Perhaps the largest audience ever present in Houston's Opera House attended the "Christmas Sing" last night when Miss Evelyn Applegate, instructor of music in the Grammar Schools, and Miss Avis Dougherty, instructor of music in the High School presented nearly three hundred students in a chorus of Christmas Carols. Although the different groups of pupils were trained separately, they filed into the stage in as perfect order as though they had had weeks of training. The High School Quartette composed of Dorothy Wallace, Pearl Biehn, Jo Upp and Florence Bradley dressed in white suits and red ties representing the High School colors entered the Opera House and marched through the aisles singing Christmas Carols. They were cordially received and the entire programme from start to finish was met by a most appreciative audience.

At the close of the programme a Christmas treat consisting of candy and nuts was presented by the business men of the city to those taking part in the programme. The following pupils took part.
