

QUARANTINE ON SPREADERS OF SOCIAL DISEASES

Quarantine has been placed on the house on Oak street, known as "The Tulce," as the result of the investigation of Dr. J. M. Murphy, assistant surgeon of the United States public health service and venereal disease control officer for Oregon, and the local health authorities. According to a bacteriological analysis at the Warren Hunt hospital Saturday all six of the women inmates of the place were infected.

Dr. Murphy left the city this morning but said he would be back, or some other representative of the health service would be here, in two or three weeks to see how the campaign was progressing.

In the meantime the district attorney is preparing to proceed against Ora M. Young, said to be the proprietor of "The Tulce," under the redlight abatement act.

Just how far the moral effects, or the medical effects for that matter, of the campaign will extend is a matter for speculation.

Dr. Murphy uncovered one negro place near the bridge where a woman was plying the prostitute's vocation. While suspicion was roused regarding several rooming houses no direct evidence was found. Two or three women in private homes were cited to appear before the health officer. Under the provisions of the public health statute the police power given the health service is broad and arrests can be made of any one refusing to submit to examination when reasonable evidence to warrant the examination is offered.

Danger of arrest, however, did not deter three suspects from flouting the health officer's mandate and refusing absolutely to appear for examination. So it would seem that the machinery for enforcement of the law must be overhauled in this respect if there is to be general working out of the program.

Complaint—an old one—is coming from the individuals under quarantine.

"You have deprived us of the only means of livelihood we know," they asserted to the local health officer. "How will we live while we are under medical treatment? The law forbids us to leave the state. Another law forbids our employment as handlers of food. People who fear what society may say will not employ us. Must we starve?"

And old as the question is—so old also is the lack of an answer that really answers the outcry.

A meeting of the Klamath and Lake Counties Medical association was held Saturday evening—the first since before the war—and the matter of general co-operation by local physicians in the health crusade was introduced. All the doctors present favored the campaign and emphasized the need of it and the danger of neglect.

PUTTING IN PUMPING SYSTEM AT MERRILL

August Bueasing was in the city yesterday for a load of reinforced redwood pipe, to be used in connection with an irrigation system that he is installing near Merrill. For over three years Mr. Bueasing has been trying to get electric power for pumping, but finally had to abandon the effort and adopt other means. He is installing a 25-horsepower semi-Diesel gas engine and with this he is going to irrigate 120 acres of land, raising the water 25 feet and piping it a distance of 380 feet.

It is estimated that the cost of handling this plant, based on a 30-day irrigation period, will be about $200 a season.

ELKS REPORT SPLENDID TRIP

Twenty-five new members were initiated into the mysteries of Elksdom at Lakeview Friday night and 11 candidates were initiated at Alturas Saturday night by a flying caravan of Elks from this city which made a week-end trip over the territory.

Much interest was shown in both places, as witnessed by large attendance at the meetings. Parades preceded the lodge meeting in both towns and bounteous banquets followed.

The following local Elks made the trip: W. W. Wiley, district deputy grand exalted ruler; G. W. Houston, exalted ruler; M. P. Lawrence, exalted ruler; Dr. P. M. Noot, exalted ruler; Judge D. V. Kuykendall, Charles Martin, L. E. Sullivan and Fred Collins.

The party were royally entertained at both Alturas and Lakeview and report a most splendid trip.

The lodge vacation starts the first of June and Exalted Ruler G. W. Houston announces that there will be no further meetings of the local lodge until the second Thursday of the month.

Joe Schultz, who resides at 42 Main street, and Mrs. May D. Wilson, were married Saturday evening by Justice N. J. Chapman.

Charles V. Shaffer, an employe of the Algoma Lumber company, and Clara A. Gardner, were also married Saturday by Judge Chapman. They will live at Algoma.

A marriage license has been issued to Edward L. Kellogg and Edna A. Bradburn of this city.

LEGION OPEN AIR DANCE TOMORROW

The first open air dance in the new pavilion on the corner of Seventh and Pine streets will be held tomorrow night under the auspices of the American Legion. Admission will be free, the dance being a jitney affair in which those who dance pay for the privilege, but spectators are not taxed. Everybody is cordially invited.

The new pavilion has 7000 square feet of smooth surface for the diversion of the devotees of Terpsichore and there should be plenty of room for everyone, although the management expects that the crowd will use every available foot of the spacious platform.

WEATHER REPORT

Oregon—Tonight and Wednesday, fair and warmer; gentle northerly winds.

sized the need of it and the danger of neglect.

So the crusade against social disease has been started. It has the support of the physicians and unquestionably of the majority of the citizens of the community. The district attorney has promised legal action toward enforcement of the abatement act. All seems promising for a physical and moral clean-up, but the problem is complex and the cynical will await some definite results before applauding too vigorously.

LOCAL TWIRLER GATHERS SCORE OF STRIKEOUTS

Earl Hilton, local lad, gained laurels for himself Sunday in defeating the strong Yreka team by a one-sided score of 19 to 1. Hilton was easily the master throughout the game, the Yreka team was completely at his mercy at all times. The one score was the result of a wild hitch by Hilton in the seventh. Hilton allowed the visitors only one hit and struck out 20 men. This is a record on the local field.

Hilton is a native of Klamath county and well known to all, but as a pitcher he was a stranger until Sunday. Hilton learned most of his pitching during the two years he was with Uncle Sam's forces. To the local experts he looks like a comer.

It was a bad day for a ball game, but the fans turned out in surprisingly good numbers, indicating that they have some of the old enthusiasm so noticeable in the days gone by, left yet. The game was not the close game the fans like to see. Klamath making two scores in the first inning and from then on tallying from 1 to 5 in every inning.

Tyrer, the left handed lad who pitched most of the game for Yreka, was hit hard throughout his stay in the box. The locals getting 19 hits off him and two from his successor. He was relieved in the seventh by Willis, who was no more successful than was Tyrer.

It is rumored that before the game started the betting was in favor of the visitors. It is also rumored that the local betting men will be more careful next time as Klamath has a team that will come second to none. The coming season is looked upon as one of great success from every standpoint.

The Klamath team showed big league form Sunday. Every man handled his part in the best way possible, and the team as a whole worked like they had been playing together all season. Klamath only made four errors during the game.

Next Sunday Grants Pass plays on the home field. From all the available dope the Grants Pass club has a stronger lineup than has Yreka although the two haven't met this season. It can always be expected that a good team come from the Rouge river town.

MONEY RAISED TO WAGE WAR ON GRASSHOPPERS

One hundred and fifty persons gathered at Malin Sunday to consider ways and means for fighting the grasshopper plague in that section. Before settling down to plan the extermination campaign the party took automobiles and visited some of the infested fields where the work of the pests was pointed out by County Agent Thomas and others. The object lesson brought clear realization of the serious consequences of indifference to the plague and on returning to the hall the meeting declared war to the hilt against the long-legged destroyers.

It was voted to assess each acre in the infested area a maximum 25 cents to provide funds for the eradication campaign. This is calculated to raise $2,500, or more. Half that sum was represented in those present at the meeting. Any surplus left after the campaign is closed will be refunded pro rata to the contributors. It will take 10 days or two weeks to reach the peak of the fight against the insects.

H. D. Newell, reclamation service project manager, told the meeting he would do all in his power to secure assistance from the government.

A committee of three was appointed to supervise the financing of the campaign and oversee it generally. They are James Otoman, L. R. Holbrook, Frank Klabruba.

The county farm bureau has 1,000 pounds of arsenic on the road for use in the campaign. One pound will poison 100 pounds of bran, so the shipment will prepare 10 tons of bran mixture. Each 100 pounds of mixture will poison from one to two acres on the hatching grounds to 10 or 15 acres where the pests are more widely scattered.

On Monday stockmen and others interested met with the county agent at the Klamath agency to devise plans for fighting grasshoppers on the Upper Marsh. An assessment was levied on a basis of 19 cents an acre, which up to the present has raised about $1,000. Two or three times this amount is necessary, Mr. Thomas believes, although if action is prompt the pests may be exterminated with less expense.

The committee in charge of operations on the Upper Marsh are B. S. Grigsby, F. R. Hamilton and S. J. Callahan.

On the Upper Marsh between $40,000 or $50,000 worth of valuable forage is at stake in the war on the grasshoppers. In the Tule Lake section the loss, unless the pests are controlled, would be much larger as all the crops of the productive district are threatened and the loss would run into hundreds of thousands of dollars if the grasshoppers were left to their own destructive course.

PHYSICIANS BELIEVE SNYDER WILL LIVE

Fred Snyder, the Odessa logger who was run over by a five ton truck last week and severely injured, is still improving and apparently, if the same progress toward recovery continues, will ultimately survive the accident.

Snyder received a fractured skull as well as serious internal injuries. Surgeons will trephine the fractured skull as soon as possible. Ever since the accident, despite the fracture, the patient has been conscious at intervals. It is considered miraculous by surgeons that he could have received the hurts he did and live.

WILL DEVELOP HOT SPRINGS

Hot springs on the old Dave Vinson place on the west side of Langell valley that have long been known to the Indians and the early settlers of the valley for their medicinal properties are to be commercially utilized by David Turner, who purchased the Vinson ranch last fall.

Mr. Turner's plans for development have already progressed to the point where he has three baths equipped for use of sufferers from rheumatism and other maladies which the waters have proved highly beneficial in treating. He expects, as the fame of the resort spreads, to install more conveniences and ultimately to make the place one of the leading health resorts of the state.

Camping facilities are available at present for automobile parties and a number of persons have taken treatment so far. One Bonanza resident, so badly crippled by rheumatism that he was carried to the springs on a stretcher, walked away completely relieved after a few days' course of baths and treatment.

The resort is nine miles from Bonanza on the main road on the west side of the valley. It has been a gathering place for generations for Indians from both Oregon and California who know the medicinal properties of the waters and for many weeks of this year parties of Indians have followed the custom of generations and camped on the Turner place, bathing and drinking of the water of the spring. Many startling cures have resulted, says Mr. Turner.

So far no analysis of the water has been made, but Mr. Turner is planning to have a competent chemist make examination of a sample of the spring's product at once.

DRISCOLL IS APPOINTED ON COMMISSION

Governor Olcott today advised C. F. Stone that he had appointed James H. Driscoll fish and game commissioner to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mr. Stone.

The announcement that Mr. Stone has resigned will come as a surprise to the people of the county, for it was not generally known that he had reached such a decision. In the retirement of Mr. Stone the county and state suffer a distinct loss, for no better qualified person in Oregon could be found for the office than he. He has never missed an opportunity to promote the fish and game interests of the state and his serving as commissioner proves this, for the service has been given at a heavy sacrifice to him. Even in his resigning he has not lost sight of the purpose that kept him on the commission for several years after the desire to resign took hold of him—the making of Oregon the sportsman's paradise—for his resignation carried with it a recommendation that secured as his successor a man well qualified to step into the shoes of the best fish and game commissioner Oregon will ever have.

Governor Olcott exercised rare wisdom in appointing Mr. Driscoll. He is particularly well equipped for the office, for by personal experience he

PHARMACY FOR CHILOQUIN SOON

An up-to-date pharmacy will be opened in Chiloquin at an early date by Frank B. Robinson, proprietor of the Warren Hunt hospital pharmacy of this city, according to announcement made by Mr. Robinson today.

Mr. Robinson was in Chiloquin Saturday and made final arrangements for a site. The pharmacy will be located on Main street. The building will be erected at once, and as soon as it is finished and the stock is secured the place will be opened for business.

The growth of Chiloquin and the possibilities of much greater development there cause Mr. Robinson to believe that the venture will be highly successful. He will spare no expense in giving the community an entirely modern and fully equipped drug store which will supply all present needs and make allowance for far greater development of the community.

MANY JOIN IN OBSERVANCE OF MEMORIAL DAY

Decorative day services for the martyred heroes of their country's wars passed off according to program and without a hitch of any kind to mar the impressiveness of the ceremonies.

In the morning a military parade, composed of veterans of many wars and the Boy Scouts marched from the city hall to the cemetery and strewn flowers upon the last resting places of soldiers there.

The parade was led by Capt. O. C. Applegate, grand marshal, Capt. J. B. Lee, Confederate veteran, and Wm. H. Shook, standard bearer, on horseback. Mr. Shook was the company standard bearer in Captain Applegate's company during the Modoc war and came from his home in Dairy especially to participate in the parade. Eighty men of the local Legion post, and other veterans, led by J. H. Carnahan, post commander, followed on foot, double column, and back of them marched the defenders of tomorrow, the Boy Scouts, under command of Scoutmaster R. S. Fry.

At the cemetery, due to the thoughtfulness of ladies of the Relief Corps, the ex-service men found that all soldiers' graves had been marked with flags. Blossoms were laid on every mound and at the last one the Rev. S. J. Chaney made an appropriate address and offered a brief and impressive prayer.

In the afternoon another parade, composed of veterans, Boy Scouts, the school brigade, and Woman's Relief Corps, was formed and marched to the river, where flowers were strewn upon the waters as a mark of respect to the heroes who perished at sea. After the W. R. C. ritual was finished the procession returned to the grove in the rear of the court house where literary exercises were held.

The Rev. E. P. Lawrence delivered the invocation. General Logan's orders of the day, establishing Memorial Day, were read by Colonel Orson A. Stearns of the G. A. R. Mrs. Rose Soule Bratton, with clear and dramatic diction, read the Gettysburg address and Miss Dorothy Elliott rendered an exquisite vocal solo.

The principal address was made by Fred A. Baker, a veteran of the Spanish American war and was an eloquent and appropriate tribute to the men who sacrificed all in the service of their country.

The audience then joined in singing "America," and a prayer by the Rev. E. P. Lawrence closed the exercises.

PARTY ENJOYS DAY'S OUTING AT KENO

A picnicking and fishing party composed of Fred English, Fay West, Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Robinson and L. W. Hartley of this city and Major Malone and Colonel Childs, engineers in charge of construction of the California-Oregon Power company work at the Keno plant, spent Sunday in the vicinity of the Keno power plant site.

The party visited the plant and found it very interesting. The new power house is being rushed to completion by a crew of 150 men, working in three shifts daily. Two large turbine engines and three generators are being installed.
