Sir Marcus Samuel, the man who has wrested control of the world's petroleum output from the Standard Oil Company, laid the foundation of his fortune by selling shells and other souvenirs at a popular English seaside resort.

TUCSON, Ariz., May 24.—Travel-stained and weary, six nuns who had braved hundreds of miles of sand and heat on the southwestern desert, rode into Tucson on the jolting stage from San Diego. That was in 1870 when Indians and white outlaws were the perils of the road. On May 26 of this year, the semi-centennial of the coming will be observed here by Catholics from all parts of the state.

On the morning of that day, Rt. Rev. Henry Granjon, bishop of Tucson, will celebrate pontifical high mass at St. Augustine's cathedral. Afterward a jubilee will be held at St. Joseph's Academy, founded by the order to which the pioneer nuns belonged.

These pioneers came from the mother house of Carondelet, St. Louis. They travelled down the Mississippi to New Orleans, took ship around the Horn of San Diego and completed their long journey by stage.

For forty-five years Sir William Soulsby has been the official secretary to the Lord Mayors of London.

KILLED THE FEUD SPIRIT

"Burns of the Mountains" Educated the Feud Out of the Hearts of Kentucky Mountaineers

It is seldom that we read now of feud killings in the mountains of Kentucky, and the man who did more to kill the feud spirit than any other single person is coming to Chautauqua on the second night to speak on the "Remaking of the Kentucky Mountaineers." He is President James A. Burns of the Onelda Institute, more familiarly known as "Burns of the Mountains." An upstanding American of purest Anglo-Saxon lineage, he was born in the Kentucky Mountains and was drawn into the feuds. His amazing story has been printed in some of our leading magazines and told in story by such famous writers as Emerson Hough. His story of the Kentucky mountaineers and their efforts to overcome the handicap of environment is one of the most thrilling told from any platform.

CAL. GOVERNOR URGES POWER DEVELOPMENT

PASADENA, Cal., May 24.—Utmost development of California's latest hydro-electric resources was urged by Governor William D. Stephens today before the National Electric Light Association convention.

Production of hydro-electric energy fast is becoming the basic industry of all, the governor said, and "production, manufacturing, commerce, trade, transportation and communication at some time in the future will become entirely dependent upon the power that is stored in running water."

Governor Stephens' address in part follows:

"Nature, so prodigiously lavish in bestowing her blessings on California in many directions has denied us one thing—we have no great beds of coal. True, our wonderful oil fields, like oil fields and coal deposits everywhere throughout the nation, are being heavily drawn upon. There is only so much oil and so much coal under the ground. That, which once was thought to be almost inexhaustible supply, at sometime will become exhausted.

"It is inevitable that the day will come when industry here upon the coast, as well as elsewhere throughout the land, must depend upon the growing and driving power in falling water for the production of all things necessary to sustain life and essential to comfort and happiness in our complex civilization.

"The development here of cheap and permanent hydro-electric power, together with our fertile lands, and tremendous natural resources, and our easy accessibility to the markets of the world by cheap water transport and the whole Pacific coast region the workshop of the nation. Here upon these shores, production, manufacturing and commerce, in the almost immediate future, will find their highest fruition.

"In the development of its tremendous water power California already has made a substantial beginning. Approximately 700,000 horse power electrical energy is being produced from the 75 hydro-electric plants now in operation in California and I have been informed that there is now under construction in this state other hydro-electric plants which will add a further supply of about 150,000 horse power to the present installed capacity.

"While we are intensely gratified at the splendid showing which California has made in the development of hydro-electric power, yet we realize that this development, great as it is, measured by the tremendous possibilities existing here, may be said to have only just begun. Without engaging in unduly expensive construction for the storage and conservation of the water of small streams it has been estimated that it is practical to develop in California at about the same unit cost as past construction, approximately five times the present installed capacity now in operation and under construction."

Army life at one time appealed to Sir Hamar Greenwood, the new Chief Secretary for Ireland. He has told how at sixteen years of age he ran away from his Canadian home to join the army. His father followed and found his young hopeful doing sentry duty with all the pride and jauntness of a born soldier. "The old gentleman was for giving me a sound thrashing then and there," says Sir Hamar. "But I turned out the guard and had him arrested for attempting to rush the sentry."

Don't Be Content With "Hobson's Choice!"

More than a hundred years ago, Toby Hobson of Cambridge kept the only horses for hire in town. But his customers had no choice save to take the horse nearest the door, whether little or much to their liking.

So "Hobson's Choice" has come to mean: "Take this or none."

Today, through the advertisements in this and other papers, you have all the world to choose from. Yes, through Advertisements, the world comes to your door with its wares. Advertisements give you the opportunity for comparison and selection of almost anything you want or need.

Advertisements are an accurate index of what other people are buying, selling, wearing, eating, doing, learning; of what the world is accomplishing and how, where, and by whom it is being accomplished.

Form the habit of reading advertisements just as regularly as you read the front page. You will find it profitable and mightily interesting as well.
