Fine Metals Have Given Maxwell its Rank

THE very substance of which a car is made denotes its quality; and the use of fine and strong metals in the Maxwell has won it many, many friends.

It was necessary to make the Maxwell chassis of the very best materials. For its great mission was to transport—in an extremely economical way—as great a passenger load over the same road and at the same speed as the larger and heavier cars.

Thus it was obvious that the Maxwell had to be light. And to make it light the quality metals were used.

Metallurgists, the men who have made the study of metals a science, say that it compares favorably pound for pound with the highest priced cars the world has produced.

But you need not be a metallurgist to discover this "inner goodness" in a Maxwell. Three months will tell; six months will tell you more.

Otherwise Maxwell in five short years would never have grown from a production of 5,000 a year to 100,000 a year.

300,000 Maxwells on the highways of the world today answer most any question you can ask about this great car. Price, $985 f. o. b. Detroit.
