FIND MANY USES FOR PEAT

Warborn Industry Gives Promise of Great Development in the Years to Come.

The output of peat in the United States last year far exceeded that of any preceding year and the general increase, which was stimulated by the war, was shared by practically all branches of the industry. Though extensively used as fuel in Europe and widely known in the United States as a potential source of heat and power, peat has been unable to compete with coal and many peat operators have directed their attention to the utilization of peat in agriculture with gratifying results.

Peat fertilizer was first marketed in commercial quantities in 1908, and stock-food peat in 1912, and though there is still some prejudice against its use the agricultural branch of the industry has been successful and the quantity of fertilizer and stock-food peat annually produced is increasing. Large quantities of these products were made last year, but the most striking development was the production of more peat in the New England States than has been manufactured in the entire United States in all preceding years. Almost equally striking was the widespread interest manifested in peat resources which had been generally regarded as of doubtful value.

Large quantities of peat or sphagnum moss were produced and utilized for stable litter, packing material, and surgical dressing, and several hundred thousand acres of peat soils were used for the growth of crops. The peat litter was produced by the owners of small hogs for their own use, but the packing material was sold to florists for $25 a ton. According to J. W. Hotson of the Red Cross more than half a million peat pads were prepared in this country for that organization. Most of the moss was gathered by volunteers from bogs in Washington, Oregon and Maine, and the pads were used in military hospitals at home and abroad.

TOWNS NOT FATED TO LIVE

Communities East and West, Founded in High Hopes, Are Now Practically Things Forgotten.

Western papers tell their readers that the town of Emerson, Okla., is shortly to be a thing forgotten, remarks the Hartford Courant. It was snuffed out as a town site shortly after the territory was opened for settlement, and the promoters had dreams of a metropolis. In 1907 the plan was abandoned, and now the district court has been asked to vacate the land for town site purposes, when what might have been a town will become farm land.

The story of Emerson suggests what came near happening to a Connecticut town in the beginnings of the colony. Those interested in it showed rare sense in their choice of a site, and in their dreams planned not for a town but for a city. Hampden and Cromwell were to be among its citizens; the cream of England, so its promoters hoped, were to become its citizens. Fate ordered otherwise, and the early days of this dream town are remembered now largely through Lion Gardner's account of his struggle to hold the site against the attacks of the Indians.

Other states, notably the mining commonwealths of the West can duplicate the story from Oklahoma, but few can equal the romance of the Connecticut settlement.

HIS WORD OF REAL WORTH

World Would Be Better if There Were More Like This Omaha Business Man.

An Omaha newspaper man has a motor car, remarks the World Herald of that city. Last spring he had it painted. Not long ago the surface began to develop an amazing series of cracks like the "crow's feet" about an old man's eyes. The man greeted the cracks with amazement rapidly becoming disgust. Every time he looked at the car he lost his appetite and his good temper.

The other day the car was taken to the paint shop. Its owner was fully prepared to hear that he had used the wrong kind of polish, that he had let the car stand out in the sun, that anything and everything had spoiled the paint except that the paint itself was at fault.

The painter looked the car over. "If you'll bring it in, I'll do it over," he said. "The varnish must have been bad."

It was all over in two minutes. The man's faith in human nature jumped several hundred per cent. The sky was clear; the whole world was set in rosy hue.

Here was a man who didn't dodge responsibility, who tried no excuse, who backed his work with his word and made good his word. Isn't it a pretty good policy?

Subscribe for the Herald for your Eastern relative or friend. They would owe you an everlasting debt of gratitude.
