CONGRESSMAN'S PLEA

Following is the opening paragraph of a speech recently delivered in congress by Hon. John W. Rainey, of Illinois:

"Mr. Chairman and gentlemen: St. Peter was receiving a group of new arrivals at the gate of heaven, in answer to his question as to what each of the group did for a living while on earth, the first man in line said: 'On earth I was the representative of justice between man and man; I also defended the oppressed and the unfortunate; I was a lawyer.' The second said: 'I brought the new-born babe into the world; I cured the sick; when that was impossible I lightened the pains of the dying; I was a doctor.' The third said: 'I tried to have men lead good lives; in prosperity I advised them to practice self-restraint; in adversity I bade them hope; I was a clergyman.' The fourth said: 'I defended my country against her enemies within and without; on the field of battle I faced death bravely; I was a warrior.' The fifth said: 'I made my country's laws; I championed and voted for the greatest good to the greatest number; I was a congressman.' (Applause.) The sixth member of the group was slow to answer; she had a worn and tired look and a subdued manner, but she was encouraged to speak, for she was a woman, and then she said: 'I was the teacher who inspired these five distinguished men to knowledge. I guided their childish footsteps up the height of learning in their early days, but when wealth and fame came to them they not only forgot me but they denied me a living wage. That accounts for my weariness, which you will please excuse, for I had grown so tired through the incessant demands of teaching, I had become so worn out trying to make both ends meet on my poor salary, and had been so depressed from the long struggle against discouragement over not being appreciated on earth that death was a relief when it came, and I am glad that at last I am here.'"

A metal lighter than any yet known, and as strong or stronger than steel, has for years been the dream of many, and every now and then rumors are circulated to the effect that at last it has been discovered. The latest report to be circulated relates to a new magnesium alloy, said to have been discovered by a metal company of Montreal. The new alloy, it is stated, is only two-thirds the weight of aluminum, and is "as strong as steel." It is said to be especially suitable for pistons and connecting rods of aero and motor-car engines, where strength and lightness combined are desirable.

IRRIGATION DIRECTORS CANVASSING VOTES

The directors of the Klamath Irrigation district met today in special session as a canvassing board to canvass the vote of the special election held recently in regard to the question of entering into a contract with the government for the expenditure of $225,000 in betterments and extensions to the local project. The unofficial count gave the victory to the affirmative by a vote of 55 to 6 and it is not expected that the official count will materially differ.

N. E. A. HEAD WILL SPEAK AT O. A. C.

OREGON AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE, Corvallis, June 22.—Mrs. Josephine Corliss Preston, president of the National Education association, and state superintendent of public instruction for Washington since 1912, will speak before summer session students, June 28 on "Emergency in Education."

Mrs. Preston will stop in Corvallis on her way to the annual N. E. A. convention in Salt Lake City where she is scheduled to deliver the president's address July 5. The fact that she was honored by election to the presidency of the National Education association is expected to lend particular interest to her Corvallis address.

Summer session registration the first day was 231, not including the young people here to attend junior summer session for prize winning boys and girls in club work whose expenses are paid, for the most part, by Portland business men. Late arrivals continue to come in and registration is expected to be swelled materially by the end of the week.

SPRING LAKE DRIPPINGS

Mrs. Frank Stewart and daughter, Lucille, and Mrs. William Cheyne were city visitors recently.

Several parties from this neighborhood went to Ashland after cherries this week.

Mr. and Mrs. George Williams called at Charles Mack's Friday evening.

Ward Dolan and William Cheyne have been serving on the jury this week.

Portland Woman Asserts She Couldn't Walk a Step—Gains Twenty Pounds And Is Rid Of Rheumatism After Taking Tanlac.

"I have not only gained twenty pounds in weight since I began taking Tanlac, but firmly believe it saved my life," said Mrs. Jennie Kellher, who lives at 316 Senise street, St. Johns, Portland, Oregon. Continuing, she said:

"About a year ago I began to suffer with a terrible attack of inflammatory rheumatism. There was never a minute of the day or night when I was free of pain in my arms and limbs, and it was next to impossible for me to get any sleep. My hands and feet swelled terribly and became stiff and were drawn all out of shape. Big knots formed in the joints and I could not wear my shoes and had to carry one of my arms in a sling all the time. I had great difficulty in feeding myself and often couldn't walk a step, not even on crutches, and for months couldn't do any of my housework. My stomach also was in terrible condition. I had a very poor appetite and what little I did manage to force down would sour and ferment and gas would form and press against my heart so badly I would have great difficulty in breathing. I had the worst sort of nervous and dizzy spells at times, when I would have to catch hold of something or sit down to keep from falling. I lost weight until I was little more than a frame and was dreadfully weak. I was in such bad condition no one thought I could possibly live. I had reached the point where I would have welcomed death, as after trying every kind of treatment and medicine I could hear of without getting any relief, I had given up hope of ever being well again.

"I was in this condition when I read two statements regarding the benefits two ladies, who lived in Portland, had received from Tanlac and decided to give it a trial. After I had taken two bottles my improvement was simply wonderful and it was almost like bringing me back from the grave, for I have no idea I could possibly have lived more than another month. If that long I have now taken five bottles and have no pains of any sort, the swelling has entirely gone from my hands and feet and I am again able to wear my shoes and do all my own housework. I have a fine appetite and everything I eat agrees with me perfectly. The fact is, I am feeling better in every way than I have in years, and I owe it all to Tanlac, and I am so thankful for what it has done for me I expect to praise it as long as I live."

Tanlac is sold in Klamath Falls by the Star Drug Co., in Lorella by the James Mers. Co., and in Merrill by the Southern Oregon Drug Co. Adv.

WONDERFUL SOUTH POLE PICTURES

"The Bottom of the World," the Sir Ernest Shackleton Antarctic expedition picture, released by Robertson-Cole, will be seen at the Liberty Theatre Tuesday. These pictures were made by Sir Ernest's own camera men, and thoroughly cover the expedition from the time it left Buenos Ayres until it returned to Valparaiso two years later.

This great South Pole expedition was not a trip to discover the pole. That had been done a short time before by Amundsen. The Shackleton expedition was for the sole purpose of obtaining scientific data and information regarding the great sea which surrounds the South Pole, and to add to the human fund of knowledge regarding this fascinating district. The great mass of pictures and information which the expedition brought back labels it as one of the most fruitful quests which ever was pushed into either of the great ice cups.

Wonders of South Ice

So far as motion pictures are concerned the Shackleton trip is more perfectly covered than have been those of any other of the great explorers. In five reels, which are crammed full of a great volume of humanly interesting, tragic and humorous incidents, the great wastes of the South ice are shown as never before. The animal life, the struggles of the expedition, the gigantic mountains of eternal ice, the bleak forbidding lands, the grotesque creatures to be found here, and the scientific wonders of the trip all are carefully detailed.

Not the least of the efforts is the windup of the picture which shows Shackleton's ship, the Endurance, smashed and disabled, lying in the frozen ice fields, an eternal memorial to the courage and hardihood of the brave followers of the great English explorer. The Endurance was shoved clear out of the water and her ribs cracked by the vast pressure of the great floes, pushed by the wind and the action of the sea currents.

Close-ups of the leader of the expedition, and of his aids, scientific data to interest the student, and a number of ice pictures, which are different from any previously shown on any screen are features. The picture already has become somewhat acquainted with the Shackleton expedition through the leader's great work "South" which recently appeared.
