York the other day an inefficiency story.
"Beware the inefficient man," he said, "for if you have dealings with him it is you, not he, that will suffer from his inefficiency."

"A foreigner in outlandish garb claiming to be an Armenian came here to solicit funds last year for his compatriots. It happened that another Armenian was arrested at the time, and the first chap was asked to go to court and act as his interpreter.

"Well, he reluctantly consented to act, though the truth was that he knew no Armenian whatever. Anyhow he stalked into the courtroom, listened in grave silence to the prisoner's passionate protestations of innocence, and then turned to the judge and said with a low bow:
"Your honor, my compatriot has confessed all. He begs you, however, to be lenient for suffering Armenia's sake."

"The judge thanked the interpreter warmly for his services, and then sentenced the innocent prisoner to five years' hard labor."

London Now Less Noisy.
Middle-aged Londoners who went to and fro in the capital in the sixties and seventies merely smile when we ask if London could possibly be noisier than it is at the present day.
For they say it was a far noisier place then, when nearly all the main streets were granite paved and all the wheels of the vehicles iron bound. There was a continuous roar then to which the present day sound is a mere whisper.

One such Londoner says he often heard in the old days the roar of London's traffic from as far away a spot as the Crystal Palace parade. The sound was like that of continual very distant thunder. He has many times in recent years listened for the sound from the same spot, but has never heard it.—London Chronicle.

Conna Doyle's "Familiar."
Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's "familiar" proved of very practical assistance to him the other day.

The creator of "Sherlock Holmes" walked into his study, and after some indecision drifted over to the wastepaper basket, plunged his arm into the litter, and—extracted a valuable war office document relating to the history of the war! It had blown from the table into the basket.
"I've never done such a thing before," said Sir Arthur, in narrating the circumstances, and the unusual course of action which he followed with such good results he attributes wholly to the promptings of his "familiar."—London Chronicle.

Star Tuberculosis Patient.
James, age seven, is a patient at Sunnyside and came into the city for tonsillotomy. While in one of the hospitals overnight James could not sleep because he missed his sleeping porch, so he called the nurse and pleaded his case (for air).
The weather was zero and the nurse explained as much to James and thinking she had satisfied his mind she left him, but no sooner had she gone than James became restless for his old haunts and called her. Again she refused to open the window and James, who is a "star case taker," proved his mettle; he threw his shoes through the window pane.—Indianapolis News.

Chinatown Hides Joss.
The transforming of Chinatown that has been in progress for a decade has finally thrust its Americanizing influences into the Chinese temple in Mott street with the result that the joss and lesser idols have been relegated to a dusty closet. For years the joss was one of the attractions of Chinatown and every well-conducted party was led before the idol that occupied a prominent position in the council hall of the temple.—New York Times.

WOMAN CAN'T RESIST RESISTING FURS

Women can't resist these furs—but they—the furs—are fashioned and built to resist winter breezes—therefore opposites come together. At the top a cape of mole combines both fashion and warmth within its folds; second from the top is a neckpiece of Canadian martin suitable for all occasions. Third from the top is the popular dark natural blue fox made into a scarf that most all women admit to be the most practical piece of fur sets. At the bottom—a bit of dress up fineness, an ermine neckpiece that simply takes one's breath away and is a real joy.

Conquered Desert Sand.

The British adopted a giant "snowshoe" to conquer the sands of the Egyptian desert, according to Maj. John Bain of the British army, who served in the near East. The scheme, which was based on the same theory that caused the Indian to adopt the snowshoe, was discovered while the army was marching to Palestine. The fine sands impeded both the infantry and horses, so that a day's march never resulted in much more than a two or three mile advance.
"Finally some inventive genius tried laying rather close-meshed chicken wire on the sands," said Major Bain. "The Tommies were thus given something that didn't yield so readily as the soft sands, and the horses got a better footing. Immediately we found that much greater progress was made, and our advances soon amounted to nine and ten miles a day."

CAMERA MEN PICTURE NEWS EVENTS OF THE DAY

Strikes, flood and waste are the high spots of news events for the week. The flood picture is an exclusive photo of the terrible havoc wrought at Corpus Christi, Texas, when the hurricane lashed gulf waters virtually submerged the town, resulting in heavy loss of life. Galveston, Brownsville and many other towns also suffered immense losses. The strike picture is from Gary, Ind., where steel mill workers by the thousands are out on strike. Both steel worker leaders and steel mill owners say this will be a blow to the British. The "waste" picture shows thousands of automobiles owned by the government rotting and rusting out in storage at Camp Holabird, where they have been ever since the armistice was signed. The standard makes are a standard Congressman C. F. Reavis of St. Paul is trying to get some steel in distributing them to the owners.
