MESOPOTAMIA TO 'COME BACK'

Prophecy That Ancient Land Is to Be Redeemed From Present State of Barrenness.

It may be remembered that, when Gen. Sir Stanley Maude had to lay down his work with his life in Mesopotamia, that work was taken up and carried on successfully by Gen. Sir W. R. Marshall. The expedition which he sent up the Euphrates freed that river from the Turks, and just before the armistice the force which he led up the Tigris from Bagdad captured the entire Turkish army of 7,000 about 50 miles south of Mosul, the city which stands on the west bank opposite the ruins of Nineveh. Since then the country has had peace, and all the way north and west from Basra there has been a notable revival of commerce and agriculture, with a beginning of the great irrigation scheme devised by Sir William Willcocks. It was through irrigation that in ancient times the land developed its extraordinary fertility, and traces remain of the network of canals that formed the center of Babylonian.

Is there to be a renewal of that fertility in place of the desert barrenness produced by Turkish neglect and misadministration? General Marshall, who has returned to England, is of that opinion. Speaking recently at Durham he made one very remarkable statement. As a result of experiments, he said, it was believed that Mesopotamia would become the finest cotton-growing country in the world. That is a large expectation, too large to disturb cotton growers in other countries. Details of the experiments, showing surprising results, will have to be made known before the "sea island" territory of Georgia, South Carolina and Florida can believe that its supremacy is threatened by Mesopotamia, or that the beautiful long-stapled silky wool of its peculiar variety can be excelled anywhere.

AZORES AT A STANDSTILL

Population Has Shown Little Change in Last Century—Lost Trade in Sugar and Tobacco.

The population of the Azores is about 245,000, the number of inhabitants having changed but little in the last century, and, if anything, having diminished. This fact is probably due more to various political and social conditions than to climatic, agricultural, or other conditions of the islands. In the early days the Portuguese literally "raised cane" on the islands, and established a large sugar trade with England and other countries. Tobacco and fruits were also produced in great quantities, but, with the discovery and settlement of Brazil and other South American countries, Portugal rather discouraged production in the Azores in order to aid her colonies in South America. With the sugar and tobacco trade snatched from them, the Azoreans began the cultivation of the vine, and the making of wine and other liquors became one of the chief industries of the islands. The population consists mainly of Portuguese, Moorish, and Flemish settlers, with a few negroes and a fair sprinkling of English settlers.

Novel Apartment Building.

A San Francisco woman realty operator has planned a novel building. Her idea is to utilize a steep bluff 350 feet high. On it she proposes to erect a series of apartments running in stair-step fashion from the street down to the water of San Francisco bay.

It is proposed to have each apartment equipped with its own elevator entrance, pergola and roof garden, with a glass-covered inclined elevator connecting all with the private wharf for fishing and boating. Other features projected are a specially warmed sea-water bathing tank and glass inclosed and a heated playground for children on the beach. Steam heat, hot water, laundry, garage, billiard, club and ball rooms are to be provided as matters of course. The site commands a fine view of the Golden Gate and the sea outside, according to the prospectus, and it is said the apartments, which will rent at a prohibitive (for most of us) price, are already under lease, even before the building has been started.—Kansas City Star.

His Opinion.

"True, women's fashions are so inmodest as to shock the pure," said J. Fuller Gloom. "The summers are also hotter and the winters colder than they ever were before. Just as usual, the country is going headlong to the dogs. Every town in America has more fools and crooks and gossips in it, in proportion to its size, than any other town in America. The poor are always growing poorer and the rich growing fatter. The end of the world is always at hand, and probably always will be. In fact, there is everlastingly something to howl about, if you want to howl. The women have always worn exactly what they pleased in just the manner that suited them best, and there never was and never will be any help for it. And if their diaphanous garb offends you there is no law compelling you to keep edging around until you get a comely woman betwixt yourself and the sun, confound you!"—Kansas City Star.

Knew the Stock.

Thomas—Has the boss got any horses for sale?
The Groom—No, sir, but I reckon Mr. Smith has.
Thomas—Why?
The Groom—Well, the gov'nor sold him a couple last week.

Japan's First Railway Station.

The old stone building of the Shinbashi station, which is familiar to all the foreign residents who came to Japan before the completion of the Tokio station, is to be moved to the compound of the Meiji Shrine, which is in course of construction at Yoyogi. This building was the first railway station built in Japan and it is at the same time one of the oldest buildings of foreign style in the capital. The station was constructed when Japan's first railroad was opened between Yokohama and Tokio in 1872, under the supervision of an American engineer.—Yokohama Journal.
