AT THE THEATERS

Starting as a sailor on the Great Lakes in his early teens, and becoming, after advancing through newspaper channels, one of the most popular playwrights of the past century, was the career of the late Paul Armstrong, author of "Alias Jimmy Valentine," which is showing with Bert Lytell as the star at the Liberty Theatre on Saturday.

Paul Armstrong was a successful sailor, and after several years was given a license as a master of steam vessels. However, he decided that writing was his natural talent. He started handling sports on a Buffalo newspaper. Later he went to New York and did newspaper work there.

It was in 1904 that he wrote his first successful play, "The Heir to the Hoopah." From this time on his rise was rapid. He wrote such well known stage successes as "Via Wireless," "Salomy Jane," "In a Blaze of Glory," "The Escape," and many many others. His two greatest plays were "Alias Jimmy Valentine," and "Deep Purple," both written in 1909.

In the Metro production of "Alias Jimmy Valentine" Bert Lytell plays the name role. Mr. Lytell played this part many times on the stage in his career as a leading man. Finis Fox made the screen adaptation of the piece.

The original idea for "Alias Jimmy Valentine" came to Mr. Armstrong through reading O. Henry's short story, "A Retrieved Reformation." He took the brief outline the story suggested and worked it into a play that won an international reputation.

The "Lisido Kid," played by Jack Pickford, has a reputation throughout Texas as a "bad hombre"—a pleasant mannered youth who makes it a point not to kill white men, only Mexicans. He has just had a shooting affair, and leaves town in a cloud of dust, bound for distant parts unknown.

He lands in the South American town of Buenas Tierras, where the major part of the picture takes place. It is here that the Kid becomes involved in a highly exciting plot to rob and deceive an aristocratic Spanish family, by posing as a son who ran away when a boy. He dons his cowboy costume and becomes the favored son of the wealthy Spanish family. And later, when the Kid has felt the first kind and loving influence he has ever known, the great transformation takes place.

The picturesque and colorful settings are very beautiful and reflect in a realistic fashion the numerous, sun-baked atmosphere of a typical South American town. At the Star Theatre Friday and Saturday.

He sandpapered his fingers until the nerves were raw and bleeding. Then, by his sense of touch alone he forced open the steel doors of bank vaults. Who was able to perform this unique feat of thievery? See "Alias Jimmy Valentine," starring Bert Lytell, at the Liberty Theatre tonight, and meet fiction's most fascinating rogue face to face. This Metro production was adapted from the greatest drama of the generation, written by Paul Armstrong.

"Just because a woman has erred," declared Louise Glaum in discussing with some prominent New York Critics the surprise ending of "Sex," her new W. W. "Women are projected into the whirl of life by impulse and the urging of a certain type of men who should know better. Then they are deserted that they may suffer the 'consequences' alone. I make this point for my sex, for I think that all the unfairness lies on the side of the male, the aggressor and the cause. Woman is merely the recipient and the object of man's influence."

STRIKE SETTLEMENT PROSPECT IS POOR

RUTTE, Mont., June 25.—Prospects for a settlement of the Neihart miners' strike are remote, according to a report from that camp. The demand for a minimum wage of $5.75 a day cannot be met at the present price of silver, operators declare, and say they are willing to keep the properties closed until the miners go back to work at the present scale.

The mines affected by the strike are the Cascade Mines and Mills, The Neihart Silver Consolidated and the Neihart Silver Mines company. The Neihart Silver Mines company closed down about five weeks ago, being compelled to close by the lack of ore for its mill. The Neihart Mines company and the Neihart Consolidated were paying their miners $5.50 a day, the voluntary raise having been given the men some weeks before the strike was declared.

Many of the miners are looking for leases and others are preparing for prospecting trips. A great many have left for other fields.
