Should William G. McAdoo be elected to the Presidency he would take office at the same age as Washington, Jefferson, Madison and John Quincy Adams, each of whom was fifty-seven years old at the time of inauguration. In their aspirations for the Presidency, Leonard Wood, Miles Poindexter and Hoke Smith may find ground for encouragement in the prevailing absence of middle names among those chosen to the higher office, no fewer than nineteen Presidents having been so blessed. Should Leonard Wood be elected to the Presidency he would be the first President furnished by New England since 1852, when Franklin Pierce, of New Hampshire, was elected.

POT POURRI

By LONE STAR

Attorney General Webb is going to take charge of the graft prosecution in San Francisco. We wonder if they will buy him too.

Lone Star tries to keep on the right side of the law at all times, but should we ever decide to depart from the straight and narrow path, we know of no place on God's green earth in which we would rather do it than in Frisco.

Incidentally we shall be in Frisco in a day or two and when we return we will advise Harry Poole about where the frik went to. It's just possible that the frik is still there and Harry did not know where to find it.

Still if anyone ought to be able to discover the haunts of Bohemianism Brother Poole ought to. We heard a story about Harry the other day and we pass it on to you, on condition that you do not tell him where you got it. Here is the story: Some years ago Harry was taken with a heavy cold which settled on his lungs. The poor fellow tried doctor after doctor and still could get no relief. Finally, in desperation he consulted a famous specialist, going all the way to Chicago for the purpose.

Harry was shown into the specialist's office and when his turn came was ushered into the sanctum sanctorum of the great surgeon himself. Harry stated his trouble and after keeping this big specialist busy with questions for about three hours finally grabbed his hat and made for the door. "Well doctor," said Harry. "Thank you very much, see you later." "Well, but hold on here," said the world famous surgeon, "you forgot to pay me." "Pay you, for what?" returned Bro. Poole. "Why for my advice of course." "Oh," returned Harry "I'm not going to take it."

Lone Star does not vouch for the truth of this story.

We notice that Carranza has had to flee again. That reminds us of the story of the Sunday school class of little fellows who sat listening with rapt attention to the teacher telling the story of Lot and his wife. "You know," said the teacher, "Lot was told to take his wife and flee." Suddenly a little hand at the back of the classroom shot up. "Well, Willie—What is it?" asked the teacher. "Please, mum," said little Willie, "where did Lot get the flea?"

We saw in a Frisco paper the other day that a car full of tourists left the road, swished round a corner, went down a steep embankment, turned four complete somersaults, landed upside down, and never hurt one occupant of the car. No doubt in the world as to what make of a car that one was.

Incidentally, now, don't you think Henry Ford is entitled to a seat in the U. S. senate, just on general principles?

PLEASE DON'T SPIT ON THE FLOOR—That leaves us the walls and ceilings.

Lone Star happens to know that the above is an absolute fact.

Federal Prohibition Agent Shaen in San Francisco destroyed several thousand gallons of wine, whisky, etc. Shaen carried the wet stuff out to the sidewalk, and for several minutes a stream of "red likker" wended its way down into the sewer. Attracted to the scene, thousands of autoists parked their cars across the street and started to scoop up the booze, some in cups, some in hats and others in glasses. When decent respectable, car owning citizens will go that far to get a drink, Lone Star believes they sure are entitled to it, and would be in favor of repealing the Volstead act in favor of people like these.

At that we wonder how a vote by the people on national prohibition would pan out at this time. There were several hundred thousand voters across the pond when that bill was slipped over.

A student of the U. C. is suing the sheriff of Petaluma county for $20,000. This student was arrested and spent 10 hours in jail—$2,000 an hour. The Lone Star would not object to serving 30 days at that price.

The names of none of those mentioned in connection with the presidential nominations this year contain the "lucky 13" letters. Presidents whose names contain the mystic number of letters are Andrew Jackson, James Knox Polk, Zachary Taylor, James Buchanan, Andrew Johnson and Woodrow Wilson.

Mention of the name of William H. Taft in connection with the Republican presidential nomination serves to recall the fact that only one ex-President—Mr Cleveland—has been elected president.
