LOWDEN—A GREAT MAN AMONG A GREAT PEOPLE

Tomorrow the voters of Oregon will express their preference for the Republican candidate for president. Reports from Portland indicate that the contest has finally sifted down to two names, Hiram Johnson of California and Frank O. Lowden of Illinois.

The supporters of Governor Lowden in Oregon feel confident that the great record of Lowden as United States congressman and later as governor of 4,000,000 people will carry him to victory.

Born in Sunrise, Minnesota, in 1861 Lowden has in the words of Theodore Roosevelt of whom he was a close personal friend "been rising ever since." During the month of October, 1918, Roosevelt spent three days at Springfield as the guest of Lowden. It was during this visit that Roosevelt suggested Lowden's availability as a candidate for the presidency. The Progressives of Illinois support Lowden because of his fairness. The conservatives support him because of the fact that he is a man of strong integrity and sound business judgment.

His life, like the life of Lincoln, has been one of struggle. Born the son of a village blacksmith in Minnesota; raised on a farm in Iowa; a country school teacher at the age of 15 years; sweeping the floors of his school to raise a little additional money to attend college; after two years compelled to quit college and go back to school teaching to raise more funds to continue; graduating as the valedictorian of his class; clerking as a law clerk at the age of 31 years for $5 a week, in the firm of Herrick, Dexter and Allen, and attending a night law school where he again graduated as the valedictorian; then the leader of the Chicago bar; elected to the United States congress; retired voluntarily on account of over-work, and entered the cattle industry; then again called forth from private life to be elected by an overwhelming majority as governor of Illinois. The story of his life, like the life of Lincoln, is a constant reminder of the fact that in America, the greatest gifts of the people are within the reach of every American no matter how humble his birthright nor how great the poverty of his parents.

The people of Illinois love Lowden, as the people of the United States are learning to love him. His statesmanship has been proven; his great business ability is undoubted; his integrity unquestioned; he looms far above any other candidate before the public when his experiences and qualifications are considered. An American who sprang from the common soil and the common people. A friend of labor and fair to all classes of the people.

His patriotism is unquestioned. For four years lieutenant colonel of the 1st Illinois. His son, Pullman Lowden, served in the ranks overseas and was in active service at the battles of Argonne and at St. Mihiel. He stands for strict economy in national affairs; for the installation of the budget system at Washington; for a radical revision of all forms of taxation; the rejection of the proposed "Wilson treaty in its present form"; a general revision of the revenue laws; a reduction in the cost of primaries and elections; a national eight hour day law for women; more adequate legislation for the protection of child labor. For these principles he fought in Illinois and drafted them into the laws of that state. Lowden is distinctly an American in every fiber of his mind and body. He is a great business man, a greater statesman, and above all an executive of great character and force.

Reports from the Lowden headquarters at Portland indicate that he will carry the state; Johnson, who is also a great American, is running him close, with Wood losing as the primaries approach. Lowden's clean methods of campaign have won for him thousands of friends both in Oregon and elsewhere.

THIS IS YOUR OPPORTUNITY

Tomorrow will be your opportunity to stand by your country and by your vote register whether you want men in office who will give this county a chance. Too often in the past when it came to a question of Klamath county or some other section of the state, Klamath has gotten the worst of it. Let us put a stop to that this year. Let us elect men whom we know will be friends of Klamath county and who will give it a square deal.

There are four men that the voters of the county should vote solidly for. They are Sinnott for congress, Wiley for state senator and Overturf and Brattain for representatives in the lower house of the state legislature.

We must keep Sinnott in congress. Millions of dollars for the completion of the Klamath project are at stake. But this is not all. Other legislation equally vital to the county is and will be before congress. Sinnott is the man to guard our interests in this legislation, and we can't afford to weaken his influence by voting against him.

Wiley, Overturf and Brattain are men we need in Salem. They stand for what the people of Klamath need. They are proving beforehand that they are square by refusing to enter into any secret deals or making any secret promises. With these men in the legislature we will have no need to worry about the scheme to change the Dalles-California highway. We will know we will be protected in the matter of legislation having to do with the rights and interests of the people to the lands and waters of the Upper Klamath Lake. We will know that in the legislative apportionment bill we will get a square deal. We will be sure that Klamath will get her share of the highway money and get it now. It is for these reasons principally that The Herald has been urging you to vote for Wiley, Overturf and Brattain. Klamath county needs them. Help put them there.

THE MAN WE NEED

Don't forget when you come to vote for your member of the legislature that H. J. Overturf of Bend stood by Wiley. Up in the northern end of the district Upton and Burdick have joined forces for the purpose of punishing Overturf because he had the sand to play the game square and support the man for the state senate that he thought best fitted for the job. That is why he is making the fight for Wiley. A man with this kind of sand is the man we want to represent us. He is square and honest. Then, too, Overturf has served his time in the logging camp, sawmill and on the farm. He owns fifteen hundred acres of land now. By experience and natural bent he knows what we need. Burdick, on the other hand, has sought to saddle on the people of Deschutes county the Deschutes project, using all the influence that has come to him through the votes of these people to force them to dig up for this private irrigation company. That is the difference between the two men.

There is just one thought that The Herald would like the republican voters to carry to the polls with them tomorrow when they go there to cast their ballot in their choice for president: If General Leonard Wood should be elected president the secretary of agriculture in his cabinet will be Gifford Pinchot. That means a return to Pinchot policies of conservation. With such a prospect, even remote as it may seem, Oregon's delegation should never be for Wood. Those who can't vote for Lowden can vote for Johnson; those who can't vote for Johnson can vote for Lowden. Either man will make the West a square deal, and it won't be a Pinchot deal. That is something that won't happen if Wood should win.

The women of Pitcairn Island, descended from English sailors and Otaheitan mothers, are described as being unusually graceful as well as vigorous. It is a common sight to see the young women of the island go up and down the steep rocky shores carrying barrels of water or other heavy burdens on their shoulders, apparently with as much ease as the young men do.

No President or ex-President has died out of the United States. The first "dark horse" candidate elected to the Presidency was James K. Polk.

TAXPAYERS ARE MISTAKEN ON MILLAGE BILL

It is the common opinion among a goodly number of taxpayers that the Higher Educational Tax Measure to be voted upon tomorrow will cause a considerable drain on the taxpayers of the state. Such is far from being the case.

Taxpayers in Oregon pay, as a rule, from 30 to 50 mills on assessed valuation. The proposed Higher Educational levy is 1.26 mills. The citizen paying 30 mills on an assessed valuation of $1000 has $30 in taxes. If the Higher Educational tax act passes, he would have $31.26. If his tax rate is uncommonly high, and he is paying, say, 50 mills, his taxes on $1000 of assessed valuation would increase from $50 to $51.26. That is, this measure for the saving of higher education in Oregon involves a tax increase of about one twenty-fifth where the rate is extremely low, and about one fortieth where it is extremely high.

The books of the three schools are always open to the public inspection. Expenditures are made by the presidents, under direction of boards of regents, who serve without pay. All vouchers go through the office of the secretary of state and must conform to the rules governing disbursement of state monies in any state institution.

Interscholar athletics are not financed in whole or part by state money. The students pay for coaches, trainers, travel and equipment, through student fees and gate receipts.

Higher education pays for itself over and over again. For example, the single achievement of the department of poultry of the Oregon Agricultural College in raising the average of egg production in Oregon has been worth more to the state in actual dollars than maintenance costs of higher education from the beginning.

The achievement of the college in discovering ways of killing out certain weeds, and eliminating certain pests have saved the state more money than higher education has cost it.

The same can be written of its achievements in animal husbandry, in wheat experimentation, in dairying and in other branches of agriculture and industry.

The single work of the state university at Eugene in training high school teachers for Oregon justifies its existence. But training for high school work is only one of dozens of practical state university activities that make for a better civilization. Higher education is a true safeguard against anarchy on the one hand, and against aristocracy and reaction on the other. These of all days in the world's history are the days when higher education is needed.

The only way that Oregon boys and girls can have the same advantages as the boys and girls of other states in the union is by the passage of the Higher Educational Tax Measure at the polls on May 21. This bill is known on the ballot as 310 (x) Yes.
