Grace Jepson is under arrest on a larceny charge sworn to by John Liskey, a rancher near Malheur, who alleges Mrs. Jepson sold him a Chevrolet automobile, valued at $450, which was owned by the Niagara insurance company. SUES ON NOTE

Martin Bros., a corporation, have begun suit in the circuit court against Frank L. Burns, administrator of the estate of S. B. Gardner, deceased, and heirs of the estate, to collect $985, alleged to be due on a note, with interest, attorney's fees and costs. Wm. Ganong is attorney for the plaintiff.

The first monument ever erected by the Federal Government to any man who renounced allegiance to the Union in 1861 was the monument erected several years ago to President John Tyler, in Hollywood Cemetery, Richmond, Va.

In Japan theatrical audiences not infrequently show their appreciation of the actors by throwing portions of their clothing—hats, coats, sashes, etc.—on to the stage. At the close of the play they redeem these articles at fixed prices, the proceeds going to the fortunate actor.

One of the most curious facts in numismatics is the great rarity of some specimens of the coinage of the United States. There are many English coins of every sovereign, from William the Conqueror downwards, that are more common than certain United States issues of the last century.

The Economy of two or Three Pairs of Shoes

It will pay you to buy 2 or 3 pairs of shoes at one time and alternate them in wearing. A single pair of shoes worn steadily tends to wear out much more quickly than two pairs of more alternated. The reason for this is that shoes should be allowed to rest and dry out after each day's wear. The leather then keeps in much better condition. But, of course, the main problem in buying a shoe is to be sure you are getting one that has high-quality leather, good workmanship, and the name of a reliable company back of it. Such a shoe we offer you in our Crossett models. The new Fall models are now here. We would like to show them to you. When will you call?

WHAT IS AN "OVERDRAFT"?

THIS is the drawing of a check for more money than one has on deposit in the bank. It is obvious why the bank is not permitted to honor such a check. Overdrafts arise nine out of ten times through neglect or carelessness upon the part of the depositor in keeping track of his deposits and withdrawals. Therefore, such an occurrence does not add to one's business prestige. When you bank at the First National Bank, you enlist our interest in your interests.

WHY HIS "SECOND BEST BED"?

Writer Feels Called On to Criticize Shakespeare for Provision Made in His Will.

We are indebted to an English publication for a copy of the last will and testament of the late William Shakespeare. In the course of this document, we observe the following sentence:

"I gyve unto my wief my second best bed with the furniture."

We have no desire to find fault with the successful poet and dramatist of Stratford for this apparent discrimination against the Widow Shakespeare. What disposition he made of his first best bed is a matter that is not revealed by the copy of the will of the versatile author whose last testament is reported in the columns of our alert London contemporary. However, we don't think Mr. S. showed just the right spirit in gyveing onto his wief his second best bed. O, why did he not gyve onto her his first bed, or his tee potte or his punche bole with the gilt butterflyes, or his favorytte wigge, or his safette razure, or fountain penne, or bicycle—anything, in fact, but his second best bed?

No doubt Mr. Shakespeare had gone to bed with his boots on many a Saturday night in that very second best bed, and yet, hallowed as it was by such memories, one cannot but feel that the widow was treated unfairly. Perhaps Will's folks influenced him. As a co-writer we have only the highest regard and esteem for him. But we don't think he acted right about friend wief. —Thrift Magazine.
