MOVING DAY
Moving day comes pretty often. Why not solve the problem by buying or building a home. Two or three rooms all your own is better than a mansion owned by the other fellow. If you own a lot and cannot afford to build, better put up a tent for the summer. If you have no lot, we'll sell you one on very easy terms. You say that labor and material are high, and we agree with you, but wouldn't it be too bad to wait for three or four years and then find that labor and material are higher than now. Perhaps we can help you to get located. Come in and talk it over.

Letters From The People

DEPENDS BOXING

Klamath Falls, March 30, 1920.
To the Editor:

With reference to the recent acts of the city council pertaining to boxing in Klamath Falls, I would like to submit the following:

Recently the good people of Seattle, one of the most progressive cities in America, were entertained somewhat at the ultimate expense of one or more of their professional fellow citizens, and, inasmuch as the subject in question is of probable interest at this time to many local residents, I take the liberty to refer to it.

Certain persons of selfish mould and imperfect foresight, chafing at the tardiness of the general public to appreciate their sterling (?) qualifications, arose to the importance of their imaginations in an attempt to bask in the limelight at the expense of others, and they chose, as a stepping stone to cheap notoriety, the oft-buffeted but oftener respected sport of boxing.

The matter was taken up with the district attorney at that point, and it is refreshing to realize that some incumbents of public office have the courage of their opinions. With reference to the abortive attempt of those above referred to in their effort to stop boxing, that official is quoted as follows in the Seattle Post-Intelligencer of Friday, March 26:

"To be candid, I am not inclined, either personally or officially, to close my eyes to common and notorious events; neither am I ignorant on the subject of boxing and prize fighting. If you will take the trouble of witnessing one of these exhibitions, and if you ever saw a prize-fight, your views on the subject might be modified. In my judgment, founded on observation and information they (boxing matches) resemble prize-fights almost as nearly as ping-pong resembles a naval engagement. The bouts, so called, are for a limited number of rounds, of from two to three minutes for a round, with one minute intermission. The men are of necessity in fine physical condition and anything like a real injury is practically unknown. The spectacles are neither infamous nor disgraceful. They are witnessed by good law-abiding citizens of irreproachable character—often good fathers with their fine sons, and other good red-blooded Americans. The exercise of boxing suffers from the old impression of prize-fighting. Boxing is a healthful and a legitimate diversion, which events of the last few years have placed in a proper light. Boxing now takes place in the athletic quarters and under the auspices of legally recognized clubs and associations for the upbuilding of men both morally and physically, as well as being a legitimate diversion for the ultimate profit of promoters. In brutality it has nothing to compare with the physical strain and hazard of a yacht race or a football game."

The candid encouragement of boxing by the government of the United States, officials of the army and navy, and citizen supervision through legally established boxing commissions, as well as the approbation and substantial support of boxing by certain churches and other religious organizations, should make it apparent to the most obtuse of minds and the most self-centered disciples of what might fittingly be termed the "ancient order of ivory domes" that boxing is in reality a thing established and indorsed by every factor of consequence. I believe that citizens who have looked into and studied the matter are mildly amused at the writhings of the occasional deluded ass who pops up with a bray against modern boxing. Such noises have ever reverberated from the beginning of time.

Very respectfully,
N. J. CHAPMAN.

AT THE THEATERS

A play which, it is said, thrills with vital human interest will be shown at the Liberty theatre tonight with Madeline Travers as the star. It is called "Rose of the West," and is described as a vivid photoplay of the northern wilds. The scenes are laid in a country that is visited only occasionally by Indians and the patrol of the northwest mounted police.

The story is that of a brave woman who fights against the plan of her brutal husband to sell their daughter for a gold field he has secretly discovered. At one point the husband, absent for several years, is supposed to be dead, and Miss Travers, as Rose Labelle, is about to marry the head of the mounted police, when her husband appears. The situations are described as intensely dramatic and full of suspense. "Rose of the West" is declared to be the strongest play in which this beautiful and talented star has appeared.

"The Million Dollar Dollies!" The very title suggests luxury, daintiness, refinement—fascination. All of these are realized in this Metro screen production de luxe which will be seen at the Liberty theatre on Friday. And when one discovers that the "Dollies" in question are the famous Dolly Sisters, Roszika and Yancsi, Broadway's celebrated dancers, "the plot thickens."

The charm of these clever girls permeates the entire production, which has been prepared with an Oriental splendor in keeping with the brilliant story that has been written to display the talents of the Dolly Sisters. It reads like a chapter from the Arabian Nights, and deals with a Rajah and a Maharajah, an Indian palace, and other exciting things. The Dollies swim, dance and otherwise disport themselves daintily in beautiful and glittering apparel. And there is a love-story.

Roszika and Yancsi impersonate themselves in this five-act succession of marvels, and naturally no one could improve on that. They are surrounded by a capable cast in production of excitement and charm.
