NO QUEENING!

BANGOR, Wales, Dec. 19.—Under the rules of the Anti-Motting League, the object of which is to promote the best interests of the colleges here a student is liable to a fine of 12 cents if found guilty of ogling or making any sign whatever to attract the attention of girls.

Christmas cards date from 1846. The originals were small lithographs colored by hand, and the first issue was limited to a thousand.

ESTRAYED

A three year old black heifer left my ranch about 2 months ago. Branded HVL connected—Right ear swallow cut, left ear under bit. Reasonable reward for any information.

In England the Christmas tree is alluded to in 1789, but its use did not become at all general until about the eighteen-forties. In 1840 Queen Victoria and Prince Albert had a Christmas tree, and the fashion soon spread throughout England.

TURKS BRANDED WOMEN CAPTIVES

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—A simple method to obliterate from the faces of thousands of Armenian girls and women the brands and indelible ink tattoo marks placed upon them during the war by Turks, Kurds and Arabs is sought by Dr. Wilfred M. Post of Princeton University, who has just returned from a trip thru the Near East.

The victims of the branding and tattooing, in every case, were Christians and their captors thus marked them as Mohammedans. Freed from enslavement they sought at once to remove the evidence of their bondage employing disfiguring acids for the purpose. Many of them flocked to the relief hospitals. Dr. Post said, to be treated for the self-inflicted burns.

Dr. Post, who was born in Turkey and served as a medical missionary in that country before the war, said the tattooed women were among hundreds of thousands of destitute persons in that country who are being cared for by the Near East Relief workers from America.

"While removal of tattoo marks cannot be classed with the urgent necessity of providing food and clothing for 800,000 starving Armenian women and children," says Dr. Post, "the wearing of this brand which shows that the woman has been an inmate of a harem, seriously interferes with the work of reconstruction and rehabilitation among such persons. During the four years that Turkey attempted to exterminate the Armenian people by a system of slaughter and deportation, practically every young woman in that country was at the mercy of the Mohammedans."

Removal of tattoo marks has never been given serious attention, according to prominent dermatologists. Occasionally a request has come from a former sailor to have some design removed from his arm or a society woman who wished to have the initials of her former fiance or husband removed, but the known processes of removal have been so dangerous and their success so questionable that physicians have considered the marks to be "practically irremovable."

Several prominent dermatologists have offered their services to Dr. Post to assist him in his research work for the benefit of marked Armenian women. Among those who are aiding in the work is Dr. George H. Washburn of Harvard, who served in the medical corps of the United States army as a specialist in restoring the faces of soldiers who were disfigured by wounds.

A Christmas tree of gold, two feet high, and plentifully supplied with branches, is not an ordinary sight. Such is the description of a "tree" given by an Irish goldminer to the Pope some years ago. The man had made a fortune in the Klondike, and spent a considerable portion of it on the gift mentioned.

The biggest private Christmas tree ever seen in Great Britain was cut from his own estate and conveyed with much trouble to Arundel Castle. It stood 70 feet high, weighed nearly four tons, and bore on its branches presents to the value of nearly $25,000.
