Down to New Ocean Depths

Thirty billion dollars in gold at the bottom of the ocean in the British liner Laurentia, was the incentive which spurred inventors on to perfect a diving suit which could be used successfully at new depths heretofore impossible due to the pressure of water. And as usual an American turned the trick. Here is the armor which Charles H. Jackson (colored mechaute and inventor, shown on the left), has perfected enabling the diver to go twice as deep as formerly. At the test, near Boston, this diver went down 360 feet and performed successfully, thus establishing a new record in deep-sea diving. The trail for the British gold, sunk by a German submarine, is to be made soon.

FARMERS' WEEK AT O. A. C. IS SUCCESS

OREGON AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE, Jan. 5.—Farmers' and Home-makers' week, declared to be an unqualified success from the standpoint of program and general enthusiasm, has come to a close. Total attendance, approximately 1000, was not quite up to expectations but conditions following the big storm are said to have kept scores of persons away.

The big entertainment feature, the banquet, characterized by "jazz and a bunch of fun" as one of the speakers put it, was attended by a large representation of farmers and home-makers from all parts of the state. O. M. Plummer, manager of the Pacific Livestock show, who served as toastmaster, kept the diners in an uproar of laughter. Various sections of the state were represented in brief toasts. President W. J. Kerr of the college was among those who spoke.

IF BACKACHE OR KIDNEYS BOTHER

Eat less meat, also take glass of Salts before eating breakfast.

Uric acid in meat excites the kidneys; they become overworked; get sluggish, ache, and feel like lumps of lead. The urine becomes cloudy; the bladder is irritated; and you may be obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night. When the kidneys clog you must help them flush off the body's urinous waste or you'll be a real sick person shortly. At first you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, you suffer from backache, sick headache, dizziness, stomach gets sour, tongue coated and you feel rheumatic twinges when the weather is bad. Eat less meat, drink lots of water; also get from any pharmacist four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoon in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active. Druggists here say they sell lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

LEGION FIGHTS HARD AGAINST 30 YEAR LEASE

The Oregon State Post of the American Legion has sent a letter to the national legislative committee of the Legion at Washington urging active support of the committee in the Legion's attempt to prevent the leasing of Upper Lake marsh lands for a thirty-year term.

As the time set for hearing of the Legion's objections by Secretary Lane, January 12, approaches, the organization of ex-service men is bringing every energy to bear to prevent the leases and has lined up a strong opposition.

The state organization's letter, dated December 26, to Thomas W. Miller, chairman of the national legislative committee, says: "Klamath Post, No. 8, Department of Oregon, has requested this office to furnish you with the information and resolutions concerning leasing of land in Upper Klamath lake, Klamath county, Oregon, to Doak & Brown, subsidiaries of the California-Oregon Power Company.

"This matter was submitted to all the posts in the Department of Oregon, following the State Convention, and before the National Convention. As you see from resolutions passed by the State Convention, the delegates to the National Convention were instructed to take this matter up before the National Convention, but on account of its affecting only one state, we did not get any action from the convention committee.

"In addition to the resolutions adopted by the state convention, this matter was also submitted to all the posts in the Department of Oregon for referendum vote, and of the 59 posts in the state at that time, there was not a single no recorded. This will show you what the service men and members of the Legion in the Department of Oregon think concerning the leasing to corporations or individuals of land in this state, that is fit for settlement by the service men, should be subject for homesteading.

"The Klamath Post informs us that the Secretary of the Interior has set January 12, at 10 p. m., in the City of Washington, D. C., as the time and place for further hearing on the matter of these leases, and they have asked us to request the national legislative committee to represent Klamath Post and the Department of Oregon at such hearing.

"Congressman Sinnott of Oregon has presented a bill to Congress opening up these lands for settlement, but it seems that Secretary Lane and the Director of the Reclamation Service desires to defeat this bill, and carry out the leasing of these lands.

"For the Department of Oregon, I would request you as chairman of the national legislative committee to use your influence and that of your committee in obtaining the passage of Congressman Sinnott's bill, because we firmly believe that the ex-service men from the State of Oregon desire to settle on this land and that the land is such that they can develop and maintain comfortable homes on the same.

HARRINGTON SAYS POOR SHOWING DUE TO ILLNESS.

Wilbur (Kid) Harrington, the Chilquin boxer, whose poor exhibition at the recent match at the Opera house puzzled the fans, who had heard him spoken of as a clever and aggressive boxer, has furnished an explanation. His statement follows:

"On December 15, 1919, I had agreed to box Jack Edwards but unfortunately was taken sick that evening. I attempted to go through with my agreement, but was unable to make a showing, and realize that the spectators and the boxing commission have probably gained a wrong impression in consequence. I hereby challenge Jack Edwards to box with me at the next "competition" staged at Klamath Falls under supervision of the municipal boxing commission, and under any conditions agreeable to the commission."

DRUG OF MARVELOUS POWER

Bayard Taylor's Description of Sensations Under the Influence of Hashish is a Classic.

Hashish may be reckoned one of the most classic of all intoxicants. Herodotus, the "Father of History" speaks of its use among the ancient Scythians, and it was doubtless the drug referred to by Homer as "the assuager of grief" in the house of Menelaus. Bayard Taylor's account of his sensations on first taking it at Damascus is memorable. It put him in a state of mental exaltation where in all sensations as they arose suggested more or less coherent images in a double form, one physical, the other spiritual, and the latter revealing itself in a series of indescribably brilliant metaphors. A few minutes after taking the drug he found himself at the foot of the Great Pyramid. A wish instantly transported him to its summit, far above the palm groves and wheat fields of Egypt. Then, looking down, he observed that the pyramid was not built of stone, but of gigantic blocks of "plug" tobacco! For a moment he writhed in a perfect paroxysm of laughter at this ludicrous discovery. Then his senses were ravished with delicious perfumes, and there came to his ears divine melodies and harmonies such as Beethoven might have dreamed. Time and space seemed vastly extended, so that a minute seemed an hour and an hour a year, while his friends in the same room with him seemed miles away, as though he were viewing them through a reversed telescope.

PETS BELOVED BY SAINTS

Dr. Douglas Hyde, in Series of Lectures, Deals Interestingly With Medieval Irish Lore.

Dr. Douglas Hyde recently delivered a series of lectures—the Margaret Stokes lectures—in the Alameda college, Dublin, dealing with medieval Irish lore. He told anecdotes about the Irish saints and their love of birds and beasts. He traced the love of animals by people in different periods and in different countries. Even the Irish pagans had their pet animals, says Our Dumb Animals.

He took the three Irish saints, St. Patrick, St. Bridget and St. Columcille, and spoke of their affection for their pet animals. St. Patrick's kindness to the fawn was well authenticated, and the fawn returned the love to his master.

St. Bridget had her pet dog, a most faithful animal. She also loved birds, and the birds, especially domestic fowls, loved her in a remarkable manner.

The crane was St. Columcille's pet, although his love for dumb animals surpassed that of the other saints. It was recorded in the life of the saint that dumb animals, too, were in love with him, especially birds, and that some of the latter followed him from Ireland to the island of Iona. There was, in proof of the love of animals for the saint, the story of how the horse wept on the bosom of the saint the night before he died.

Dr. Hyde mentioned a large number of other saints, Irish and Latin, about whom he told stories, showing their love for animals, making special reference to St. Kevin, St. Conall, St. Molna, St. Moling, who had made friends of wolves, foxes, partridges and herons.

FELL TO ROOSEVELT'S SPEAR

Big Devilfish a Victim of the Colonel's Love of Sport, Either on Sea or Land.

The fame of the late Col. Theodore Roosevelt as a big-game hunter is well known, but he was equally as adept at killing big fish of the sea, according to Russell J. Coles, noted big-fish killer. Attracted by one of Coles' articles about killing the devilfish, the colonel appealed to him for instruction in the art. After taking several land lessons, using a spear with which he saw an African kill a lion, he finally became expert, and Mr. Coles formed a party to hunt the devilfish off the coast of Florida, in Punta Gorda, March 25, 1917. There the colonel killed his first devilfish, hitting the huge creature, which weighed many tons, just two inches from the spot indicated on a drawing by Coles, and driving the spear two feet four inches through the heaviest and boniest structure of the fish. The colonel was standing on the cab of a small boat traveling nine miles an hour, and the fish was coming toward the boat at the rate of 15 or 18 miles an hour, swimming about four or six feet under water. Had the colonel missed his aim the fish would have been able, with one of its side fins, to upset the boat and drown the fishermen. An hour after his first catch the colonel killed a second devilfish, which was the second largest devilfish ever killed. Mr. Coles is a scientist who has hunted devilfish for more than 20 years.

Auberge du Pigeon.

Strasbourg, France once more, is unfolding, like a rose to the sun. The old life has begun again, as it was lived before the interruption in 1871. Houses are throwing open their shutters and hanging up once familiar signs. One of them, the Pigeon Inn, one of the glories of Strasbourg with its painted wood carvings, its old windows and curious ship decorations, has reopened its doors. It was built in 1331 and began its career under the sign of "Au Pigeon." Then later the sign changed to "Au Pigeon Blanc" and for two centuries the inn was the rendezvous of the university students. After 1870 the sign was taken down, the Pigeon Blanc's hospitality ceased and the house became the headquarters of a Roman Catholic society. The days of its ecclesiastical importance are happily over. The inn becomes the "Pigeon Blanc" once more, opening a new chapter of its long history under true Alsatin management.—Christian Science Monitor.

Rather Warm in the Deepest Well.

The deepest well in the world is six and one-half miles southeast of Fairmont, W. Va., drilled by the Hope Natural Gas company of Pittsburgh. It is 7,579 feet deep. The well had to be abandoned because the drilling tools stuck in the drill hole, the cable parted and left the tools and 4,000 feet of cable in the hole.

C. E. Van Orstrand of the United States geological survey, informs the Scientific American that the temperature at 7,000 feet was 172 degrees F., and the rate of increase was one degree in 51 feet. At this rate the boiling point would be reached at about 10,000 feet below the surface.
