

MOTHER OF FIRST AMERICAN SOLDIER KILLED IN FRANCE

Mrs. Alice Gresham Dodd, First War Mother Of The Nation Gives Entire Credit For Recovery Of Her Health To The Well Known Medicine, Tanlac.

MRS. ALICE GRESHAM DODD, of Gavin Park, Evansville, Ind.

The following remarkable endorsement of Tanlac was given recently by Mrs. Alice Gresham Dodd, at the Gresham Memorial Home, Gavin Park, Evansville, Ind., which home was presented to her by the patriotic people of Indiana, as evidence of their appreciation of the services rendered to his country by her son, Corporal James B. Gresham, the first American soldier killed in France. Expressions of sympathy were received by Mrs. Dodd from all parts of the United States, and the newspapers of the country carried the story of the first "war mother."

The shock of her son's death resulted in the serious breakdown of Mrs. Dodd's health, but everyone will learn with interest and pleasure that she is now in splendid health again. When seen at her home recently she made the following statement, giving the entire credit for her recovery to the well-known medicine, Tanlac.

"After my dear boy's death, I had a general breakdown in health," said Mrs. Dodd. "At first it was just indigestion. My food used to upset me and I had to diet myself very carefully, which wasn't much hardship as I lost all desire to eat. Then I had an attack of rheumatism, with severe pains in my shoulders, back and arms. Sometimes I used to suffer a great deal, and my joints would get all swollen up and stiff. I was able to do very little about the house, and at times couldn't even cook a meal. I got very nervous and restless, and at night would lay awake for hours, and lost many night's sleep as a consequence."

"A friend of mine had received a great deal of help from Tanlac, and it was she who advised me to try it. I am so glad I did for it proved the best medicine I have ever taken. It soon gave me a good appetite and seemed to settle my stomach so that I was no longer troubled with indigestion. I don't know what it is to have rheumatism pains now, the swelling and stiffness has all gone out of my joints and I am able to do the work of the house with the greatest ease. My nerves are now steady and strong, I sleep fine at night, and I feel better in health than ever before in my life. I shall always be grateful for what Tanlac has done for me, and shall recommend it every chance I get."

Tanlac is sold in Klamath Falls by the Star Drug Co., in Lorella by the James Merc. Co., and in Merrill by the Southern Oregon Drug Co. Adv.

FUGITIVE CROOK HAS VICTIMIZED TWO CONTINENTS

NEW YORK, June 2.—Jules W. ("Nicky") Arnstein, sought by the police of two continents as the alleged head of a band of swindlers who, by connivance with bank and brokerage messengers, are said to have stolen from $1,500,000 to $5,000,000 in bonds and other securities from Wall street firms, is the husband of Fannie Brice, an actress, whom he married in 1917. He disappeared from New York, where he maintained two lavishly appointed apartments besides a country home at Huntington, L. I., on February 12 last, since which he has been reported in various parts of the country or on the eve of "surrendering" to the authorities.

Arnstein is the son of a New York business man and is 42 years old. The police say he is as well-known in France and England as in the United States. Circulars offering a reward for his arrest said he "frequented high-class hotels and gambling places." He is a flashy dresser. Once, when arraigned in court, he appeared in a blue serge suit, a polka dot necktie and a pink silk shirt.

Eight years ago Arnstein was arrested in London and extradited to New York for swindling William E. Shinks of Springfield, Mass., out of $15,000 by means of worthless stock. Sentenced to two years in Sing Sing prison, Arnstein served less than a year. Six other members of the band were later arrested in San Francisco, Tokio and Baltimore.

Shortly after Arnstein's disappearance last February, a federal judge in New York issued an order enjoining 500 or more banks and depositors in the metropolis from disposing of any money, stocks, bonds or other securities Arnstein might have on deposit in them. He was known to have six safe deposit boxes in various public vaults. According to the police, Arnstein, together with his associates obtained the stolen bonds and other securities from the messengers and runners and took them to various cities where they were put up as collateral for loans. The boys or men who committed the thefts received less than one-quarter of their value and, in some instances, nothing at all. More than $500,000 was said to have been "buried" in Canadian banks in this way. About $750,000 is said to have been traced to Philadelphia, Washington, Baltimore and Cleveland.

Assistant District Attorney Dooling of New York, who has been prominent in the investigation of the Arnstein case, said that in four months from October, 1919, there had been more than 500 bond robberies ranging from $500 to $178,000 and that most of them were "office" jobs, that is, done by employes of banks and brokerage houses. He said the "system" had connections in every large city in the United States. Bonds stolen in Cleveland, Chicago or San Francisco, he declared, were forwarded to fences in New York or other cities who put them up as collateral for loans.

"Hidden strings are being pulled," declared Bernard J. McGinn, manager of the claim department of the American Surety company, "through underground channels which seem to undermine most of the financial district. Leaks, it seems, are taking place within stock exchange houses and it looks as though an organized intelligence service is in operation."

Arnstein's name, according to the police records, came into prominence in the case last February in connection with the arrest in New York of Joseph and Edward Gluck, brothers, Herbert and Rudolph Bunora, and Edward Furey, bank and brokerage messengers in Wall street. He was specifically charged with receiving $42,000 worth of Crucible Steel certificates stolen from a New York brokerage house. Some of the prisoners stated that Arnstein and his alleged partner, Nicholas Cohn, for whom rewards of $2,500 are offered, had received from them and disposed of more than $2,300,000 worth of bonds and other negotiables.

Shortly after Arnstein's flight last February, hearings were held in the federal court in New York to have him adjudged an involuntary bankrupt. It was there charged that "his assets consist of many thousands of dollars." A few weeks later, a New York lawyer, who said he was counsel for the fugitive, reported he had met Arnstein in Cleveland and that he had told him he was "innocent" of the bond theft charges and would surrender if bail was fixed at $35,000. He said Arnstein had rheumatism and feared imprisonment in a cold, damp cell in the Tombs if more than this amount of bail were demanded. He said Arnstein had told him he had won $18,000 in a crap game in Cleveland and lost $82,000 the next night in the same place.

The legal position of a married woman in Spain is today so low that her husband has absolute control over her person and property, as in the Middle ages. The wife cannot enter business without her husband's consent. He has the legal right to shut her up in a convent if she goes wrong, and it is left to him to decide what constitutes a wrong.

The bond thefts, which have been going on for months in New York, took a tragic turn in one case. Benjamin M. Binkowitz, a messenger employed by Richard C. Whitney & Co., bankers and brokers, who disappeared in August, 1919, with $178,000 worth of securities, was stabbed to death and his body left alongside a road near Milford, Conn. Arnstein and his associates, however, have not been connected with the crime. The police, in working on the Binkowitz murder said it was committed by the same band which participated in the killing of Barnett Raff, a wealthy New York poultry merchant, in November, 1914.

During the bankruptcy proceedings, David W. Sullivan, of D. W. Sullivan & Co., a former brokerage firm of Washington, D. C., stated under promise of immunity, that his firm had obtained $600,000 worth of bonds from Arnstein and Cohn during the past year, all of which, he believed, were stolen. Sullivan said he tried to break away from the pair but that Arnstein said: "You have gone this far with us and if you do I'll kill you." Among the numerous arrests made in the bond theft cases in New York, from time to time, were those of James Keane and James Haines, two private detectives from Montreal, who are held as material witnesses in the Tombs.

It is to the Japanese woman that the Japanese language owes much of the progress it has made during the past century. She was of old forbidden to study the Chinese language, which was considered the exclusive monopoly of men. The Japanese women took hold of their native tongue, and were soon at the head of the literary movement of their country.

One of the interesting visitors in Washington this winter is Mrs. T. P. O'Connor, wife of the famous "Tay Pay," editor and Irish member of parliament. Mrs. O'Connor is a Texan by birth and passed much of her girlhood in Washington. She was a brilliant actress when she first met the distinguished Irish journalist and politician, and after marriage she attained considerable reputation as a playwright. As a hostess she also is celebrated, and it is said that those who are so fortunate as to be members of her circle of friends who gather at the entertainments at the O'Connor home in Chelsea, near London, deem themselves favored.
