SEARCH SEA FLOOR SUNKEN TREASURE

VANCOUVER, B. C., May 4.—To delve into the unknown depths of the sea off the west coast of Vancouver Island and wrest therefrom the treasures hidden for many years is the object of S. Maddison and his party of salvagers who will begin operations early in May.

Last autumn Maddison made submarine cruises along the crags which line the coast of the island and located four large wrecks besides a number of small ones.

Two of the larger he identified as the Pass-of-Melford and the Valencia, and one of the others he thinks is the long lost H. M. S. Condor which disappeared in 1903 and has not been heard of since.

Some of the boats which met their fate on the perilous west coast carried cargoes which at the time of sinking did not make it worth while salvaging, but under present day conditions it is thought there is freight aboard the vessels almost worth its weight in gold.

money in higher education. Their great work of the last few years in raising their standards will all be lost.

To buy equipment, scientific apparatus and instruments, and to build up the libraries and state museums. Science cannot be advanced without apparatus; students cannot study without the up to date reference books in their branches; nor can the scientific and historical records and material of the state be preserved without suitable places.

To develop and promote research. It is the duty of every state to make its share of the annual contribution to the sum of human knowledge, and to the application of new ideas and methods to agriculture and industry.

Such a contribution from Oregon cannot be made without proper provision for research.

To purchase additional lands for building expansion and for agricultural experiment work.

To improve and extend the extension service of the three schools to the state at large. The training of full time residence students is by no means all the work of the higher educational institutions. The agricultural college conducts winter short courses that usually enroll about 2,000 persons; it has a summer school; it assists the federal government to finance field demonstration schools which in 1919 were attended by 13,000 students; it co-operates with the state in enforcing chemical and food laws; it does analyses for Oregon citizens as far as its resources permit; it sends specialists to help solve farm problems; it answered 35,000 letters from Oregon farmers last year; it conducts educational extension work through the press. The state university conducts summer schools in both Eugene and Portland. It carries on about 50 extension courses in Portland. It has more than 600 students in correspondence study. Thousands attend its extension lectures throughout the state. If the college and the university in fact, were to add to their full time campus enrollments of 5,100 the great number who take summer school, winter short course, or extension course work, their official registration would be fully 10,000.

But not one of these many essentials can be accomplished without the concentrated effort of every Oregon voter at the polls on May 21. It is hoped that every Oregon voter will make it his duty to first go to the polls on May 21 and second vote for the higher educational tax act, designated as 310 (X) yes.

Buffon calculated that, if a pair of herrings could be left to breed and multiply undisturbed for a period of twenty years, they would yield an amount of fish equal in bulk to the globe on which we live.

COUNCIL RESCINDS SIDEWALK ORDER

Railroad addition to Plum street and to build a private septic tank as a temporary convenience until a sewer is laid. The neighborhood is building up fast and some 25 houses are not connected with the sewer. Mr. Humphrey said. Residents are desirous of laying cement sidewalks and he asked that the grade be established by the city engineer, which was ordered.

Paving Inspectors.

M. M. Obenchain and M. W. Coseboom were appointed inspectors of the paving which will be laid this summer, at daily salaries of $7 each.

Nuisance Ordinance

An ordinance defining as nuisances the washing of automobiles on any public street or sidewalk, expectorating on the street, strewing rags or rubbish on any public street or in any public building, throwing fruit peels on the street, etc., was adopted. The ordinance very effectively blankets all the common nuisances of the type aimed at.

Building Permits

Lorenz Bros. were granted a permit to build a one-story farm annex to their building on Sixth street, 30 by 75 feet area, estimated cost, $5,000. Other permits follow: John Nichol, to remodel front of building at 125 Sixth and build shed in rear; C. E. Spies, building to house plant of the Concrete Pipe company, lots 15 a and b, block 3, Railroad addition, building to be razed in three months; R. Roas, addition to house at 125 South Ninth street, $350; Mrs. F. W. Sherman, bungalow on Riverside avenue, estimated cost, $2,500; Mrs. F. Heilbroner, addition to house on Conger avenue;

Deerhead grill, corrugated iron addition in rear of restaurant, 10 by 20 feet. W. Shelby.

Mrs. Sadie Hart was granted a permit to conduct a rooming house, called the Klamath rooming house, at 125 South Sixth street.

MANY SERVICE MEN AT O. A. C.

OREGON AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE, Corvallis, May 4.—Service men, in attendance here, numbering more than 1000, are well represented in student activities. Nearly all important student offices are held by ex-service men and their scholastic standing is considered high.

William L. Teusch of Nyasa, president of the student assembly, trained as a flyer. J. H. Rearden of Corvallis, captain of this year's varsity football and baseball squads, John C. Gray of Santa Rosa, Calif., third vice-president of the assembly and several others prominent in student affairs, held commissions as aviators.

Bernard Mainwaring of Newberg, editor of the O. A. C. Barometer; Warren Daigh of Ontario, Calif., president-elect of next year's junior class; Ransom Cook of Portland, president of the freshman class; Ivan Stewart of Corvallis, editor of the "Beaver Annual," and Lloyd Carter of Portland, chairman of the greater O. A. C. committee, are but a few of the prominent students who were in the service.

Nearly 900 men are taking advantage of the state aid. Included among these are most of the 180 men who were physically disabled during the war, and who are drawing federal rehabilitation money. This is proving a great help to them in preparing for various vocations. Some of these veterans, who have not had a full high school education, are by means of hard work, proving themselves capable of handling regular degree work in engineering and other lines.

A Herald Want Ad will sell it.
