ENGLISH BOXING RULES DIFFER

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—The marked difference in the interpretation and enforcement of boxing rules and regulations in this country and England is well illustrated in the impressions gained from witnessing the film views of the Dempsey-Willard heavyweight championship contest. The movies of this bout have been exhibited privately several times in the United States. One or two pugilistic experts have raised the claim that the pictures clearly show that Dempsey fouled Willard in the first round by hitting the title holder while he was down. They found little support, however, for their charges.

The same films viewed through English eyes recently, brought forth several articles by prominent pugilistic writers who charge that Willard was fouled not once but several times and that under English boxing rules Dempsey would have been disqualified and ordered from the ring. The following is a typical English view of the affair, as printed in one of the most prominent London sport dailies:

"In that single round (the first) Willard was sent down no fewer than seven times, but on three occasions he was hit when still 'down,' according to the spirit and letter of the rules of boxing in this country. Each time Willard was put down Dempsey practically stood over him, ready to strike again, and would have done so had not the referee got in front of him and pushed him away; but on the three occasions specially mentioned Willard was hit while still no more than half way to an erect position, and helpless to defend himself. After being sent down for the sixth time, and while still grasping the middle rope and struggling to rise, Willard was hit again and again, until he half rolled, half sank, to the floor in a neutral corner for the seventh time. In England Dempsey would have been disqualified then, if he had not been when he committed any one of his previous technical breaches."

The lot of the ballet girls at the Paris opera house is not an enviable one, so far as work is concerned. Every morning they have a dancing lesson lasting an hour and a half. In the afternoon comes a three-hour rehearsal. In the evening there is private tuition from 5 to 7, and then they appear on the stage from 7:45 until near midnight.

PUT CREAM IN NOSE AND STOP CATARRH

Tells How To Open Clogged Nostrils and End Head-Colds.

You feel fine in a few moments. Your cold in head or catarrh will be gone. Your clogged nostrils will open. The air passages of your head will clear and you can breathe freely. No more dullness, headache; no hawking, snuffling, mucous discharges or dryness; no struggling for breath at night.

Tell your druggist you want a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic, cream in your nostrils, let it penetrate through every air passage of the head; soothe and heal the swollen, inflamed mucous membrane, and relief comes instantly.

It is just what every cold and catarrh sufferer needs. Don't stay stuffed-up and miserable.

OLD IRRIGATION PLAN REVIVED

WENATCHEE, Wash., Feb. 26.—Dreams of far-visions pioneers who saw a mirage of wasted waters of the high Rockies flowing over thirsty Washington lands are to be realized if the long-proposed Columbia basin project, said to be the greatest project of its kind ever conceived, is carried through.

The proposal is to carry water from Idaho and Montana through 130 miles of lakes, canals and tunnels to irrigate approximately 350 square miles of land lying in south-east Washington in the "Big Bend" of the Columbia river.

Engineers employed by a commission created by the Washington legislature are at present going over the immense scheme to determine its feasibility. The legislature authorized the commission to spend $100,000, if necessary, to investigate the plan in all its details and to determine its cost.

Water drained from approximately 25,000 square miles of the Rocky mountains will be used in the system. Aided by lakes and tunnels, a great canal will carry it from sterile lakes in Idaho to Rock Lake, Wash., 30 miles south of Spokane, according to present plans. The canal will then run west and south to the Palouse, Pasco and Walla Walla districts in the "Big Bend" country. A network of small canals and laterals will carry the water onto the land, which at present receives only scant rainfall during several months of the year.

In size, the project, it is said, approximates the total present development of all irrigation projects under the United States reclamation service. The project, it has been estimated, by irrigating the arid lands and by converting the "sagebrush into alfalfa," will increase by more than one-half the total aggregate value of all taxable property in the state. The land to be irrigated, it is figured, will support a population more than double the present population of the state.

The volume of water to be carried in the main canal will be approximately 20,000 cubic feet per second. A season's run of the canal would fill a lake 30 miles wide, 100 miles long, and three feet deep.

CHARACTER OF NOVEL IS DEAD.

ROCHESTER, Eng., Feb. 9. (By Mail.)—John Hoodley, assistant verger of Rochester cathedral, who was the original of the character, "Stony Durdles" in Dickens' "The Mystery of Edwin Drood," is dead, aged 83.

John Doodley has a fund of good stories about Dickens and his visit to Gads Hill. It was to him that Dickens confided his wish to be buried beneath the wall dividing the old graveyard from Rochester Castle grounds.
