POT POURRI

By LONE STAR

Hats off to the chief of police. He's cleaning up the city and ridding it of dogs at the same time. Something that needed to be done for some time now. Good for you, Hank. Keep the good work up.

Some old ancient philosopher once said "Love me, love my dog." Well that's all right too, but it would not make much difference to the writer whose dog it was that was running around at large, if it annoyed him the chances are this bow-wow would get a charge of "Shot-Gun pills."

A dog is a dog and as such is entitled to humane treatment. But when dogs become the public nuisance they have become in this city it's time the authorities began to get busy. Keep it up, Hank, and don't let up till the last stray puppy has either a recognized licensed owner, or has taken its flight to the happy hunting grounds.

We wish there were some such law about licensing cats, for then the chief would have his work cut out for him. If ever such a law does pass we can give authentic first-hand information as to where a number of these pests can be found any night between the hours of 10:30 p. m. and 5:30 a. m.

And that brings to mind the fact that almost everything is a blessing in disguise. For if there were no dogs at large the cats would become too bold and would become a bigger pest than the dogs are. And if there were no cats, then we would be overrun with mice. So there you are.

The philosophical way to look at these things since we seem to be doomed to some sort of evil, is to choose the lesser evil and then see what happens.

By the way we have just heard that that rocket which was shot at the moon just arrived. Its delay was due to the fact that it had to take a round about course to keep clear of Hank Wilson and his "Clean-up brigade."

We are informed by the same party that the signals to Mars have been answered at last. It took some time to agree upon a code which both spheres could understand, but at last it seems one has been found. A message was received yesterday from our neighbor Mars asking if any oil had been struck in Klamath Falls yet.

And right here is where some of the wise guys will get stung. You know the kind. Those that throw a damper on everything which might in any way benefit anyone else. I mean the kind of old fogey who, if you offered him a twenty-dollar bill would immediately ask you "What's the matter with it?"

The oil prospects in Klamath Falls are good, furthermore, if you don't believe it just go out and try to buy some stock. It would not surprise the writer in the least to wake up some morning and find a real, genuine oil boom had hit Klamath Falls. But suppose it doesn't. We do not have to depend on oil. The timber industry will keep this town forging ahead for a good many years yet. So don't worry. Real estate will never come down. Not in your or my time at least.

We hear that check forging is on the increase in this city. The writer was bitten himself last week, and to say which reminds one of the fellow who was arrested here a few weeks ago for forgery, and who broke jail. This fellow's modus operandi was unique and we admire his nerve.

He hid himself in a rooming house bluffing the landlady that he had a toothache and then when the matter of the check had blown over, and when the officers had searched from Halifax to Halifax for him, he slipped another bum check over on the landlady and went on his merry way rejoicing.

BIG GOV'T BEEF SHIPMENT HERE

Two hundred and twenty-five quarters of beef, part of the 63,000,000 pounds that the government is distributing at this time from its army surplus, has been received by the Palace market as a first shipment of the Klamath county allotment.

The beef is guaranteed to be of high quality, all corn-fed stock and was furnished to the government by leading eastern packers.

The advertising columns of the Herald today give full details of the arrangements made by the local dealer to assist in the distribution, and all persons interested in lowering living costs—meaning every person in the community except the absolute vegetarian—will do well to read them.

We notice that Bro. Harry Poole returns from the bay city with the remark that someone has taken all the first out of Frisco. Cheer up Harry. You can still get the old reliable hair tonic yet, and nobody will suspect a thing.

James P. Watson, the Los Angeles bluebeard, gets a life sentence. As we understand the case he had about 27 of them already, but did not seem to appreciate them. Possibly this one will last longer than the others did.

The Countess D'Aleria, or Delirium or whatever it is, complains of a shattered romance. Serves her right. The sooner American women get over the idea of marrying foreigners for their money the better. There are several wealthy Americans still in the market, without tangling up with foreigners. No madam, we have no sympathy for you.

REASONS FOR EDUCATIONAL MILLAGE TAX

For the information of Klamath county voters who are unfamiliar with the conditions that caused the higher educational tax act to go on the ballot on May 21, the Herald prints the following statement of the causes and content of the bill.

When the special session of legislature met last January the condition of the three higher educational institutions was laid before it. The three institutions are the state university at Eugene, the state agricultural college at Corvallis, and the state normal school at Monmouth. The institutions had to have help; a fact they had been receiving emergency help off and on from the legislature since 1915. This time, however, help was needed on a big scale.

The joint ways and means committee of the legislature considered the following facts:

History of the Millage Bill In 1913, the legislature passed a millage bill to provide annual maintenance for the state university and agricultural college. Two years previously, one-twenty-fifth of a mill for maintenance had been similarly provided for the normal school. It was the expectation of all concerned in 1913 that the millage income would increase as fast as the institutions were likely to grow. People thought the old-time educational issue had been settled.

Curiously the assessed valuation of Oregon, which had increased 280 per cent in the first seven years of the century, and 122 per cent in the second seven years, began to recede as soon as the millage bill had been passed in 1913. The assessments of 1914, 1915, 1916 and 1917 actually showed a decrease from the assessment of 1913. After 1917 there was again a slight increase, but so slight that in 1920 the income from the state of the three institutions is only three and eight-tenths per cent greater than it was in 1913.

150 Per Cent vs. 3.8 Per Cent Had the institutions grown only three and eight-tenths per cent, there might be no higher educational problem. In fact, however, the increase in full-time attendance at the university and agricultural college has been 150 per cent. There are now 5,100 full-time students at these two

HOOPLA! HOORAY CARNIVAL'S HERE

Oh boy, it's here! The circus is in town. Peanuts, lemonade, everything. Late yesterday evening the show train arrived loaded with mysterious boxes, crates and bundles. Every kid in town is wild with anticipation. Promptly at 7 o'clock tonight the monster merchants' parade will start on its way and immediately after its return to the show grounds the myriads of lights will be flashed on and the fun will have started. It's the biggest show on the coast and it has something to please everybody who attends. So when you hear the band start playing and the shrill notes of the mammoth callope calling you, cast all cares aside and make a bee-line for the circus grounds.

The following merchants will participate in the parade tonight: Southern Oregon Drug Co., Klamath Superior laundry, Eagle pool room, Pastime pool room, K. Sugarman, People's market, Golden Rule, Hirvi Baking Co., L. Van Bellen, Baldwin Hardware Co., Perkins Furniture Co., Club cafe, Star Drug Co., The Gun store, Jewel cafe, Metropolitan garage, Garich grocery, Brandenburg's store, First State and Savings bank, C. L. McWilliams, Charley's place, Imperial garage, Howie garage, Rex cafe, White Pelican garage, Klamath Dye works, Judd Low, O. Hector, O. Peyton, Roberts and Hanks, H. J. Winters, Wirtz Music store, Palace market, Big Basin Lumber Co., G. C. Lorenz, Blue Bird candy store.

institutions as compared with a total of 2,955 in 1913.

The failure of the millage support to increase stopped the building program of the two institutions, as the great increase in student attendance necessitated expending all the income on maintenance. The legislature gave such assistance as it could in the way of building appropriations, but the 6 per cent tax limitation prevented it from doing very much.

In consequence, to meet the 150 per cent increase in attendance, the university and college have been able to add only 15 per cent to their classroom and laboratory space. The plants that were barely sufficient for the respective student bodies in 1913 are now, in 1920, overloaded and overcrowded beyond all educational reason.

Meanwhile the Dollar Falls

The difficulties of the schools were further increased by the tumble in the buying power of the dollar. The dollar of 1913 is estimated to be worth only about 45 cents at this time. The three schools accordingly, with a 150 per cent growth, have in purchasing power only about half of the original income. Or, as one of the pieces of literature received by the Klamath county alumni puts it: If a man had a family of four in 1913, and an income of $100 a month, and if in 1920, he had a family of 10 and an income of only $45 a month, he would be in the same position as the state university and the agricultural college are today.

Legislature Passes the Bill.

Having heard the foregoing case in detail with statistics, the facts being further borne out by an examination made by E. B. Stevens, a neutral statistician from the University of Washington, the joint ways and means committee recommended to the legislature that 1.26 mills be provided for the three institutions, of which 1.2 mills was to go to the university and agricultural college in the proportion of three to four, and the remaining six one-hundredths of a mill was to go to the normal school. The legislature passed the bill in both houses, but was compelled to refer it to the people because of the 6 per cent tax limitation. The attorney general labeled the bill higher educational tax act, and as such it will appear on the ballot on May 21.

CITY HONORS OLD FIRE DEPT. VETERAN

GREAT FALLS, Mont., Apr. 30.—Seventeen years in the service of the fire department of this city recently were terminated for "Dewey," a 25-year-old fire horse, with civic ceremonies that included a public banquet, numerous speeches of felicitation and an official proclamation issued by Mayor Louis Newman.

"The city of Great Falls returns to you thanks and such gifts as may be given in appreciation—green pasture and running water in the summer time and a warm stall and food you love when blasts of winter blow, and freedom from bridle and harness forever," the mayor's proclamation said, after reciting the service the old horse had performed for the city.

"Women and little children have slept in security," it declared, a "hundreds of thousands of dollars have been saved by the fidelity of this animal."

More than 100 guests were present, including city and state officials Dewey, decked in rosettes and ribbons, stood at the head of the sparsers' table, beneath a big horsehair. His dinner consisted of oats, with desert of sugar.

Except as far as the sugar was concerned, Dewey maintained that out the ceremony an air of unceasing boredom, probably due, it was suggested, to his long years of public life.

Ireland's greatest bog is the F of Allen, which has an area of about 240,000 acres, and extends into five counties.
