GREAT BRITAIN VIEWS FUTURE WITH OPTIMISM

LONDON, Dec. 28. (By The Associated Press).—The whole of Great Britain look forward to a new year full of financial and political difficulties but with greater optimism than they would have thought possible a few months ago.

A "new world fit for heroes to live in" which was an ideal of the war has not yet been fully attained at home and international problems which brought on the war still are hanging over the head of the nation. Yet the British people are trying to face the future in an invincible faith in the nation's ability to conquer all troubles.

The most cheerful optimist of all is Premier Lloyd George. Under the leadership of his unflinching faith that everything will work out for the best, the clouds of despondency, pictured by the newspapers as thickest when the Chancellor of the Exchequer declared that the nation was heading for bankruptcy, say Britons have visibly lifted.

A foremost cause for confidence is the steady commercial revival and cessation of labor troubles, which Britons hope will continue. These give ground for prediction by optimists that Great Britain will return to normal conditions sooner than other great countries which engaged in the war.

Big Business Booked.

Manufacturers in many lines have business booked far ahead. The cotton trade, one of the basic British industries, is said to have all the orders it can fill for the next five years. Shipbuilders say they are in the same happy condition. They have yet to be convinced that America will be able to take away the former British supremacy in the carrying trade. They base their confidence on the belief that while the British are a say British industry is facing a question whether the steady increase in wages may not become a dangerous handicap in competition with other countries.

Labor has other prospective benefits in the promise of Premier Lloyd George's great scheme for building comfortable workmen's homes throughout the country, which is just beginning to materialize, and in plans for insurance against unemployment which is just beginning to materialize, and in plans for insurance against unemployment which have not yet developed. The principle of the latter plan is that all men out of work through no fault of their own shall be assured of a respectable living as a right, without any taint of pauperism.

Ireland still is regarded as one of the government's most difficult and threatening domestic problems. Early forecasts of the New Home bill met nothing but opposition from all Irish factions. The Sinn Fein, with a majority of the Irish votes, threatened to boycott the scheme as it boycotts the British Parliament.

Colonial Problems.

India and Egypt are being weighed in the balance with hopes and fears as intense as those centered upon Ireland. India will see in the new year the beginning of the program of Edwin Samuel Montagu for new measures of self-government. Establishment of a protectorate over Egypt is now being resisted with much the same bitterness and same methods as the Irish resisted the present administration in Ireland.

The new year is expected to be vital for the fortunes of the army and navy. The present plan is to reduce the army next year to virtually its prewar basis. The navy is at a critical stage. Experts upon whom the country relied in the past, notably Baron Fisher, formerly First Sea Lord, and Rear Admiral Sir Percy Scott are for scrapping the old establishment. They declare that big battleships are obsolete, that submarines and aircraft have revolutionized warfare and that submarines, and big submarines, are the only craft of the future.

Naval experts whose opinions command equal respect are skeptical and say, "go slow." It is urged that a country whose life depends upon its navy should not drop its old machinery before the new has been proved beyond reasonable doubt.

The new disposition of Turkey and other lands of the Near East are almost as important for Great Britain as the fortunes of her own territories. Setting up of new mandatory colonies and islands involves many decisions.

Seldom has the nation faced greater or more various and difficult tasks than the new year holds for Great Britain. Yet the average man is absorbed in one subject more than all of the others together. This is the cost of living which has increased more in the past year than during the four years of war, and he sees no turning point in sight. This means that a large part of the population has to readjust its scale of living and that a large section of the old "middle-class" is becoming the new poor.

sea-faring race, the Americans are not.

Apparently they believe that American ships built in the war are destined to be bought eventually by distinctly maritime nations. Their confidence however, is not iron-clad. Lord Inchace told the shareholders of one great British steamship company that, if the American government turned over its ships to private owners, Great Britain need not be afraid, but if the American people were to be taxed to build up their mercantile marine, the outlook for the shipping industry in these islands was nothing but rosy.

British bankers and merchants look forward to a great increase of business with South America in 1920. They expect to hold their pre-war customers and to gain much of what Germany lost. They confess to discount the prospect that the United States will acquire control of the South American field.

Many nations are anxious to buy from Great Britain. How some of them can pay is a problem. The decline in exchange rates had a depressing effect on American trade but exchange with France, Italy and other markets is favorable to Great Britain.

Badly Handicapped.

Against these reasons for business confidence stand two handicaps in the form of financial and labor conditions. The national debt appears appalling to the British public but optimists argue that it is smaller than was the debt after the Napoleonic wars, measured by the country's wealth and potential producing power.

The question of clearing the decks by some form of a capital levy is still at the front and may be one of the burning political questions of the year.

The nationalization of mines and railways is another British problem and with it are linked questions of hours and wages which confront all industries alike and which England shares with America. It has been said that Great Britain's recovery after the Napoleonic wars was possible through underpaid labor but British employers do not expect this to be among the assets of the future. On the contrary, many industrial leaders

SAN FRANCISCO PRICE OF MILK DROPS 3 CENTS

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 9.—Milk at 13 cents a quart appeared in San Francisco in opposition to the prevailing price of 16 cents, the new supply being brought in by an organization of grocers.

The 13-cent milk is being sold in some of the residence districts, but it is planned to deliver it to all parts of the city as soon as a delivery system has been perfected. The amount of the cheaper milk now brought in is 5000 gallons a day, it was announced.

Frank B. Connolly, secretary of the San Francisco Retail Grocers' association, said today that he has gone to Chicago, where, at a meeting of the executive board of the National Retail Grocers' association, he will show how 13-cent milk has become possible in San Francisco. Milk now sells at 16 cents in Chicago, he said, but an effort will be made to bring the price there down to 13 cents also.

General Drop Predicted.

Within a week, Connolly predicted, 500 grocery stores in San Francisco will be selling milk at a new price.

First steps to reduce the cost of living in northern California, thru federal co-operation with local fair price committees, were taken here by John H. Atwood, special representative of the department of justice. Colonel Charles W. Thomas, assistant United States attorney, left for Sacramento to perfect some sort of organization there and elsewhere in the northern part of the state by which it is hoped costs can be lowered.

Prices in other parts of the country where fair price committees have worked with government representatives have been brought down from 15 to 40 per cent. Atwood declared today, after receiving tabulated reports from some cities he has visited.

No prosecutions of profiteers will be attempted, he said, until dealers have been advised that they will be expected to lower prices and until they have had a chance to comply.

WILL RATIFY PEACE TREATY JANUARY 10.

PARIS, Jan. 9.—Exchange of ratifications of the peace treaty with Germany will take place January 10, it now seems certain. The supreme council today fixed this date for the ceremony.
