

MANY PROBLEMS WILL CONFRONT NEXT PRESIDENT

The next president of the United States must deal with such problems as the restoration of normal economic conditions; reduction of the enormous burden of public taxes; the adjustment of wages and the high cost of living; the protection of the interests of the United States both at home and abroad.

He must be a man of ability as an executive, of breadth of vision and of progressive ideas, of the highest integrity and unselfishness, one who will not depend on his own judgment alone, but will consult with the ablest men of the nation in an effort to shape the wisest policy.

He must be a man bound to no one section of the country or class of people. He must represent the whole United States and all classes of people.

It is with a consciousness of these qualifications that thousands of men and women throughout the United States, who are familiar with the life and works of Frank D. Lowden of Illinois are pointing to him as the man best fitted to undertake the great task of the presidency.

Born of lowly parentage; raised upon a farm; struggling as a country school teacher to secure money for an education; a law clerk working for eight dollars a week in the firm of Herrick, Dexter and Allen in Chicago, to earn his way through law college; a successful lawyer; a United States congressman; a clean and wholesome man of sound business judgment who has fought his battle and won; who knows the farmer; who knows the business man, the professional man, the laboring classes and the great problems before the people, and who above all is fair and kind to all classes as any man who has treated alike with all classes must be; a sterling American and a thorough business man.

At the present time with the terrible extravagance in public and national affairs; with the government burdened with over 250,000 men in the United States army service, and with a huge and expensive army of public servants, many of whom only block the administration of public affairs, it is becoming apparent that a business man is greatly needed by the American people to lead them out of the wilderness of the present conditions. The present crisis in public affairs and particularly in the alarming financial affairs of the nation do not demand "a soldier" nor an "orator," neither do they demand a politician; they demand a clean, wholesome hard-hitting American; a man of tried integrity and business ability and courage; a man of keen, rapid, logical mind plus a business sense, and a capacity for hard work. No candidate before the American public possesses these qualifications taken all together, other than Governor Lowden of Illinois.

In 1896 the American people were confronted with a similar situation. A business man, the governor of the great state of Ohio, who was a lawyer tried in the great state of Ohio, was called forth by the people to lead them out of a wilderness of national mistakes; kind, lovable, and unassuming with a single eye to the interests of the nation he answered the call; history records the fact that since Lincoln he was perhaps the greatest lawyer of his times; William McKinley was a lawyer, a business man, and his great hand brought order out of chaos. His name today is a synonym for business, honor and integrity in public office.

In Lowden, the American people have the call for a second McKinley. In private life a kind and gentle man; a farmer when at home raising the herd of "Lowden cattle" on his ranch near Oregon, a little town in Rock river, in the state of Illinois; Lowden is a plain man, in many respects a counter-part of the lamented McKinley; he rose from the ranks of the plain people; and the great labor and farming vote of Illinois is solidly behind him; the business interests do not hear him for he is fair and just to all classes. RUMORED POLISH GOVT HAS FLED FROM WARSAW

LONDON, Mar. 27.—The Polish government removed Thursday from Warsaw to Thronberg in Polish Posen, 25 miles northwest of Thorn, according to a Berlin dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph company, quoting rumors prevalent there.

LONDON, Mar. 27.—The staff correspondent of the Associated Press stationed at Warsaw filed a dispatch from there Thursday which contained no hint of any intention on the part of the Polish government to leave Warsaw, nor were there any indications in the message of any reason why it should feel impelled to make such a move at this time.

GOES TO CONFER WITH SINNOTT

W. C. Van Emon, secretary and attorney for the Klamath Cattle and Horse association, left this morning for Portland, where he will have a conference tomorrow afternoon with Congressman N. J. Sinnott in regard to the proposed bill for including all lands of the public domain in the eastern part of the county in the national forest reserve, thus placing the disposition of grazing privileges under control of the forest service and quieting past differences between sheep and cattle men over grazing.

The executive committees of both sheep and cattle men's organizations at a conference here earlier in the year agreed upon a measure satisfactory to both, and all that is now apparently necessary is to get congress to act upon it. Congressman Sinnott came west this week to attend the funeral of his brother and a conference with him at Portland will save Mr. Van Emon a contemplated trip to Washington temporarily at least.

ORDINANCE READY FOR COUNCIL ACTION

An ordinance regulating future building of log booms in Lake Ewanna will probably be presented to the city council for action Monday night. Pursuant to decision reached at the last council meeting the ordinance has been drafted by City Attorney Carnahan, after conference with the mill operators with sites on the lake front and their attorneys.

The ordinance establishes the limits at which piling may be driven at 1,000 feet from the east shore, beginning at a designated point in the lake, west of where Second street ends at the lake front, thence south to the city limits. It provides that the mills may only build booms in front of their own property, thus keeping a free way through the lake for other property owners on the lake front and providing against obstruction of dedicated street open on the shore.

LEASES FARM

F. W. Sexton, leader of the county boys' and girls' club work, has leased the Will Humphrey farm of 40 acres near the county infirmary. O. A. C. MILITARY EQUIPMENT GROWS

OREGON AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE, Corvallis, Mar. 27.—Equipment for the military department at the college continues to be received. In addition to the two five-ton artillery tractors and the big repair truck which arrived Monday, two five-ton, two-ton trucks and one ammunition truck, one white reconnaissance car, one Dodge touring car and two motorcycles, all for the field artillery unit have just been received.

The motor transport unit has a number of motor vehicles here with more to arrive soon. In all there will be 22 motor vehicles in use in the military department. The cavalry unit also expects a lot of equipment within a week or so. That the government considers the work done at the college to be of merit is attested by the fact that it has placed upwards of $1,125,000 worth of equipment here in addition to the large number of officers and men as instructors.

U. S. HEALTH EXPERT LEAVES

Major J. G. Geiger, M. D., federal health-bureau expert, left this morning for San Francisco after spending two days here investigating botulitis. Dr. Geiger found only the case reported, the death of 13 of Mrs. Swan Johnson's hens from eating home canned beans. He took two jars of beans from Mrs. Johnson's pantry, canned at the same time and from the same lot as those which are supposed to have killed the hens, for tests in the University of California laboratory. He also exhorted the carcass of a chicken for examination, and shipped it to the university.

Dr. Geiger said that the hens undoubtedly died from botulitis, and commented upon the good fortune of Mrs. Johnson in refraining from testing the beans by tasting.

Sterilization by cooking kills the bacilli of botulism, and Dr. Geiger advises at least two minutes boiling of all home canned fruit or vegetables as a precautionary measure.

New sterilization rules put into effect by California olive canners, he said, have made olives safe. The canned olives which caused recent deaths in the east and middle west, he said, were fatal because lax sterilization had failed to kill the deadly bacteria when they were packed. All the deadly cans were of the 191 pack, as far as investigation has shown.

The olive industry in California has been badly demoralized by the botulitis outbreak and the canners have sustained serious financial loss. There is no doubt that they will cooperate eagerly in following sterilization regulations strictly in the future. Dr. Geiger had no hesitancy in saying that olives will be safe food in the future.

LOCAL HIGH SCHOOL TEAM WINS DEBATE

The Klamath Falls high school team won the debate with the Lakeview team at the opera house last night, the vote of two judges favoring the local team, while the third voted for Lakeview. The judges were R. C. Groesbeck, the Rev. S. J. Chaney and J. H. Brenig.

There was a fairly good attendance and the crowd enjoyed the argument. Scott McKendree and Elizabeth Grigsby maintained the affirmative for the local school. Next Friday they go to Lakeview where they will champion the affirmative side of the same question, whether congress should pass the Smith-Towner bill, or a similar measure, creating a department of education.

Following the debate last night a dance for students, teachers, alumni and parents was held at the White Pelican hotel.

PURE-BRED CALF CLUB MEETS TO ORGANIZE

Members of the Klamath County Pure-Bred Calf club, consisting of 13 boys and girls who received registered Shorthorn calves in the farm bureau livestock committee's recent apportionment, are meeting with Frank Sexton, leader of county club work, at the Temple theatre this afternoon to elect officers and form an organization to promote the development of junior livestock fanciers.

CLOTHES LINE THIEVES ARE STILL AT WORK

Clothes line thieves are still operating, despite efforts of officers to discover their identity. George Drummond, foreman of the Herald's mechanical department, reports the latest loss. A few clothes left out recently disappeared from the line overnight. Until the officers get the thief or thieves it would apparently be wise for householders to remove their laundry from the line at night, also put other articles under cover.

He reiterated his statement of March 8 that he is not a candidate for the presidency, nor was he seeking any public office.

ANOTHER RECRUITING PARTY IS IN TOWN

Capt. J. F. Hepner and First Sgt. V. L. Hedgecoth of the Eighth field artillery, Camp Funston, Kan., will be in the city over the week end seeking recruits. The Eighth field artillery is a completely motorized regiment, equipped with 155 Howitzers. However, they are authorized to accept applicants for any other branch, and can send them to any camp in the United States, or to any one of six foreign countries.

Captain Hepner can accept applicants for one or three years and assign them to his regiment where he promises to give them an opportunity to become expert motor mechanics. They are using $450,000 worth of second hand motors and $45,000 worth of new equipment in the automotive department at Camp Funston. This school is run by civilian motor experts. Any other trade can be found in some branch of the service today.

Captain Hepner will be glad to consult with the parents of any boys over 18 years of age and answer any questions concerning camp life in the peace-time army. The party is stopping at the Hotel Hall.

J. T. Ward, local realty man, was surprised the other day when he received a post card from L. Engel of New York city inquiring about the price for the Main street lot advertised by Mr. Ward in the Herald classified columns. He knows that Herald classified advertising brings results but he had looked upon the field of distribution as purely local until the post card opened his eyes.

LACK OF HOMES HANDICAP TO CITY'S GROWTH

The housing problem in Klamath Falls, both as regards homes for those who desire to reside permanently and accommodations for transient visitors and tourists, is more serious than ever before in the city's history.

It is estimated that 250 houses would no more than relieve the congestion and need for habitable dwellings, and the problem of securing them under present conditions is one that only the co-operation of the entire community can solve.

The results of the community betterment survey will be awaited with general interest in regard to housing conditions. The Herald's opinion is that the committee's investigation will show that 500 new homes would not be too many—taking into account the facts that persons are now living in houses unfit for dwelling purposes because they can get no better, and that homes must be provided for persons attracted by the city's business and industrial growth, in other words for the natural increase in population.

It is a problem that the merchants and manufacturers of the community will have to deal with on some co-operative building plan. No relief can be looked for from private investment—capital is not attracted toward building ventures under present conditions. On the other hand the day has gone by when the wage-worker could build and pay for his own home on terms that he could meet—costs are too high.

Every day this office hears stories of people who want to come to Klamath Falls, people who would undoubtedly make good citizens, but they either learn in advance that there are no houses here, or come, see for themselves, and after a brief, vain round of house-hunting go elsewhere.

The hotel and rooming-house accommodations are proportionately inadequate to care for travellers and permanent single residents. Every public place in town is overflowing nightly and the hotels have established waiting lists. Room wanted advertisements in the Herald for the last week have failed to produce even one answer in several cases, because rooms are not to be had.

It is probable that persons walk the streets here nightly because they can not get room. At least it is a fact that on occasions when a larger crowd than usual is drawn here by some attraction, such as the band concerts this week, or the boxing exhibition last week, there is no place for many to sleep. It was said by one man in touch with the situation that on the night of the boxing bout from 50 to 75 persons were unable to secure beds.
