

HEAD OF A. F. OF L. FOR LEAGUE

SAMUEL GOMPERS

MONTREAL, June 14.—It is "pitiable" that the United States has not ratified the league of nations, Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, declared here today in an address before the federation's convention.

If the league covenant were submitted to the American people "without any other entangling questions" it would be overwhelmingly accepted, he said.

AT THE THEATERS

An unusual and quaint form of plotting is one of the more intensely interesting features of Marshall Neilan's first independent production, "The River's End," from the story by James Oliver Curwood and distributed by First National, which is showing at the Star Theatre tonight.

The introductory scenes of the film find John Keith, haunted for years by the murder of Judge Kirkstone, captured by Derwent Conniston of the Canadian Mounted Police. A striking resemblance between the two men in build and facial characteristics leads the officer, when suddenly stricken with a fatal disease, to urge Keith to impersonate him and return to the Post with an account of Keith's death.

Shen Tung, a crafty Chinaman at the Post, alone suspects Keith of the impersonation and threatens to divulge the secret unless Keith influences Mariam Kirkstone, the murdered man's daughter, to marry him. A terrific mob-fight follows in which the Chinaman is killed.

A younger sister of the dead officer arrives at the Post and unaware of Keith's impersonation, shows a sisterly affection for him. Keith finally makes a clean breast of the affair, departs and journeys down the Saskatchewan. The climax of the picture is summed up in the surprise that awaits Keith—"At the River's End."

The roles of both John Keith and Derwent Conniston are portrayed by Lewis Stone, who reaches heights seldom attained in a dual-role depiction. He is supported by such popular stars as Marjorie Daw, J. Barney Sherry, Jane Novak, Charles West and Togo Yamamoto.

Ruth and Ray Ewert in a real vaudeville act, singing, dancing and music, featuring Ray Ewert, the John Phillip Sousa of the accordion, are at the Mondale today in an entirely new act.

RECORD OF G. O. P. STANDARD BEARER

women, those in authority by a self-assumed "mandate," seized in the side of flat repudiation by the American people at the ballot box, have undertaken to sign away, by a stroke of the pen, the independence won by the sword of Washington. The spirit of unwavering loyalty to American tradition and institutions upheld by every president from Washington to Roosevelt. Has been superseded by a vague, misty polygamous, patriotism that would scatter its affections indiscriminately among Bengalese and Bolsheviks and which would prove as unsatisfactory and trouble breeding in international as in domestic affairs. From this hopeless tangle of unparalleled inefficiency, unheard of extravagance, unconstitutional usurpation of power and un-American bartering away of national independence, the Democratic party is impotent to solve these problems because it has grown and fattened on the very evil policies and practices which must now be wiped out forever if the republic is to live.

The Republican party here assembled, with the faces of the heroic dead looking down upon us and commanding us with mute lips to stand by the principles of the party and defend to the uttermost every American ideal, will go forth to victory on a platform pronouncing unequivocally in favor of constitutional government and obedience to law; in favor of repeal of war time legislation not needed in times of peace but seized upon by a power grasping autocratic administration to perpetuate itself; in favor of legislation to promote industrial peace, not by protecting a rich man because he is rich nor a poor man because he is poor, but rather by protecting the upright citizen rich or poor, because he is upright; in favor of the ratification of only such a peace treaty as, while fully discharging our obligation to other nations, will at the same time protect unequivocally every American right and reserve for decision by our own people exclusively, every American question; and in favor of the maintenance of the principle of an American protective tariff and an American merchant marine. These are bound to be the dominant issues of the forthcoming campaign. Then why not name as our candidate the man whose record is the party platform, for the record of Ohio's candidate is the record of the Republican party in the last decade.

Made Merchant Marine

"He fought for an American merchant marine to carry our commerce under the American flag to all the ports of each, while other leaders were skeptical or quiescent; by the side of McKinley and Mark Hanna he helped bear the heat and burden of the day in the struggle for rehabilitation of American industry; four years ago he stood on this platform—the choice of both William H. Taft and Theodore Roosevelt for chairman of the convention; and it is only fair to add that as a member of the senate he enjoyed the intimate and confidential friendship of both these great leaders. He had the honor to present to the senate and to secure the enactment of the legislation providing for the Roosevelt division for service in France—legislation which was eagerly welcomed by a patriotic people, but which was not utilized because of executive partisan bigotry without a parallel in all the annals of war. I thus speak of his cordial relationship with Col. Roosevelt because it shows the capacity of really great men to overlook minor differences for the common good—not because Ohio acclaims him the successor of Col. Roosevelt. Roosevelt left no successor; his mantle fell on no earthly shoulders; no chieftain remains to bend the bow of Ulysses. But his lofty example will abide. May we not learn from it that lesson of broad vision and uncompromising Americanism without which party fealty is an empty thing and a free republic only a fragrant memory. As a member of the committee on foreign relations of the U. S. senate, Ohio's candidate had prominent and honorable part in framing the reservations to the peace treaty which were adopted by the senate and which will be the battle-ground in the forthcoming campaign, between Americanism and internationalism. Let us nominate the candidate whose record is the platform.

"In personal character he has the dignity, urbanity and breadth of vision of McKinley. Like that other great Ohioan, he is one of the common folks—best loved by those who know him best. With no working capital other than his own ability and his capacity for toil, he has built up a prosperous business employing many men and in the shop where he

GOV'T STORE IS A POSSIBILITY

Henry Berger, special agent of the United States army quartermaster retail stores, is in this city from San Francisco investigating conditions relative to opening a retail store in Klamath Falls. He is seeking the cooperation of the city and county officials and the public in general. The obtaining of a suitable site for this store is the main question to be confronted. Mr. Berger will return to San Francisco Wednesday and report the conditions on this place to headquarters. If they are favorable a store will be opened here about the first of July.

The government store would offer surplus army supplies of all sorts, shoes, blankets, underwear, canned goods, beef, and many other articles left over in the government storehouses when Uncle Sam closed the military campaign.

The central labor council has arranged to have Mr. Berger speak before their meeting this evening, in an effort to ascertain if the establishment of a store here would mean, as promised, a considerable reduction of the living cost.

It is understood that the special agent wants to see $30,000 worth of business in eight before a store is opened in Klamath Falls.

works side by side with his men there has never been an hour of labor trouble in 25 years of friendly co-operation. As laborer, as employer, as editor of a great newspaper, he knows the many sided industrial problem and will bring to its solution the same quite good sense and spirit of helpful co-operation that have characterized his business and professional life.

Man of Big Caliber

"William McKinley was a great president because he understood the viewpoint of congress and knew how to co-operate with the legislative department of the government. We have had enough of one-man government. It is time to resume the functions of government as set forth by the constitution. We do not need a dictator, an autocrat, to give orders. The country calls, rather, for a man of courage, poise and decision, who while reserving to himself the right to direct the general course of government, is not so cock-sure of his infallibility as to refuse to bear the advice of other men of large ability and wide experience; a man deliberate in judgment, wise in counsel, and of such caliber and experience that in these troublous times of unrest when the old ship may have to sail tempestuous seas before she reaches her usual calm course of progress, he can say to officers and crew as he labors among them 'Steady, boys, steady.' We need not so much brilliant and hair-raising maneuvers as we do safe and sane seamanship by a captain who knows the way.

"Ohio presents such a man for your deliberate consideration. He is a stalwart fighting Republican, who believes in the efficacy of representative government under party sponsorship; knowing and heeding the lessons of the past, his face is toward the future—he is not a professing progressive, but a performing progressive; and he is a vote getter. The country needs the Republican party, the Republican party needs Ohio and Ohio needs the nomination of her candidate to insure success. We believe we can carry Ohio this year for the nominee of this convention whoever he may be and we pledge our undivided effort from now till November to bring that about, but with our candidate nominated victory is certain. The enemy carried Ohio in 1912 by 100,000 and in 1916 by nearly 90,000, yet in between times in 1914 a great forward-looking Ohio Republican was elected United States senator by 103,000 majority and he carried along to victory the whole Republican state ticket with me on it and he can carry Ohio next November by 100,000 majority.

"If we had carried Ohio a great Republican president would be in the White House today. If we carry it in 1920 the nominee of this convention will be inaugurated president March 4, 1921.

"In the name of Ohio Republicans I present for your deliberate consideration the man who can carry Ohio and thus insure Republican triumph—that modest, dignified, substantial citizen, that aggressive sane cool-headed leader of men, that typical American, Senator Warren G. Harding of Ohio."
