VENICE RESTORING ANCIENT TREASURES VENICE, Apr. 12, (By Mail). Now that the war is over and Venice has recovered from the nightmare of having her wealth of art destroyed by shell fire or worse still, looted by soldiers, one by one her treasures from underground cellars and distant galleries are being returned to their places. One of her most admired possessions, however, Titian's "Assumption of the Virgin," which is counted among the seven great masterpieces in the world, the pride of the Venetian Academy of Fine Arts, has been returned, not to the gallery, but to its original home in the choir of the beautiful gothic Church of the Frari, for which it was painted by Tizian in 1516.

NEXT WAR TO BE DECIDED IN AIR NEW YORK, May 1.—The first battle of the next war will be fought in the air, Brigadier General William Mitchell, chief of the division of training and operations, army air service, declared in a statement here today, in which he visualized a decisive aerial conflict. The battle, he added, would also be the last one of the war because the losing nation would be helpless and unable to continue hostilities after its air fleet has been conquered. The air service chief predicted that aviation will "completely drive" huge battle cruisers, battleships and other surface ships off the water in the next conflict. "A great air force can render surface craft incapable of operating and stop disembarkations from ships and attacks on shore establishments," he said.

Brigadier General Mitchell in his visualization of the great air struggle of the future described vividly the part he believes giant gun-bearing battle planes, bombers, rigid dirigible balloons and armored aircraft of various designs will play in the next war. With the beginning of war he pictures a huge fleet of dirigible balloons soaring high above the ocean and, from nests on the tops of these, tiny airplanes are launched, locate the enemy fleet and return with the information. The chief air officer, working in contact with the army and navy, sends his air force against the enemy.

The American fighting planes drive from the sky the enemy pursuit and combat planes launched from the decks of enemy battleships. "Then comes the main attack by our air forces against the hostile fleet," says General Mitchell. "The battleplanes are in squadrons of 25 and four of these constitute an attack group. Circling over the enemy fleet they maintain a heavy fire, destroying personnel and anti-aircraft equipment. "With the gun-bearing planes or immediately behind them are the bombers, huge air freighters carrying projectiles weighing up to one ton and depth bombs for effect against submarines. Water torpedoes controlled by wireless from the planes crash into the sides of the hostile vessels sinking the smaller ones and damaging the larger. "Darkness comes and when visibility from the ships has become poor, huge rigid dirigible balloons carrying bombs of enormous weight join the attack, their projectiles crashing through the heaviest armor of the enemy ships.

"As the navy comes up to complete the work done by the aerial forces the battle is over. The enemy, driven from the air and with most of its ships either sunk or out of action, surrenders. The battle has been the first and is also the last of the war. The enemy cannot land his forces."
