SEGREGATING ESTATE OF FORMER KAISER

BERLIN, Feb. 10.—The value of the estates which belonged to the former German Emperor and his family may reach 1,000,000,000 marks. In attempting to fix the compensation to Count Hohenzollern for that part of his private property taken over by the state, the authorities have experienced difficulty in deciding what part belonged to the Crown and how much was strictly private.

The difficulty arose in part from the fact that the appraisers have had to inventory properties which have been accumulating for five centuries. The settlement will be dictated, it is stated, by a desire to offer to the Hohenzollerns a generous adjustment. Their acquiescence is said to have been obtained to the bill in the Prussian Diet to pay the former Emperor 100,000,000 marks for property taken and permit him to retain a number of castles, real estate and personal property.

RED CHIEF TRAVELS BY SPECIAL TRAIN

LONDON, Feb. 16. (By Mail).—The special train of Leon Trotsky, the Chief of the Russian Red Army, is a most elaborate affair, consisting of fourteen cars and two powerful engines. It is supplied with a wireless installation capable of receiving communications from Nauen, Lyons and London. One of its most interesting fittings is a printing office which prints Trotsky's paper "on the war." The greatest curiosity of the train is the "garage," which contains six cars, one a powerful French automobile which belonged to the late Emperor Nicholas.

LIFT OFF CORNS!

Doesn't hurt a bit! Sore corns lift right off with fingers.

Magic!

Costs few cents! Drop a little Freezone on that touchy corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then you lift it right off with the fingers.

Why wait? Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of Freezone for a few cents, sufficient to rid your feet of every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and calluses, without soreness or irritation. Freezone is the much-talked-of discovery of the Cincinnati genius.

INDIANS WANT FIVE MILLIONS ALLEGED DUE

REDDING, Cal., Mar. 5.—Uncle Sam's Indian wards are troubled by the high cost of living, according to Ike Jackson, "ambassador" of the Pit River tribe, whose reservation is in the mountains a few miles to the northeast of here.

Jackson has just returned from Washington, D. C., where he set forth some of the problems of his tribesmen, and of northern California Indians in general, before high officials. He was accompanied on the trip by Charles Green of Glenburn, sometimes known as "Chief Grindstone." Both are full-blooded Indians.

The Pit River Indians contend that the government owes them about $5,500,000 for the lands they ceded in a treaty signed in 1851. News dispatches from Washington stated that search was being made in the archives of the White House for the treaty, which, though signed, was never ratified. The Indians hold that it is none the less binding in honor.

"We want money," Jackson insists, "but we won't keep it very long if we get it. White man soon have it all, for Indians' hands have holes in them."

The red man declared that he was listened to with attention by the authorities at the capital, and treated kindly and considerately by them. "But I had to grease the wheels for them," he added.

Jackson, whose home is in Klamath Falls reservation, made a trip through Modoc, Lassen, Plumas and Shasta counties, Cal., visiting every Pit River Indian and sizing up their needs before he set out for Washington.

"We want the Great Father (head of government) to help the starving and needy red men," he said when questioned in an interview, aided by an interpreter. He declared the Indians on allotments are not able to make their own living and the government does not help them.

"We have lots of money in Washington," Jackson said, with reference to the proceeds from the sale of timber and grazing land, "but that does not do the hungry Indians in Lassen, Plumas, Modoc and Shasta counties any good. It does not satisfy their hunger or keep their bodies warm."

Jackson carried with him the skin of a mouse. He told congressmen that he visited the cabin of Chief Buckskin Jack on Hat creek. Buckskin Jack is living at the age of 90 years, but his food is so scanty, avers Jackson, that the mouse at his cabin died.

A bill now before the New York legislature would give women equal representation with men on the state committees of the several political parties.

GOLD STANDARD IS WOEFULLY BELOW NORMAL

WASHINGTON, D. C., Mar. 5.—The man with an income of $2,000, is now actually drawing $870, upon the basis of dollar value in 1913. This startling fact is brought out plainly in a statement to Congress today by Harold N. Lawrie, a nationally known economist for the American Mining Congress. The purchasing value of the ounce of gold which, under statute cannot bring more than $20.67 has, Mr. Lawrie shows, shrunken thru inflation of currency until it is no longer possible for gold to be profitably produced. The expansion of the national credit has lowered the purchasing power of a dollar thru increasing all commodity prices. Based upon the pre-war prices of 1913, these prices gradually advanced from 100 per cent in 1913 to 223 in October, 1919. Each increase in credits has been absorbed by a corresponding increase in commodity prices and has resulted in placing the Nation upon an artificial plane of living. The gold producer finds the actual purchasing power of his ounce of gold is now $9.00 instead of $20.67.

Gold mines of the United States are being closed down at an alarming rate. Many of these can never be re-opened owing to the prohibitive costs of re-timbering and unwatering. Cripple Creek, the greatest American gold camp is taking on the appearance of a city of dead hopes. Great drainage tunnels, monster underground workings, vast areas of expensively constructed plants, whole cities of home are being deserted and thousands of skilled miners are being forced to seek new camps because gold—the basic monetary metal of the United States—cannot longer be produced at a profit.

The manufacturers of the United States used $21,848,800 more gold last year than was produced in the United States. The gold producer lost millions during the year—forced to lose—by peculiar circumstances not easily understood by the layman. The manufacturing jeweler made millions because while his goods mounted in value, he secured the gold at coinage price of $20.67 an ounce, an amount less than the cost of production. Seventy-five years ago the world produced but $30,000,000 in gold per year. In 1915, the world produced $469,000,000. Rapid increase in population, increase in per capita wealth and adoption of a gold standard of finance in all civilized countries together with waste and hoarding absorbed the increasing gold.

The gold stock of the United States suffered a loss in 1919 of $292,796,000 by the excess gold exports over imports. To further deplete the gold reserve, the consumption of gold in the arts and trades during 1919 was $80,337,600, while the production of new gold in the United States and possessions was but $58,488,800. The estimated production in 1920 is $40,000,000. The ratio of the gold reserve to the Federal Reserve net deposit and note liabilities continually declined since 1914, until it reached 44.8 per cent on December 26, 1919, a margin of but 6.8 per cent above that required by the Federal Reserve Act.

Certain officials of the Government have persistently endeavored to minimize the danger of the failure of domestic gold production, but leading financiers of the United States are organizing a campaign to protect the gold standard. The American Bankers Association in 1918 and again in 1919 passed a resolution calling attention of the Nation to the threatening danger. The American Mining Congress called a national gold conference in St. Louis last November and this conference of bankers, economists and miners, by resolution put itself on record as expressing the opinion that no change should be made in the gold standard and unit of value of monetary transactions in this and other countries, but requesting Congress to act, and under that resolution a bill shortly will be introduced in Congress to impose a tax of 50 cents per pennyweight of fine gold contained in all articles which may be sold on and after May 1, 1920, from which fund the producer of the new gold ounce will receive on and after the same date a $10 premium to compensate for the increased cost of production. This is the only proposal yet advanced, whereby the monetary unit is not altered and a free gold market in the United States may be maintained. The bill merely creates the machinery by which the manufacturers of gold in the arts and trades may properly pay the cost of its production, so that sufficient new gold may be produced to satisfy their requirements and make it unnecessary to withdraw their gold from the monetary gold reserve of the country.

loss in production, excessive gold exports and heavy consumption in the arts and trades, the legal amount cannot long be maintained.

The United States today owns approximately one-third of the monetary gold reserve of all nations and is expected to sustain the credit structure of the world. The depletion of the monetary gold reserve, either by excessive use of manufacturing or by the curtailment of production, necessarily will limit that commercial supremacy to which the United States is entitled by virtue of its natural resources, business sagacity and industrial efficiency.
