PHYSICIAN AND WIFE SAW OVER SEAS SERVICE

Another member, added to the medical fraternity of Klamath Falls, is Dr. T. C. Campbell, who is a graduate of Toronto University Class 1902, and who returned in September from overseas where he served four years with the Canadian army medical corps.

In 1915-16, Dr. Campbell served in France as medical officer with a Scottish regiment, where he saw ten months' continuous service in the front line. This was during one of the most trying times of the great war, when food and munitions, as well as all other supplies were short. This was the winter when the battles of Ypres, The Somme, Loos, Festubert, were fought through a sea of mud, and when the loss of the Canadians was tremendous.

During this time, gas was first used by the enemy, the Canadians being the first to suffer its terrible effects. After Dr. Campbell had experienced months of the trials and hardships connected with these battles it was somewhat of a relief to be attached to a field ambulance and while it was equally as dangerous, the personal hardships were not so great. It was not uncommon, in these days to work continuously for sixty or seventy hours, getting the wounded back to a casualty clearing station.

His next service was in No. 7 Canadian general hospital at Etaples, France. This was one of the largest hospital areas during the war, there being accommodation for over sixty thousand wounded. Here Dr. Campbell was on the surgical division of the hospital, with complete charge of four surgical wards. Later, Major Campbell was transferred to Kitchen military hospital where a great amount of orthopaedic surgery was done. Here Major Campbell made an enviable record, his losses being less than one tenth of one per cent of all cases passing through his wards.

Mrs. Campbell, who has joined the doctor here is a native Oregonian, who also saw active service. She went over in 1916, and immediately responded to the call for help, joining up with Princess Mary's voluntary aid detachment, which was attached to Queen Alexandra's Imperial Military Nursing service. Mrs. Campbell was for three years in this service, where she held the rank of second lieutenant, the highest ranking held by untrained nurses. She was decorated for war service and received her discharge in August of this year. This corps served without pay and was made up of hundreds of patriotic women, many of title and high social degree, who gave their time to the great need of hospital work.

In November, 1917, Mrs. Campbell had the great honor and pleasure of representing "America" at a "Pageant of Fair Women," arranged in London before Queen Mary and Princess Mary. At that time she was presented to the Queen and Princess Mary and personally thanked by the Queen for her work during the war. Dr. Campbell, on returning to the States, found Klamath Falls the most talked of place in the Northwest and decided to look it over, with the result that he has decided to remain here and has opened offices in the Odd Fellows Building. Dr. and Mrs. Campbell are at present living at the White Pelican hotel, where they will remain until they can secure a suitable home.
