SURGEON'S TEST TOO MUCH FOR COURT

LONDON, Oct. 30. (B. Mail.)—Here is one of London police surgeon's tests to determine the oft-disputed question as to whether a person is drunk: Walk a straight line, heel and toe, without swaying. Pick up a piece of paper from the floor while standing on one foot. Say the words "tonsillitis," "artillery," "British Constitution" and

"pussyfoot" without a recurrence of the "sh" sound as in "slush." "The prisoner did these things, but not satisfactorily," explained the surgeon after recounting his "tests" before a court trying a man on a charge of drunkenness. "I doubt whether I could pass that examination, any time, the case is dismissed," commented the judge. The Herald would bring good cheer from Klamath County; not only during the Christmas season, but during every day in the year. Shop Early.

DISCHARGE HIM? SURE NOT

Landlord of Typical West of Ireland Estate Highly Valued Poor Marksmanship of Lodgekeeper. It was a typical West of Ireland estate, and the Sassenach landlord was just driving his newly arrived English guest through the lodge gates when a bullet tipped by his ear. "Good heavens!" exclaimed the guest. "What was that?" "O, only one of my men having a peep shot at me," replied the landlord. "I rather fancy it was my lodge-keeper." "Great Scott!" again ejaculated the guest. "What will you do with the fellow—have him arrested for attempted murder?" "Do with him!" repeated the landlord. "Nothing, of course." "Not even discharge him?" persisted the guest. "Good gracious, no!" replied the landlord. "Why, I wouldn't lose the fellow for a fortune. He's one of the worst shots I've ever had on the estate!"

FIRST STATUE IN THE U. S.

Jackson Memorial, Designed and Erected by Sculptor Who Started Life as Plasterer. The Jackson statue, in Lafayette park, Washington, was the first equestrian statue unveiled in the United States. The famous statue of George III, which the New York patriots pulled down in 1776, was built before there was a United States. The Jackson statue was designed and erected by Clark Mills, a "self-made" sculptor, who started life as a plasterer. He had never seen an equestrian statue before he started work on this one, and the appliances for modeling and casting were made by him. The metal in the group is made of cannon captured by Jackson from the British. The equiscope of the group is perfect, and no important balancing rods are used to keep the statue from toppling. Mills claims that he had so perfectly attained the center of gravity in the work that the group would balance perfectly on the hind feet of the rearing charger. This fact was proved, but when the statue was erected the hind feet of the horse were bolted, or otherwise fastened, to the base or pedestal, to secure it against the possible effects of high winds or other disturbing or mischievous causes.

Horse Ought Have More Sense.

A man driving an express wagon in Southbridge street appeared to be more concerned in a newspaper he was reading than in steering the horse out of harm's way. The paper blocked the view entirely in front of the driver, who seemed to be oblivious to his surroundings as the equine jogged along in what he found later to be the wrong road. When he woke up to the situation he found that he and the wagon had gone more than three-quarters of a mile out of the way and then he discovered that he had lost himself and had been doing extra work for nothing. When at last the driver lifted his head and found what had happened he cursed the horse for not knowing better than to pass by his own stable.—Worcester Evening Post.

FLOEBERG NOT AN ICEBERG

Former Yellow and Dirty in Color; Latter Ordinarily Brilliant White With Streaks.

While floebergs often are of great size, they are much different from icebergs. Rene Bache writes in the Philadelphia Public Ledger. They are yellow and dirty-looking in color, while icebergs are ordinarily a brilliant white, with ultramarine streaks. The streaks are pure ice, while the white parts are largely solidified snow. Floebergs are formed in the bays along the coast of Labrador, where ice is blown shoreward and piled up, sheet on sheet, during the winter. When summer comes the masses thus formed are liable to float out to sea. An iceberg is composed of fresh water, frozen. A floeberg is frozen salt water.

The crew of the steamer Androscoggin, of the United States coast guard, experimented in blowing up icebergs with shells and mines, but both attempts failed. The shells merely made white spots, and were shattered, while there was nothing that the mines could be attached to do damage. In addition ships could not come close enough to the bergs without danger from the floating mountains to make careful investigation for the placing of the mines.

In a Class by Himself.

A gentleman in the engraving business on Broadway, New York, was greatly annoyed by the tardiness of one of his skilled engravers. Calling him into the office one morning he said: "Mr. Brown, I get here at 8:30 every morning and look over my mail; at 9 o'clock I look out the window and see Mr. Rockefeller on his way to the office; at 9:30 Mr. J. P. Morgan passes on his way to the bank; at 10 I see Mr. Vanderbilt going by; at 10:30 Mr. Taft passes on the way to his office; at 11 you come in. Who the — are you?"—Rehoboth Sunday Herald.

GIVE W. S. S. FOR CHRISTMAS IS U. S. APPEAL

Governor Calkins Urges Government Securities for Presents Instead of Luxuries

Governor John U. Calkins of the San Francisco Federal Reserve Bank has written a letter to all banks and trust companies in the Twelfth Federal Reserve District urging them to promote, wherever possible, the sale of War Savings Stamps and Treasury Savings Certificates for Christmas presents this year. The increased demand for these Government securities, the Treasury Savings Certificates being similar to War Savings Stamps in denominations of $100 and $1000, is apparent from the fact that the Federal Reserve Bank supplied $60,200 worth of Treasury Savings Certificates to eighteen banks in the district on November 29, which is the largest amount sold in one day since the close of the war. On the face of the demand of these eighteen banks and the increased call for the securities from all postoffices throughout the Twelfth Federal Reserve District, it would seem that the Government's holiday slogan, "Give a War Savings Stamp or a Treasury Savings Certificate for Christmas," is being followed out, and the Government is hoping that by giving War Savings Stamps and Treasury Savings Certificates for Christmas gifts the district will closely approximate its War Savings quota for the year.

A portion of Governor Calkins' letter follows:

"The Christmas holidays are almost upon us. Everything points to a tremendous outlay of money in the purchase of holiday gifts, the greater portion of which I think I am safe in saying will be luxuries. The present situation demands not that more money be spent in the purchase of luxuries, but that we curtail as much as possible, with the consequent beneficial contraction of credit.

"Therefore, I appeal to you as a fellow banker to do everything within your power to stimulate the purchase and giving of War Savings Stamps and Treasury Savings Certificates as Christmas presents in place of the usual needless and expensive gifts. It seems to me that the responsibility of leading men's minds along the ways of thrift and simple living rests to a great extent upon the bankers of the country and in asking you to push the sales of Treasury securities during the Christmas holidays, I am asking you only to take advantage of an opportunity to meet this responsibility."

In addition, Christmas posters carrying an appeal to give War Savings Stamps and Treasury Savings Certificates for Christmas presents will be distributed throughout the Twelfth Federal Reserve District, and all banks have been asked to include a similar appeal in their advertising.

BIG INDUSTRIAL PROBLEM, GERMANY

COLOGNE, Nov. 1. (By Mail.)—Germany's industrial situation continues to be a paramount problem for public discussion. Almost every newspaper in the country has been devoting one or two columns daily to suggestions and criticisms of the industrial policies adopted by the National assembly. No relief is in sight so far, lack of transportation and scarcity of raw materials still to be faced.

The demand for rubber and rubber products appears to be increasing, rubber articles of all kinds being particularly scarce on the market. Prohibitive prices have been paid recently in Cologne and other Rhineland cities by dealers from the interior of Germany for old automobile and bicycle tires. Millions of marks worth of salvaged rubber goods have been sold by the American, French and British army authorities to the Germans but this supply apparently has not relieved the demand in the least.

GAME IN YUKON

KETCHIKAN, Alaska, Nov. 21. (By Mail.)—Ptarmigan and grouse, which have been seldom seen in the Yukon river district during the last four or five years, are making their appearance there this year in great numbers, travelers from the interior report.
