WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 8.—Deportation of all aliens engaged in "Red" activities has been determined on by the Department of Justice, Attorney General Palmer announced today.

Details of a widespread cleanup of radicals show over 200 agitators of various sorts arrested in 18 of the country's principal cities last night. Palmer has asked the Department of Labor to deport all of them.

Included among the material captured were syndicalist literature, articles used in making bombs, complete counterfeiting plant, and a large supply of counterfeit notes. There were thousands upon thousands of pieces of inflammatory literature.

RED CROSS LIST NOW HAS 1300

A total enrollment of 1308 names is reported for the third Red Cross roll call by Chairman George Walton. Scattering subscriptions in the city precincts and 48 from the Chelsea box factory made a total of 84 yesterday.

Algonia precinct raised 97 members in an energetic campaign and will still furnish more, perhaps a score.

While reports are slow in coming in from the industrial district and outside county precincts, indications are that the active canvass under way will swell the total greatly when the reports are received.

Tuesday, November 11, is the last day of the campaign. Solicitation will close on that day.

BAZAAR PLANNED

FACTORY CLOSED BY CAR SHORTAGE

On account of car shortage the Ewauna box factory closed down at noon yesterday, but expects to resume operations Monday morning, when it will have some empties.

The local office of the Southern Pacific said today that they expected to have some cars in by Monday. The shortage is not local but due to the general lack of cars, which has been felt throughout the country for several months. It was said that sufficient relief seems in sight to take care of local shipping next week.

The Ewauna factory's lack of shipping facilities caused a pileup of stock in factory and warehouses until it became impossible to continue work until some of the congestion is relieved.

COURT HOUSE SUIT APPROACHES TRIAL

What will probably be the last pleading in the famous court house litigation was filed in the circuit court this morning, when the attorneys for J. M. Dougan & Company served the reply to the answer of the county. The county refused to amend its answer, so the reply places the case at issue and ready for trial, which proceeding will take place about the 20th of this month.

MANY MOVIES AMUSE BRAZIL

RIO GRANDE, DO SUL, Brazil, Oct. 10.—(Correspondence The Associated Press).—An American visiting small towns in Brazil can easily gratify his desire for home scenery. Whatever the place, large or small, he is sure to find on the main street at least one moving picture theater and never fails to see an American production—in fact, seldom anything else.

The Associated Press correspondent had occasion to make a trip on a Brazilian coastwise steamer which made stops at the ports of Parana-gua, San Francisco do Sul, Florianopolis and Rio Grande, the latter being the largest, with about 14,000 inhabitants. In these typical towns, as in the smaller communities of the United States, the moving picture seems to be the chief source of the evening entertainment.

Adorning the foyers of the theaters are always to be seen posters and photographs of well-known American moving picture stars, sent from the United States with the film and with the captions still in English. These are usually supplemented, however, by a brilliant poster done in hand by a local artist, with Portuguese text, emphasizing the thrilling features of the production.

The North American visitor may discover that he has seen the film at home two or three years ago, but even so, he will find something new in the manner in which a film is presented in Brazil. Here, instead of a continuous picture, the film is cut at critical junctures of the plot and there follows a flash on the screen of—"dos minutos de intervalo."

The lights go up and thus for an interval of two minutes the audience is held in suspense wondering what will happen next.

Always the theatres are filled to capacity and the Brazilians discuss the merits of American actors and actresses of the screen as familiarly as any moving picture enthusiast in the United States. The comedians are intensely popular and there is one, distinguished for being extraordinarily fat, to whom the Brazilians have given the name of "Chico-Bois," meaning "Little Bull."

The advent of a film showing "Chico-Bois" combined with that of a Spanish ventriloquist was made the occasion of a gala night at the moving picture theater in the little town of Parana-gua.

Much of the family washing in Japan is done by getting into a moving boat and letting the sheets, shirts, etc., trail astern on a long rope.

SUDDEN DEATH SEVERE SHOCK TO COMMUNITY

Stricken suddenly as he apparently was engaged in writing at the public desk in the lobby of the post-office last evening, shortly after 7 o'clock, L. F. Willits, banker, capitalist and former county judge, sank to the floor and expired before help could reach him. The suddenness of his passing cast a gloom over the entire community in which, he has been an active leader in business and social affairs for more than 25 years.

The postoffice lobby and corridor was empty, but a passerby on the sidewalk saw Judge Willits fall and rushed in. One of the employees in the postoffice heard the fall and also came quickly. A crowd collected and medical aid was summoned. While waiting for the arrival of the physician, Dr. A. A. Soule, men among the crowd tried by artificial respiratory measures to revive the victim, but without avail. When the doctor arrived he found the heart movement absolutely checked and believed that death was instantaneous, probably caused from a lesion of the heart.

The impress of the dead man's life upon the community in thought and action is too deep to be reckoned in a brief sketch. Since his arrival in Klamath Falls 23 years ago he has been one of the foremost builders of the community.

L. F. Willits was born in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, February 27, 1850. He was educated in Cornell college and came to Oregon in 1876. In the latter part of 1878 he was married at Ashland to Miss Alice Alford, the widow who survives him. Their married life was congenial and pleasant. No children were ever born to bless the union and the removal in such unexpected fashion of her lifelong companion and stay has left the survivor dazed and nearly prostrated under the force of the blow.

In 1892 Mr. and Mrs. Willits moved to Klamath county, where the former was sub-agent of the federal Indian service at the Yainax agency. His duties included the supervision of the government school at Yainax, in which both he and his wife taught.

In 1896 they moved to this city, where Mr. Willits established a general mercantile business on the spot where the Willits building now stands. Within a few years he was elected county judge, holding the office four years. Step by step he mounted in the business life of the community and, although retired from active business pursuits for several years, to the last, as vice-president of the First National bank, owner of a number of pieces of country realty and the Willits building in this city, he was engaged in the management of large financial affairs.

He was a member of the Masonic fraternity and had taken numerous degrees and held all the chairs in the local lodge of the order and was identified with the several branches of the Masonic work and with the women's organization, the Order of the Eastern Star.

Only yesterday the decedent attended the funeral services of his old friend, Mrs. O. C. Applegate, paying a last tribute of respect to her memory. There was apparently little thought on the part of anyone who knew him that he was so soon to intimate friends of pains in his chest that troubled him, he appeared as usual on the street, and acquaintances saw no indications of physical ailment.

Judge Willits is survived by four brothers and a sister: Perry, of Alledo, Iowa; William, of Persist, Jackson county, Oregon; J. Q., Cottage Grove, and B. R., of Portland, Ore. The sister, Mrs. J. H. Vannender, lives in the east. Mrs. Will Norris of Bly and Mrs. Frank Ira White of Portland are nieces.

The brothers from the northern part of the state have been summoned and funeral arrangements will be made on their arrival.

COMMITTEE RECOMMENDS LABOR BOARD

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 8.—Characterizing all strikes as "industrial barbarism" and declaring that "there is no place in this country for industrial or labor despotism," the Senate committee, which investigated the steel strike, today presented its report.

The committee's main conclusion is expressed in the statement that "the public has a right to demand that capital shall not abrogate to itself the right to determine in its own way these industrial questions, and the same as to labor, and the duty is upon Congress to provide some way of adjusting the difficulties as a permanent preventative of strikes," which the committee conceded "are apparently the only way for labor to secure even its just demands if the employers refuse to grant them."

It is recommended that Congress authorize the establishment of some such medium agency with well-defined powers, such as were possessed by the recently dissolved war labor board.

FINED $15 EACH

ONCE RESIDENT DEAD IN EAST

After an illness of more than a month Mrs. D. B. Worthington, wife of the proprietor of the Beloit News of Beloit, Wisconsin, died in that city November 1. Mr. and Mrs. Worthington resided in Klamath Falls immediately after their marriage. Mr. Worthington was the publisher of the Klamath Falls Express. Many persons here will receive the news of her death with sympathy. The Beloit News in regards to the life of the decedent says:

The death of Mrs. Worthington comes as a great shock to her family and many intimate friends. She had woven herself into the hearts of all with whom she came in contact. She was gracious and always thoughtful of the interests of others. She breathed kindness and had won the love and admiration of the community in which she had lived more than twenty years. Personally she was beautiful, and so was her character. Her ideals were high and she never forgot them. She possessed an artistic temperament, a love for the beautiful, and she expressed it not only in her home but wherever opportunity offered. Hers was a deeply spiritual nature and her religion practical. She was a member of St. Paul's Episcopal church.

Myrtle Worthington would have been 45 years old tomorrow. She was born in Yreka, California. Her father was a distinguished jurist of Southern extraction, and her mother a splendid type of the New England woman. They were California pioneers. Mrs. Worthington was the only daughter in the family and was given many cultural advantages. She was a graduate of Irving Institute, a noted school for young ladies in San Francisco. Mr. Worthington met her when he was conducting a newspaper in southern Oregon, and they were married at her home in Yreka, January 2, 1898. She survived by her husband and two sons, Edwin, age 19, and Dean, age 13. She also has two brothers, William B. Shearer, a state senator of California, and Allen B. Shearer, a civil engineer of San Francisco, in the employ of the Southern Pacific railway.

SPECIAL ELECTION VOTES INCREASE

The special election to increase the school budget for the coming year, held yesterday afternoon at the Central school, resulted in the proposed increase carrying by unanimous vote. There was a light vote cast. Estimated expenditures for the coming year are $48,000, of which $23,000 must be raised by special tax. The balance comes from the state and county apportionment for school purposes.

WILL OBSERVE 'BLOUSE WEEK'

Next week is "Blouse Week" throughout the United States, and, in line with the progressive spirit that controls the business men of this city, the dry goods merchants of Klamath Falls are going to be a part of the movement. With that end in view, they have made heavy purchases of blouses and all of them will have interesting stories to tell the readers of The Herald next week. In discussing this movement, the National Advertiser has this to say:

"Fully 20,000 retail merchants throughout the United States will participate in what is designated as 'Blouse Week,' which will run from November 10 to 15, inclusive, and hundreds of pledges are being received daily at the headquarters of the United Waist League of America in New York City from dealers who will do their utmost to make the event a success. In practically every instance, according to a statement issued by the executive director of the association, the retailers show a keen interest in the movement and demonstrate their ability to visualize the importance of making 'Blouse Week' an institution in the waist industry of the United States.

"Prizes will be awarded for the most attractive show window displays made by retailers during the week. The prizes will be awarded through a board of judges, who will pass on photographs sent in by dealers in all parts of the country.

"In order to stimulate interest in the movement, waist manufacturers of New York and other cities belonging to the United Waist League of America are abandoning the usual 'Yours very truly' ending to commercial letters and are substituting 'Yours for National Blouse Week, November 10 to 15.' The acceptance of this suggestion will doubtless be of considerable aid to the project. It is confidently expected that 'Blouse Week' will prove an event that will be remembered by the entire industry."

WITHDRAW COAL ORDER MANDATE OF THE COURT

Hearing on Injunction Petition Results in Drastic Order Against Mine Workers—Given to November 11 to Call Off Strike

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 8.—The United Mine workers of America were ordered today to withdraw the strike order under which 400,000 miners quit work November 1. The mandate was issued by Federal Judge A. B. Anderson after a hearing in which the union's attorneys fought vainly for the chance to present an argument on the right to strike.

The mine workers at the beginning of the hearing asked for a postponement for a week or ten days in the hope that in the meantime the strike might be settled.

The union was given until November 11 at 6 o'clock to issue a cancellation of the strike order. Union attorneys announced that the principal officials of the Mine workers union proposed to obey the court's order.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 8.—The production of coal last Saturday, the first day of the coal strike, is estimated by the United States Geological Survey, was 200,000 tons, compared with the average normal daily output of 2,000,000.

O. A. C. TO HELP RESEARCH WORK

OREGON AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE, Corvallis, Nov. 8.—Scientists of the college are called upon to assist in a nation-wide movement started by the National Research council, Washington, D. C., toward putting scientific research on a peace-time basis.

Dr. W. F. Durant, professor of mechanical engineering at Stanford university, conferred with leading men in science at the college telling them of the plans of the council and urging their co-operation. He spoke in high praise of the scientific work O. A. C. is doing.

"I had heard much about this institution and the results accomplished," he said, "but I was agreeably surprised to note the amount of equipment and other facilities for carrying on the work."

Doctor Durant is visiting the Pacific Coast colleges and universities in behalf of the council to explain its character and aims and to learn of conditions relating to scientific research in these institutions that the council may know of possible opportunities for effective work in research work. He represented the National Research council in Paris during the war as scientific attaché to the American embassy. Scientific work was directed to winning the war while the war was in progress, Doctor Durant pointed out in speaking before the college scientists. "Only part of this work is available for peace pursuits.

"We have lost time which we should make up," declared Doctor Durant. "There is a relative shortage of new scientific ideas. We must go on adding to our stock in trade or else we will die. Those who are contributing largely to the new ideas are for the most part students in college. If a sufficiently strong showing is made in this movement funds may be forthcoming."
