SAN FRANCISCO, May 4.—Treasury department reports received by the federal reserve bank of San Francisco show that residents of the twelfth federal reserve district invested $1,382,267 in Thrift and War Savings Stamps and Treasury Savings Certificates during the first 60 days of 1920, or a per capita investment of 20 cents on the basis of the 1910 census report. ARCHITECTS ASK FOR UNIFORMITY

MONTEVIDEO, April 18, (By Mail).—Worldwide legislation to stop the "hideous deformity" of streets, parks, gardens and plazas and to beautify all cities was advocated at the first congress of architects which has just closed its sessions here.

Representatives were present from all South American countries as well as from the United States. The congress in proposing legislation for the adoption of regular plans and the location of public buildings and monuments, recommended the continuation of the system of uniform squares. Classes in "urbanization" in universities and special schools of architecture were also proposed, a resolution stating that these were indispensable for the culture of the people.

Emphasis was also laid on the need of construction with government aid of cheap and hygienic homes for

UNIVERSITY OF PARIS OPEN TO AMERICANS

PARIS, April 17, (By Mail).—American students are to have an opportunity to obtain an education in the higher domains of knowledge under the direction of the faculties of the University of Paris. This announcement has just been made by Dr. Paul Appell, who has become rector of the great French educational institution, in succession to the late Henri Poincare.

Dr. Appell has just told the Associated Press correspondent that classrooms, laboratories and libraries of Paris are to be opened to young Americans. The city of Paris has given a site on the Boulevard St. Germain on which it is proposed to build an American institute where American students can be lodged, have their club and auditorium.

It is intended also to provide for American students opportunities for athletics and hygienic living such as they have enjoyed in America. Dr. Appell states, that, owing to the heavy war burdens imposed upon France, she would be gratified if America would co-operate with her in a practical way in the creation of the proposed American institute.

Unbounded admiration for the spirit of the American nation was expressed by Dr. Appell in an interview granted to the correspondent at the Sorbonne. He declared that he desired intensely to promote opportunities for young Americans to pursue or perfect their studies in France.

Dr. Appell said that the law faculty of the University of Paris whose fame is worldwide was considering arrangements for receiving foreign students who until now had been entitled only to attend special courses. The faculty of medicine also would extend its privileges to foreigners particularly in laboratory research and clinical studies. A special degree of doctor of medicine would be granted but this would not confer the right to practice medicine in France.

Courses for foreign students already had been largely developed by the faculty of letters and Dr. Appell said the university would make doctors' degrees accessible to foreign students without lowering the standards of its requirements which were, he said, much higher than those of any German university. He also indicated that the Pasteur Biological Institute, the Radium Institute and the Institute of Radiotherapeutics and probably the recently established Institute of Optics would co-operate in offering opportunities for American students to study in Paris.
