'DRY' VERNON DOESN'T PAY

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 31.—The city of Vernon, a little independent town entirely surrounded by the southeast section of Los Angeles, is about to give up the municipal ghost, and be merged into the corporation of Los Angeles, according to officials of the latter city. The decision of Vernon to become a memory followed the enactment of federal prohibition. Until that arrived, Vernon was a "wet spot" entirely surrounded by arid Los Angeles, and was the sole oasis for residents of this city.

Vernon is a manufacturing town, but its claim to fame has rested on its entertainment facilities. Before the country went dry, Vernon had a group of restaurants and cafes that were famous all over the country. The motion picture people, the artists and bohemians, and the writers of the west all turned there for gaiety, and found it. Dance floors, ball rooms, dining rooms, and bars were numerous, and after Los Angeles voted out the saloons a year or so ago, one bar in Vernon rapidly developed the distinction of being the largest saloon in the world.

With the passing of liquor, city revenues of Vernon, derived from license fees and from fines against hilarious patrons, have dwindled to nothing; it can't pay salaries, hence it cannot retain officials, and it cannot maintain lights, water, streets, and other town needs. So when Los Angeles recently found itself in need of a truck highway through Vernon to the harbor district, negotiations began again for annexation, and this time, city officials said, there seems to be a prospect that they will succeed.

The New EDISON

The Phonograph with a Soul

As dealers in the New Edison, we have obligated ourselves to a service.

Thomas A. Edison perfected the New Edison at a cost of three million dollars. He entrusted us with the duty of bringing its Re-Creative art into as many homes as possible.

On this principle therefore, we have organized our store and our selling policy. We earnestly ask you to take this purpose literally—and use this store as your aid to the enjoyment of music—even to the matter of payment.

We are not an installment house, but as part of our service, we arrange payments to suit your convenience.

Let us help you in some way—any way.

DEER AND BEAR VERY DOCILE

DENVER, Colo., Dec. 31.—Deer which invade kitchens of houses in search of food, and beggar bears which waylay automobile tourists and pedestrians along the roads, are examples of the extent to which the protection furnished by the government to the wild game within the boundaries of the various national parks has tamed the animals, according to Horace M. Albright, superintendent of Yellowstone national park and assistant to Stephen M. Mather, director of national parks, who came to Denver recently to attend the meeting of park officials.

"One night shortly before I left, I went to a dance," said Mr. Albright. "I took home a pitcher of cider and a plate of doughnuts. When I reached the house I placed them on a back step while I unlocked the door. A noise behind me caused me to look around and there was a big mule deer with his nose buried in the pitcher of cider. He followed me into the house for one of the doughnuts, and when I gave it to him he trotted off."

It is no unusual sight, declared Albright, to see deer entering and leaving a house in Yellowstone. Small children feed them from their hands, and beggar bears, he declares, have come to be one of the biggest attractions of the park.

"They wait beside the road until an auto or party of pedestrians approach, and then get up on their hind legs and extend their front paws for contributions," Albright said.

The tameness of the animals has its drawbacks as well, because it makes them easy for pot hunters if they happen to stray beyond the park boundaries.

"We had one of the worst storms in the history of the park during October," said the superintendent, "and it drove the animals down from the hills in herds. They strayed out of the park in search of food and were slaughtered by hunters. The hunting season in Montana runs from October 15 to December 22, and unless public opinion forces the state to enact more adequate laws, I fear the elk and antelope, which are making their

'last stand' in Yellowstone park, will be soon exterminated." The different diseases that affect mankind number about twelve hundred.

1919—1920

—It seems to us fitting that in welcoming the New Year we should express publicly our appreciation of the patronage we enjoyed during 1919 and the encouragement this generous support gives us in our plans for serving you still better in 1920.

—That it will be a year full of cheer is our positive belief, and our resolve is that, as merchants and individuals, we will exert ourselves to fulfill all duties and obligations it will demand of us.
