HOW ROOSEVELT "SIZED UP" THE HOHENZOLLERNS

NEW YORK, Mar. 6.—An intimate pen-picture of the former Emperor of Germany, drawn by Colonel Roosevelt in a letter to Sir George Otto Trevelyan in 1911, which shows him in the light of an "adored" of England, appears in the March number of a leading magazine.

It is the concluding portion of Roosevelt's personal 25,000 word account of his travels in Egypt and Europe following his return from his memorable African hunting trip.

The former President wrote that William agreed with him, during the course of a long interview at Potsdam, that war between England and Germany would be "an unspeakable calamity." The Colonel said that Prince Henry of Prussia, of whom the then Kaiser was "rather jealous" was "a more really powerful" and "cold-blooded man" than the Emperor and that of the two, he was the more hostile to England.

Referring to his visit to Berlin, following "delightful" receptions in Belgium, Holland, Denmark, Norway and Sweden, the Colonel wrote that the German authorities and people showed him every courtesy and civility but that, excepting the university talk, "they really did not want to see me." America, he said, was very unpopular in Germany. The upper classes regarded democracy, he said, as "irregular, unnatural and degrading. The lower classes, on the other hand, were Socialists who regarded me as an enemy rather than a friend. The middle class looked upon me as a representative of an America which consisted of business rivals whose rivalry was irritating and obnoxious."

An interesting sidelight on von Tirpitz, then the Secretary of War, was afforded by the Colonel's reference to an interview with the man who later inaugurated the ruthless submarine warfare. Von Tirpitz, he said, was intensely interested in the voyage of the American battlefleet around the world, and he told the former President that he had not believed "we could do it successfully," adding that the British naval and foreign offices had felt the same way. "He said he expected Japan would attack the fleet while it was on its way round."

"I told him," he wrote, "that I had not expected such an attack, but that I had thought it possible; in other words, that I thought the chances were against it, but there was a chance for it. My point of view at the time the fleet sailed, was that if the Japanese attacked it, it was a certain sign that they were intending to attack us at the first favorable opportunity."

"I had been doing my best to be polite to the Japanese and had finally become uncomfortably conscious of a very, very slight undertone of veiled treachery in their communications in connection with things that happened on the Pacific slope, and I finally made up my mind that they thought I was afraid of them. "Every particle of trouble with the Japanese government and the Japanese press stopped like magic as

CEMENT PRICES OUT OF SIGHT

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Mar. 2.—Cement at suitable price is a problem confronting the state highway commission, members said.

At a recent meeting when tenders were sought of Portland cement in lots of 500,000, 750,000 and 1,000,000 barrels, no bids were received.

Of the cement situation a report by the commission said:

"The bid was asked by the commission in the hope that a lower price might be received by the commission from the cement companies of the state than that now being given by these companies. In a motion adopted by the commission some weeks ago, which preceded the request for bids on the large quantities, it was the sense of the commission that the present cement conditions surrounding the prices made by the cement companies for Portland cement are intolerable and as soon as may be the commission should secure proposals for all or a part of the supply of cement estimated to be needed during the period 1920-1925, inclusive, such proposals to be upon a flat mill base price with the provision that the price shall fluctuate up and down as the costs of labor and fuel change.

"Examination of books to determine these fluctuations were to be made by certified public accountants. The proposal provided that every bid was to be accompanied by a statement of the bidder that it was not made in collusion or agreement with any other cement company.

"The present practice of the cement companies is to submit practically identical bids when requests for prices upon cement to be furnished to the commission are made."

One of the best-appointed and most up-to-date institutions of its kind in Washington, D. C., is the new clubhouse just opened to serve as a headquarters for college women in the national capital. The venture is sponsored by the National Association of Collegiate Alumnae, an organization representing eighty colleges and universities, and with a membership of thousands of college women throughout America.

Jimmy Wilde, the English fly-weight champion, is to receive $10,000 for boxing Frankie Mason at Toledo on March 12.

Jack Britton and Jack Bloomfield will furnish the main bout at Detroit on March 10. Case of a pair of Jacks being "closers" instead of "openers."

soon as they found that our fleet had actually sailed, and was obviously in good trim. As I told von Tirpitz, I thought it a good thing that the Japanese should know there were fleets of the white races which were totally different from the fleet of poor Rojevstevsky." Von Tirpitz and William, he said, told him that they regarded the voyage of the fleet as having "done more for peace in the Orient than anything else that could possibly have happened."

Other portions of the Colonel's letter to Sir George teem with anecdotes and reference to his association with European royalties. The simple, unaffected, democratic sim-are a fine, serious, powerful lot of men and women. But they have the most genuinely democratic society to be found in Europe, not excepting Switzerland; there are only two or three states in the American Union which are as real democracies. They have no nobles, hardly even gentry; they are peasants and small townspeople—farmers, sailors, fisher folk, mechanics and small traders. On this community a royal family is suddenly plumped. It is much as if Vermont should off hand try the experiment of having a king. Yet it certainly seemed as if the experiment were entirely successful."
