POT POURRI

By LONE STAR

Brother Parker, the genial president of the central labor council, is gifted with great ideas these days. Already tired of belonging to the proletariat, he sees, in the dim future, visions of wealth, health and automobiles, of happy days when he will no longer be forced to the painful necessity of making an honest living with his hands.

So Brother Parker has started a nice little dance hall and about two weeks from today, there will be no looking at Parker on the street at all at all.

All of which leads up to the story I want to tell, and which happens to be a "reel genuine" fact, and not one of those hundred year old jokes that our anonymous "Knocker" wrote us about the other day.

Well, folks—here's what happened:—Parker came into the Herald office to hand in an opening announcement regarding his new oil-well—excuse me, I meant dance hall. He handed the copy to Mrs. Murray. She looked it over and said to the would-be capitalist, "Why Mr. Parker, you have only one 'I' in 'pavillion,' and there should be two."

"No," replied Parker, "there is only one 'I' in 'pavilion.'" "Alright," said Mrs. Murray, "but that's a funny way to start a dance-hall, by knocking 'I' out of it right on the start."

We will have that bird who spells "pavilion" with a "u" and conundrum with three "u's" pass on the correct spelling of pavilion, one of these days.

Incidentally we ran into that individual the other day and he was doing just what we would expect a bird of that caliber to be doing. Trying to get a subscription to the Herald at the old price of 50 cents per. He didn't get it.

But while we are on that subject, we would like to hear from someone who really likes our column. If you had any fun in it and if it causes you to smile once in a while, let us know. You see Lone Star is this kind of a fellow. If his work is appreciated, he works twice as well, so if you want this column to get better (if possible) drop the Lone Star's line and tell him you like his stuff. It'll work fine.

Lone Star has had a pretty hard time of it in his day trying to attain to fame as a scribe, and now that success has come he naturally feels highly elated over it, and takes great pleasure in informing you that it will not be long now till you are reading his "stuff" in the Saturday Evening Post.

We do not know how you found it, but we found that there were three stages of love. Here they are:

Sighing like a furnace
Over ears in love
Blind in adoration
Of his lady's glove.
Thinks no girl was ever
Quite so sweet as she
Tells you she's an angel
Expects you to agree.

Moping and repining.
Gloomy and morose.
Asks the price of poison.
Thinks he'll take a dose.
Women are so fickle
Love is all a sham
Marriage is a failure,
Like a broken dam.

Whistling, blithe and cheerful.
Always bright and gay.
Dancing, singing, laughing.
All the livelong day.
Full of fun and frolic
Caught in fashion's whirl
Thinks no more of poison
Got another girl.

Here's a hot one folks. Wonder how it would go in Klamath Falls. At the last session of the Nebraska legislature, a bill was introduced prohibiting "the firing of pistol, revolver, shotgun, rifle or any firearms whatsoever on any public highway, or within sixty yards of such public place or highway; except to destroy some wild, ferocious animal or dangerous beast, or an officer in the discharge of his duty."

(Some bill that was, and the beauty of it is that it passed.)

Here's another one for his nibs to get on altho it's a little more ancient than the one about the chicken.

There was an old farmer named Foster
Who had an old cow and he lost her
So the country he scoured
For three or four hours
And then in his own yard came across (t) her.

Incidentally if you think its easy just try your hand at running a column like this every day, and keep it up. Chances are you would last about one issue.

None of great heads all remind us
If we choose the proper way,
We can get up every morning
With a head as big as they.

(With apologies to Longfellow or whoever it was that wrote "In Memoriam"—At that, its too bad to take it out on a dead man.)

Some few years ago, it was Lone Star's privilege to be on an expedition, which went from Cape Town right through the heart of Africa up to Cario in Egypt.

When we arrived at Cario our Dad met the caravan and after the usual felicitations, said to me "Son, how did you enjoy your trip through Africa? How did you like the savages?"

We replied as follows: "Oh they are very kind-hearted people, they wanted to keep me there for dinner."

In the spring the maidens fancy
Turns to love, ice cream and dress,
In the spring the young man's longing
Is for one his life to bless.
In the spring the mother sadly,
Thinks her daughter's beau should call;
In the spring the man madly,
Turns the dog loose in the hall.

We are not very well versed on the scriptures, but it seems to us that in one place the Bible tells us that a prophet rent his clothes. Well we suppose he did that because they cost too much to buy.

We met Cap Siemens taking a stroll over the hills yesterday, and asked the Captain where he was going.

"Oh," replied the Cap, "I'm just taking a tramp around the hills."

We are sorry to have to admit it, but we did not believe the Captain. We couldn't see any sign of a tramp.

By the way, did any of you folks hear of the best way to remove paint? No? Well here it is—SIT ON IT.

John Wanamaker began life with out a dollar in his pocket. Well—so did the Lone Star.

And so did Andy Collier for that matter.

STATE CHAMBER TO EXPAND ACTIVITIES

State-wide Appeal For Budget Made to Provide For Development Program.

What is the plan of the expansion movement of the Oregon State Chamber of Commerce? How is it to be carried out? What is it for?

These are the three questions uppermost in the minds of the majority of those who have been informed of the movement which the State Chamber launched April 19th with a survey of the state to set up preliminary organization and establish a direct connection with practically every community in the thirty-six counties of Oregon.

The expansion movement by way of explanation might be divided into three distinct classes.

First—A survey of the state.

Second—An educational campaign to be carried on through local newspapers and by mailing literature pertaining to the movement direct to industries, firms and individuals interested in the development of the state.

Third—The intensive organization work at which time a state-wide canvass will be made, county by county, to raise a budget to enable the Oregon State Chamber of Commerce to carry on its program of development work for the state on a broader, more comprehensive scale. This canvass will be made throughout the state during June and July.

This budget is to be obtained by popular subscription. The appeal will be state-wide and to everyone interested in the development of Oregon and its particular community. It is believed the response will be met by the manufacturer, the merchant, the farmer and the individual, for each is vitally interested in seeing Oregon forge ahead and develop its advantages and resources.

Industrial developments depend on two factors: Natural resources or raw materials, and proximity to markets for manufactured products. Granted these and sufficient encouragement development inevitably follows.

Oregon has the raw materials and natural resources. It will be the purpose of the State Chamber of Commerce under its expanded program to acquaint the world with these facts, and through direct solicitation, get industrial management to consider Oregon as a site for their industries.

Furniture and wool manufacture in Oregon are in their infancy. So is the canning and preserving of fruits. With its vast resources in water power, its labor market, geographical location, Oregon offers many advantages to the manufacturer who, however, must first be interested in Oregon and know its advantages.

DOUBLE POPULATION OF OREGON FARMERS STATE CHAMBER PLAN

Oregon now has 5,000,000 acres of land under cultivation. In 1919 the agricultural crop was valued at $206,000,000.00.

By honest advertising the Oregon State Chamber of Commerce can double the agricultural acreage in three years. This would add another $206,000,000.00 to the agricultural revenue of the State, using last year's figures as a basis of figuring.

HENRY GAINES HAWN

Henry Gaines Hawn of San Francisco, an authority on community building, is one of several speakers now touring the state in connection with the expansion movement of the Oregon State Chamber of Commerce.

The State Chamber is making a state-wide appeal for a budget of $450,000, covering a period of three years, to carry on its development work.

The movement has been endorsed by more than two hundred leading men throughout Oregon. Eighty community executive committees have been organized to co-operate with the State Chamber in the canvass throughout the state which will be conducted during June and July.

Telegraph Tabloids

WASHINGTON, June 17.—A drive on profiteers in bituminous coal was ordered today by Attorney General Palmer. All federal district attorneys were ordered to give special attention to charges of such profiteering and seek indictments where investigation warranted.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—Senator Harding formally announced that his campaign as Republican presidential candidate would not be a one man affair; that the aid and advice of every Republican leader would be sought. This would be his policy, not only during his campaign but later, should he be elected president.

MONTREAL, June 17.—The American Federation of Labor, in convention here, today called for congressional investigation into the "tyrannical, brutal and un-American suppression of free speech." It extended to President Wilson an invitation to witness a meeting at Duquesne, Pennsylvania, on the subject of free speech and free assembly under fed-

CHICAGO, June 17.—"Babe" Ruth, playing with the New York Yankees, scored his nineteenth home-run of the season today at the White Sox park, sending the ball over the right field bleachers, scoring two men ahead of him.

WARSAW, June 17.—Americans took a prominent part in the recent evacuation of Kiev, turning their automobiles over to the Polish staff, aided in feeding, attending wounded and burying dead where there had been fights, with the Bolshevik raving parties.

The estimated total crop is 185,000 tons. A dozen years ago, said Mr. Denison, when the railway was called upon to furnish twenty cars a day to handle the pineapple traffic it was considered a heavy job.

What Good is a Dollar?

It's largely up to you. It depends on how you spend it—on the value to you of what you get for it—on your ability to find where that value is to be had.

Of course, it's all right to shop around a bit if you like, but why not let the other fellow make it easier for you by doing a little shopping after your dollar—by showing you what you want and where you can get most of it for your money?

It's a great idea, once you get the hang of it, and here's how!

Right in this paper you'll find dozens of advertisements offering you merchandise. Some things you'll need today; some tomorrow; some next week or next year—but the point is that these merchants are coming to you, looking for your dollar and offering the best they have to get it.

You'll find that by reading the advertisements consistently today and every day, you can increase the value—to yourself—of every dollar you have to spend. The things you see advertised are almost invariably as represented. The advertisers' statements are usually safer to trust than your own judgment. Advertised misrepresentation is business suicide.

READ THE ADVERTISEMENTS AND INCREASE THE VALUE OF YOUR DOLLAR!
