ECONOMY IN BURNING WOOD

Experts of Agricultural Department
Reveal Secrets That Are Well
Worth Keeping in Mind.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Where a fireplace is available wood can be used to good advantage, affording both heat and ventilation, but there is a secret about fireplace management. It is not generally known that a wood fire can be kept burning day and night in a fireplace with very little attention and with small consumption of wood. The secret in keeping wood from burning too rapidly is a plentiful supply of ashes, say foresters of the United States department of agriculture. One user who adopted this plan reports continuous use of a fireplace for over a month, with dry chestnut wood, where the amount of ashes formed by a month's use was not enough to require removal.

Ashes should be kept level with the andirons, the foresters say. As the blocks burn, an accumulation of glowing charcoal forms in the ashes. This keeps on burning slowly and assists in igniting the fresh blocks on the andirons. A pocket may be formed in the ashes into which the hot charcoal may fall, forming a heat storage. Two or three blocks on the andirons with the hot charcoal in the ashes will form an excellent fire.

To check the fire, ashes are shoveled over one or more of the blocks, covering lightly all the burning wood. This will not put out the fire; it will only check the rate of burning, so that red charcoal will be found when the ashes are removed for addition of fresh fuel.

Fireplace wood is usually cut in longer lengths than stove wood, but the ordinary 16-inch stove length is convenient. Any kind of wood can be used, provided it is dry and seasoned.

A banked fire will keep 10 or 12 hours, and will send some heat from the hot bricks all the time. A well-managed fireplace will be found a great addition to the heating system in any residence. Its value is to supplement a furnace, although it may replace the furnace in fall and spring with decided economy.

Value of Obstacles.

We were talking with a gentleman the other day about the rise of boys and young men, and he had many observations to relate, all of which taught the lesson that success starts with obstacles. A young man who has had no obstacles to surmount will seldom be successful in any department of life he may enter. It is quite impossible to expect anything great of a boy who is fed with a silver spoon and grows up amid a life of ease. It is the resistance that a boy encounters that develops his powers. He must carry rocks, and not feathers, if he expects to gain strength. So a boy should not wish for an easy way through which to reach success. If he is to be a scholar, a great merchant, a captain of industry or an efficient manager of anything good, he must begin down low, where there is work to do. A boy cannot loaf his way into great achievement; he has to struggle for it. The boy who knows this and fears not will make a man of himself. None other need apply.—Ohio State Journal.

One Good Result From War.

The production on a commercial scale of helium, second only to hydrogen as the lightest gas, is not least striking of the industrial effects of the war. Though 2.13 times as heavy as hydrogen, its lifting power is only 8 per cent less in the air, and, as it is inert and non-inflammable, it supplies the means of making the airship safe. Though detected spectroscopically in the sun by Lockyer in 1868, helium was first discovered on the earth by Ramsay in 1905. It exists in all radium minerals, such as cleveite and thorite, but the small quantity that had been extracted before last year cost some thousands of dollars per cubic foot! Through the arrangements now being made, the 1 per cent of helium in natural gases will be obtained at about $100 per 1,000 cubic feet.

WHEN FEASTING WAS REAL
How Many Can Remember the "Second Dinner" of the Good Old Holiday Times?
Allusion was made in an interesting article printed in Courant, describing an old-time Thanksgiving feast, to the second dinner of the day served on that feast at the home of every well-to-do farmer. This allusion was especially happy, inasmuch as in the past scant justice has been done to that meal which was by no means an unimportant feature of the day, for it tested one's capacity as it cannot be in these days when the door of the larder is guarded by not less than 170 food directors or administrators.
It will be remembered that the first meal was served not far from two o'clock in the afternoon, when each person was supposed to eat as on no other occasion in the year, yet by five o'clock in the afternoon, when the lamps were lighted, the table was again spread and the household with its kinsfolk and relations and the stranger within the gates, if such there was, was expected to fall to with as keen appetites as the members had two or three hours earlier. That they did not have such appetites was due solely to the weakness of the flesh, for the spirit was willing.
All the meats which figured at the first meal were displayed for the second, and pies, the very twins of those that had gone before, were on the table and, in addition, were various loaves of cake, actual loaf cake, a very durable article of food and, worst of all, each person was expected to eat heartily lest the housewife should feel that her work had not come up to its usual standard of excellence. It was a frightful ordeal.
For the Episcopalians this ordeal was repeated on Christmas day, while most of the Congregationalists waited until New Year's day, not wishing to lend color to anything approaching an observance of Christmas, but with these holidays out of the way the feasting of the year was over. For the young people of this year those great days never existed and never will exist, for the era of abundant and cheap food is definitely past, but with the older ones that memory of the imposing second dinner is bound to linger. When it existed as a fact it made thoughts of Ugolino, gnawing the skull of his enemy, of the starving men in the prison pen at Andersonville and of the fate of arctic explorers positively enviable. But those days are with the snows of yester-year; we have now dainty dishes, fine service, music of a sort, and flowers if we can pay for them, but very little actual food.—Hartford Courant.

Length of Life Extended.
In 1948-50, 25,000,000 deaths from the plague or "black death" occurred, which was one-fourth of the entire population of the world at that time. The average length of life in the sixteenth century was only 21 years, while in this, the twentieth century, the average life is forty-five years. In India, however, the average life today is only twenty-four years. We are enabled to see what the science of medicine is accomplishing in more civilized countries, where ignorance and superstition do not prevail to any great extent.

Taking the Joy Out of Rejoined.
He was sitting in the lobby of the high-priced hotel. The high prices started in the ground floor and got lower as they went up. But no matter. Suddenly a face caught his eye just as his face caught an eye. A woman darted from the throng of by-passers. "Wife!" he chirped, pressing her form to him.
"Husband!" she smirked. "Ah, let us go away, dear; let bygones be bygones. Let us forget everything."
Just then the hotel clerk approached. "Before you two decide to forget everything," interposed the horrid, smolious creature, "allow me to remind your husband that there is $25 room rent and $15 taxicab fare charged against him. After that is paid, ah, then, bless you, my children!"

Matter of Gender.
The bell of a Scottish church was giving out a very poor tone and a committee was appointed to inquire as to what was wrong and to report on the best means of putting it right. After an examination the members were divided in their opinion and the kirk officer, who was in attendance with the keys, was asked his view. "Fine. A ken what's wrang w' the bell," he remarked; "it's a she-yin"—meaning that it was of the feminine gender. Pressed to explain, he added: "It's tongue owre lang—it's needin' to be clipped!" And this turned out to be really the fault. The tongue had become loosened to the extent of an inch or so, and was overlapping the curve at the rim, and therefore not striking truly.
Keep Cool.
Conduct is the outward evidence of inward impulses. Impatience within is sure to make a sputtering grouch without. Things don't just happen. They are usually the product of a long train of circumstances. To be fair one should get out of patience with the whole series if you get fussed at all. But you don't. You just stew about the one thing that causes the explosion. When you have learned to be patient and wait you will have the power of changing many a problem that causes others all sorts of trouble. And it isn't a bit harder to do when you get the habit than it is to make a show of yourself. And it's a lot more comforting after the fuss is over.—Exchange.
