WILSON 'DYNASTY' IS DONE, SAYS LODGE

home, is the most pressing, as it is the most difficult and most essential problem which confronts us. Some of the sources of this trouble can be reached by legislation, although not all, but everything that can be effected by law should be done at once.

"Profiteering, charging of extortionate and unjustified prices, which is stupid as well as unlawful, are subject now to ample punitive laws. These laws should be enforced, others if necessary added, and the offenders both great and small should be pursued and punished.

"The most essential remedy for high costs (of living) is to keep up and increase production and particularly should every effort be made to advance the productivity of the farms.

"Let the Mexican choose as their president some strong and upright man who is friendly to the United States and determined to establish order and then let the United States give him a real and cordial support, and so strengthen and uphold him that he will be able to exterminate the bandits and put an end to the unceasing civil war.

"When the armistice with Germany was signed, the course to be pursued was clear. . . . That course which come into government possession. The rights of the general public, for whom all industries exist, would disappear under this scheme and nothing would be left to the people except the duty of paying taxes to support the roads.

"Over 400 Americans have been murdered in Mexico. Carranza insulted the American government in every possible way and still nothing was done. We felt so low that when an American was seized by one of the many bands of brigands and held for ransom, all that the government of the United States would do, was to offer to be the channel for conveying the ransom of their citizens to the highwaymen who had seized them.

"We have watched and waited long enough. We need a firm hand at the helm. The time has come to put an end to this Mexican situation, which is a shame to the United States and a disgrace to civilization. If we are to take part in pacifying and helping the world, let us begin here at home in Mexico.

"Let the Mexican choose as their president some strong and upright man who is friendly to the United States and determined to establish order and then let the United States give him a real and cordial support, and so strengthen and uphold him that he will be able to exterminate the bandits and put an end to the unceasing civil war.

was to make the peace with Germany at once and then take up for reasonable consideration the question of establishing such future relations with our associates in the war as would make for the future peace of the world. This, Mr. Wilson prevented. He went to Europe.

"He had apparently only one aim, to be the maker of a league of which he should be the head. He was determined that there should be a league of nations then and there and in order to nullify the powers of the senate given by the constitution of the United States, he decided to make the league an integral part of the treaty of peace with Germany. Thus he presented to the senate, and intended to present, a dilemma from which he believed there was no escape. In order to have peace with Germany, he meant to compel the senate to accept with it the league of nations.

"The Republicans of the senate, perceiving the dangers of the league, determined to resist Mr. Wilson's demand. The American people will never accept that alliance with foreign nations proposed by the president. The president meantime has remained inflexible. He is determined to have that treaty as he brought it back or nothing, and to that imperious demand, the people will reply in tones which cannot be misunderstood.

"We have stopped Mr. Wilson's treaty and the question goes to the people. In 1916, Mr. Wilson won on the cry that 'he had kept us out of war.' He now demands the approval of the American people for his party and his administration on the grounds that he has kept us out of peace. The league must be discussed in every district and in every state and we desire to have the verdict so clearly given that no man who seeks to represent the people in the senate, in the house or in any place or in any degree, can have the slightest doubt as to his duty.

"We make the issue; we ask approbation for what we have done. The people will now tell us what they think of Mr. Wilson's league and its sacrifice of America.

"They (the people), will tear aside the veil of words woven to blind and deceive and come down to the essential and vital point—Mr. Wilson's plan on one side and the independence and safety of the United States on the other. All Americans must join together in their own way and with their own arguments defeat Mr. Wilson's league as he desires it, whether amended by him or in its pristine simplicity."

Senator Lodge charged the Democratic party with responsibility for the "perilous conditions of the hour," and said if the Republican party fails to grapple it effectively, "the Russian descent into barbarism will begin to draw near."

A beginning had been made, he said, by a Republican congress in restoring economic conditions, "working under all the difficulties and opposition imposed by a hostile executive." He enumerated various beneficial measures, adding that the estimates had been reduced over a billion dollars. He advocated enforcement of the laws against profiteering and said it was possible to check the advance of prices by law, by providing for "the control of credits in such manner as to give preference to the most essential products." He described the railroad act, "as a single great law which in any period would be sufficient to distinguish a congress as one of high accomplishments.

Since the Declaration of Independence was signed nearly 25,000,000 people have arrived in the United States from foreign lands.
