MEAT CAUSE OF KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys if Back hurts or Bladder bothers

If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority who tells us that meat forms uric acid which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you get rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids, to cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.

AT THE THEATERS

Corinne Griffith is said to be the film star who is not afraid of comparison. A demonstration of this is given in Vitagraph's latest picture, "The Climbers," in which the youngster is surrounded by girls of bewitching beauty. Miss Griffith is declared to suffer not at all by the unconscious comparison into which she is thrown with her supporting cast.

"The Climbers," a picturization of the famous stage play by Clyde Fitch, which had a vogue for several seasons about fifteen years ago, will be shown at the Mondale Theatre on Friday and Saturday.

On a clear day it is not possible to go up in an airplane anywhere in England without being able to view the sea.

AT THE THEATERS

Holman Day, the noted author, created some remarkable characters for his gripping story of the Maine woods, "King Spruce," the Dial Film Company picturization of which starring Mitchell Lewis is announced by W. W. Hodgkinson for presentation at the Liberty Theatre, Sunday.

Besides affording the star a role in which he easily sustains his reputation as the screen's premier actor of rugged types, "King Spruce" exacts some splendid characterizations from a number of screen favorites, who not only made a thorough study of the types in the Holman Day story before the first scene of the screen version was enacted but assisted Director Roy Clements in clothing the characters to make life-like the inhabitants of the Pine Tree forests.

Tommy Eye, as portrayed by Joe Ray, is typical of the carefree son of toil one sees working in the great Northwest lumber belt. Described as a teamster "totally agin prohibition," Tommy never treads any but the straight and narrow path even when unscrupulous backwoodsmen ply him with liquor in order to further their diabolical schemes. A character peculiar to the Main timber lands is Prophet Eli, played by Frederic Herzog. Looked up to as a physician, weather forecaster and general adjuster of difficulties arising in the camps by the lumber folk because of his superior book learning, Prophet Eli is quite a personage.

No story of the Maine forests would be complete without a fire lookout. In "King Spruce" he is Ladder Lane, played by Gus Soville, who contributes one of the outstanding performances. Strangely enough Soville is a product of Northern Maine and Director Clements scored a ten-strike in selecting him for the part.

LEONARD AN ACTOR AS WELL AS A FIGHTER

Screen tests made of Benny Leonard, lightweight champion, who was signed to play the star role in "The Evil Eye," indicated that the champion is an actor as well as a fighter. Immediately following Benny's signing the $100,000.00 contract, Frank G. Hall, who produced the Leonard Serial, had Dallas M. Fitzgerald, Hallmark Director, make a screen test of the champion. Benny was put thru a series of dramatic episodes before the camera. According to those who saw the test shown in private projection, Benny screens like a million dollars.

The public will soon be given a chance to not only see how wonderfully well Benny Leonard "screens" but to see how excellently he acts, for the first episode of "The Evil Eye," titled "Below the Dead Line," will be presented at the Liberty theatre Sunday.

There are many kinds and types of "vampires." There is the vampire that Kipling has called "a rag, a bone and a hank of hair," and there is the vampire or leech who lives off the bounty of others, but Sessue Hayakawa, as Akbar Khan, portrays a "mental vampire" in "The Devil's Claim," a Robertson-Cole picture to be shown at the Mondale Theatre for a run of two days, beginning Sunday.

In the gay, Bohemian quarter of New York, Akbar Khan was known as a "mental vampire." Magnetic mysterious and with a fascinating personality which few could resist he skillfully drew from the unwary, tales of romance and adventure which he wove into stories and claimed as his own.

When Burt Southern comes to the opera house next Tuesday and Wednesday he will bring with him a company of players for the engagement of "Hen-Pecked Henry," each of whom has been selected for his or her special qualifications to play the role the artist is cast for. Under ordinary circumstances a star gathers together a cast to enact the various parts without taking into consideration the ability of the actor or actress to not only speak the lines properly but to look the part. Mr. Southern has, however, taken special care to have the individual assigned to each part be that character throughout the farce. While the average theater goer might call the girls a "chorus," in the "Hen-Pecked Henry" company the girls are all real vaudevillians. They have been selected because of their ability to present numbers enmasse and also to offer specialties either individually or otherwise. The eight Dancing Daisies offer several unique numbers, while the three McKesie sisters contribute singing and instrumental numbers; Linno, LaRue and MacCrea introduce vocal numbers with true harmony; June Delight offers dancing par-excellence, and Georgia Randall is heard in operatic selections. Helen Walters is the purveyor of jazz numbers and Tiny Brennan not only dances but presents a number of the latest song successes. Altogether "Hen-Pecked Henry" presents a splendid entertainment.

She was the most beautiful girl in all the group of islands, and yet no one thought her even fairly attractive, because the standard was black and fat. Half French and half Japanese, with a foster father who never paid her a compliment, and not enough clothes to even occupy her attention for half a day, she spent most of her time dancing, swimming and climbing the tall trees for coconuts. Nimble as a boy, she was strong and growing more beautiful every day.

The natives called her a swinging name meaning White Almond Blossoms but her foster father called her Mary, and as Mary the beachcomber knew her when he arrived with his bottle of gin as his only asset, and as Mary the New England college boy knew her when he arrived. They thought she was wonderful, so much so they wished to marry her. Thus Clarine Seymour as Mary becomes a very important figure in the story of "The Idol Dancer," David Wark Griffith's latest First National production now showing at the Star theater.

NEW MEASURING DEVICE

The salespeople at the Golden Rule were all excited today and wanted to wait upon each customer at once. The store has an instrument which does away with the measuring of goods by hand, eliminates all possible mistakes of incorrect measurements, and computes the amount of the sales instantly—the "Measuregraph" they call it.

The piece of goods is passed through the Measuregraph and as many yards as desired are quickly and accurately measured. A dial at the top of the instrument, like the face of a watch, registers the number of yards as the piece of cloth passes through.

Say you want 3 1/2 yards of silk at $1.69 per yard. Quick! how much is that? You don't know unless you stop and figure it with paper and pencil, but the Measuregraph shows the answer the moment the hands on the dial stop at 3 1/2. Six dollars and fifty-five cents is the amount of the bill, madam.

From the customer's standpoint it is gratifying to know that when a certain yardage is ordered there is eliminated all doubt that perhaps the salespeople made a mistake and unintentionally cut a quarter or an eighth of a yard less than was intended.

If the Wood Dealer Sold Service

We do not sell current; we sell service. That sounds odd doesn't it?

Well, suppose the wood dealer sold service instead of wood, he would tend to your furnace and your range, take away the ashes and clean the flues. You would buy so much heat.

Now you buy so much light, although you pay according to the current you consume. But the service is performed for you by this company at the substations and power plants.

That is what we want to give you—efficient service. It is the aim of this company to have none but satisfied customers. No matter what it is, if you have a grievance, or are dissatisfied about your bill or do not understand our rates, please come in and see us or write us about it.

If you have any suggestions to make, we will gladly avail ourselves of them as our aim is constantly to improve our service to you as fast as the development of science and human ability permit.
