Sam Had His Fee.

Sam was on trial, charged with stealing ten dollars. He pleaded not guilty. Being unable to hire a lawyer, the judge appointed young Clarke as counsel. Clarke put up a strong plea in defense, and Sam was acquitted. Afterward the pair met outside the courtroom.

"Now, Sam," said the young lawyer, "you know the court allows the counsel very little indeed for defending a case of this kind. I worked hard for you and got you clear. I'm really entitled to a good big fee and you should dig up some money and pay me. Have you got any money at all?" "Yes, sah," replied Sam happily, "I still done got dat ten dollars."

Indisputable Proof.

A druggist was boasting in the company of his friends of his well-assorted stock in trade. "There isn't a drug missing," he said; "not even of the most uncommon sort."

"Come now," said one of the bystanders, by way of a joke, "I'm sure you don't keep spirits of contradiction, as well stocked as you are."

"Why not?" said the druggist, not in the least embarrassed. "You shall see for yourself." So saying he left the room and returned leading his wife by the hand.—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

FORGOT HE CHANGED HIS HAT

Aged Restaurant Patron Makes Search for Straw Toppiece, But Finds Own Derby.

Nice old gentleman in the restaurant, with a long line of hat trees running down the center. His dinner finished, he picked up his check and turned to the hat tree back of him and took down his hat, or the hat he had no doubt was his, but when from force of habit he looked inside of it to make sure he found that it wasn't his hat at all!

So he put that hat back on the tree and tried the next most likely one, but with the same result, and it was the same with all the hats on the tree, which he looked into one by one until he had looked into all excepting a black derby, which he did not inspect, for what he was looking for was a straw.

But then, to leave no stone unturned, he took down that black derby and looked into it; and, good gracious! that was the hat he was really looking for; that black derby hat he was now looking into was his very own.

He smiled as he put it on. He had changed that morning from straw to felt and then had forgotten all about it.

PITCAIRN ISLAND IS LONELY

Natives Occupying Spot, Peopled by About 150, Have Degenerated Through Intermarriage.

Home is where the heart is, but the heart picks out some most unusual locations at times. Rather near, as Pacific ocean distances go, to the Society Islands, is Pitcairn Island. It is certainly a lonesome spot, says the New York Sun, and as far back as 1856 the British authorities decided that it was no fit place for human habitation. So, the descendants of the mutineers of the "Bounty" who had settled there in 1790 were transferred that year to the more inviting Norfolk Island. Several families, however, were so homesick that they went back to Pitcairn.

The population from these few families has now increased until about 150 people are on the island. Through intermarriage and other evils of isolation these islanders have degenerated and their retrogression undoubtedly will end in their extermination.

BOXING BOUTS PROMISE WELL

Boxing fans are promised a run for their money in the contests scheduled for next Monday night, December 15, at the Houston opera house, the first bouts under the auspices of the new municipal boxing commission.

Toby Miller, whose hard-hitting reputation is well known to local fans, is training for the main bout with Billy Huff, and declares that he is in better condition for the coming contest than he has been for any event in years. He is confident that he can stop Huff long before the tenth round.

Huff is losing no sleep from anxiety over the outcome. He says that his Oakland opponent looks no bigger to him than any of the rest of them, and points to a few past performances of his own to sustain his contention that the decision will not go to his opponent's corner.

Two snappy four-round preliminaries between Kid Harrington and Jack Edwards, lightweights, and Kid McPherson and Young Souza, welterweights, are on the card, and a six-round semi-final bout between Guy Roberts and Bob Allen, which fans claim is going to occasion as much excitement as the main event.

Members of the boxing commission publicity committee declare any evidence of a frame-up will result in barring the guilty parties from all future exhibitions here, and furthermore, that no rowdism will be tolerated. They assert that all bouts under their management must be clean contests, cleanly conducted, and any deviation from this ruling will not be tolerated for a minute.

Tom Watters, whose integrity and knowledge of the boxing game are both of the highest, will referee the contests.

It is said that a custom peculiar to Buddhists is that of wandering about the country with hammer and chisel and carving holy symbols upon rocks by the wayside.

ABOUT LOVE AND MARRIAGE

Signs Reveal Something, but Fact Remains That We All Have to Take a Chance.

No man is ever really in love who can say so with all the ease, ardor and ecstacy of a stage lover. No man ever loved a woman just because she was good. The man who says pretty things to his wife all the time may have had lots of practice either before or since his marriage.

The husband who never gives his wife a decent word or a compliment would knock down any other man who would treat her in the same way.

The sincerest lovers are those who are tongue-tied, and don't know where to put their feet.

A man who seems very stupid in a crowd can often be extremely interesting in a dimly-lit, cozy corner with only one other person present.

There are two kinds of courage—the courage of the limelight, which prompts a nice young man in white ducks to jump overboard after a girl's handkerchief, and the real courage that makes a man face the horrors of a fashionable wedding, the torture of meeting the bills of a housekeeping apartment, and the agonies of walking the floor all night with a baby. The two are seldom coupled in one young man.

The first wife of a widower never was such an angel as she seems to him after his second marriage.

A man is like a piece of cloth—warranted to wash—and matrimony is the laundry. It may improve him, give him starch and freshen him up, or it may take all the color out of him. You have to take the chances.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Buy your boy or your wife a Xmas present that will be an insurance against poverty. Get ten acres of tule land. A little down, a little every month. That is all you need. R. E. Smith, 517 Main St. 11-1t

Pursued.

Nathaniel Hawthorne's handwriting was so illegible that some of his manuscripts remained unpublished because nobody could read them. This was likewise true of Carlyle. The story is told of a type compositor who was employed by a London printing office because of a strong recommendation brought from Scotland. The first piece of manuscript given him to set was by Carlyle.

"My God!" said the new typesetter. "Have you got that man here too? I fled from Scotland to avoid him!"—Ladies' Home Journal.

Unstylish Duds.

"Do you know how to make a pan dowdy?" asked her husband. "It was too good an opportunity to let go by."

"Certainly," she replied. "All I have to do is to dress the pan in the kind of clothes you make me wear."
