AT THE THEATRES

It takes a pretty good man to stand up before a brace of six-shooters and not flinch. In "The Money Corral," a new Artcraft picture starring the inimitable William S. Hart, which will be seen at the Star Theatre tonight, this is proved when the star encounters some underworld crooks in Chicago and beats them at their own game. He also saves a trust company by preventing the theft of important proxies. The opening scenes are of a great rodeo in the frontier town of Fraley Point, Montana. There takes place the wild riding and shooting, all the sports of the cow country. A charming love story runs through the picture which was written by Mr. Hart and Lambert Hillyer, who also directed the production.

Mitchel Lewis, star in the Select Pictures production, "Faith of the Strong," which comes to the Star Theatre on Sunday, is a lover of life in the great Northwest. Although born in the East, not very many miles from the heart of busy New York City, Mr. Lewis has spent the greater portion of his life hunting in the No. 10. "Naturally, I have a sympathetic spot in my heart for the East," declared Mr. Lewis, "but for a real place to live, where every man is every other man's friend, give me the limitless spaces of the North. To read one story of the North, or even one of Service's rollicking verses, stirs something within me that is not quieted until I have packed my bags and journeyed to some quiet spot a hundred miles from the nearest white man's cabin. The rugged life of the great Northwest makes men of weaklings. I have camped on the shores of nearly every rushing stream in that country, and the days I have spent in the heart of the Yukon I will never forget. "The Great Northwest is the most glorious spot on God's green earth, and I am happy to have been able to make all of the scenes in "Faith of the Strong" in that section of the land which is so dear to my heart.

Hailed as a "doughtnut girl" wherever she made her stand for the taking of scenes in her big Salvation Army production, "The Blue Bonnet," which comes to the Liberty Theatre, tonight, piquant Billie Rhodes reveled in many delightful experiences on her transcontinental picture-making tour on her way from New York, where many of the scenes were taken early in June, to Hollywood, Cal., where studio work on the production was completed at the plant of the National Film Corporation of America. The day before her departure from New York Miss Rhodes accompanied by her director Louis Wm. Chajudet, and the principals in her cast, Ben Wilson, Stanhope Wheatcroft, Lloyd Bacon and Irene Rich, went over to Hoboken, N. J., to take some scenes for "The Blue Bonnet" in connection with the return of the U. S. S. Mobile carrying 3,500 of the nation's warriors. The little star, attired in her becoming Salvation Army costume, had little trouble inducing the chief officer at the port to give the company a place on the dock propitious for scene-taking. With the gangplank lowered, Miss Rhodes took her place right close to it in order to get as many soldiers as possible in the picture. Though the camera cranked the merry soldiers were certain she was one of the Army girls, and, remembering the gallant work done by the wonderful organization on the other side, there began pouring a stream of coins and souvenirs that soon filled the tambourine she carried. Forgetting the camera for the moment, the star rushed among them to offer congratulations for the noble work they accomplished abroad. Of course, the money was turned over to the Salvation Army—that is, all but a two-frame piece, which Miss Rhodes kept as a memento of the occasion.

Their Job to Keep Us Warm

These two are very much in the public eye at present. It is a new picture of Dr. Harry A. Garfield, fuel administrator, and Walter T. Hines, director general of railroads. This photo was taken as the two came from a meeting at the White House with the president's cabinet, Garfield having been authorized to again take control of the fuel situation, brought to a crisis through the big national coal strike. Hines and Garfield must work together in the attempt to keep the nation warm.

The scenes of Dustin Farnum's latest United Picture Theatres feature are laid in New York, at Sing Sing and later in the West. For the nonce Dustin Farnum lays aside his customary cowboy clothes in favor of evening dress and business suit. Among the special features which makes "A Man's Fight" a production of beauty and magnitude are the wonderful San Juan Capistrano Mission scenes now filmed for the first time.

"PRO" FOOTBALL NOW

Professional football is soon going to be America's great fall and winter sport—and here is one of the pioneers and stars who helped make it so. It is Jim Thorpe, Indian athlete and major league ballplayer who formerly was Carlisle's great grid star. After the baseball season closes, Thorpe goes to Canton, O., where he manages and captains the "Bulldogs." "Pro" games in Ohio are very popular.

POLYGAMY IS DEAD

President H. J. Grant, now head of the Mormon church, has had three wives, and himself is the son of a polygamous marriage. He declares that polygamy is a dead issue in the church now. He is now touring the east, visiting the branch churches.

MADE RECORD DURING WAR

Soldiers Proud of "Stars and Stripes," Official Organ of American Troops in France.

The most remarkable publication born of the war appears to have been "The Stars and Stripes." As it went out of business with the final scattering of its staff in June its record is now open to the public.

The publication was, as is well known, the official organ of the American expeditionary forces in France, and there is no doubt that it lived up to its dignity in a handsome manner. It started with a circulation of 30,000, and this was increased to 550,000 in less than a year. It maintained a French war orphan fund, to which 450,000 soldiers contributed 2,000,000 francs, and in its 16 months of life the paper cleared 3,500,000 francs.

There are other details of its progress and its work, among which is one to the effect that it printed 500 poems by soldiers and rejected 20,000.

The Editor and Publisher prints an extended review of the accomplishments of the paper, and from it we learn that its staff at one time or another contained something like 250 men. Among them were Sergt. Maj. Philip Von Blon, managing editor, and Sergt. Robert I. Snad Jr, staff contributor, both Clevelanders.
