AT THE THEATERS

In "The Cheater," May Allison's newest Metro production, now being shown at the Liberty Theatre, this beautiful star believes she has been given her greatest opportunity since she entered motion pictures. She was elated when Maxwell Karger, Metro Director General, told her that she could play the miracle girl in "The Cheater," which was adapted by Lois Zellner from the celebrated stage play of "Judah" by Henry Arthur Jones.

At the Liberty Theatre tomorrow local theatregoers will have an opportunity to enjoy another Harry Carey production, "Human Stuff" is the title and it will show new evidence of Carey's versatility. He appears as a college-bred man with the blood of the out-of-doors in his veins. To please his father he tries his hand at managing his manufacturing plant, but admits himself a failure as a business man, as well as in the social life to which he is born.

A final escapade, when the young man drowns his troubles in the flowing bowl on the night of his sister's coming out party, convinces the father that Jim Pierce is in the wrong environment and suggests that he go West and take charge of his big ranch, which has always been a money loser. Arriving in the West the young Easterner finds the cards stacked against him. Unscrupulous foremen and neighboring ranch owners have conspired to get control of the Pierce lands. They are naturally hostile to the new arrival. Jim's decision to turn the place into a sheep ranch further angers them. The young man manages to circumvent their schemes until the arrival of a girl from the East, with whom he falls in love. The struggle then becomes more involved and mounts to a stirring climax.

Miss Allison is an actress of such versatility that she chafed under the notion of playing only such light and butterfly types as her blonde beauty and girlish charm would naturally suggest. Her part in "The Cheater" calls for emotional power and a deep understanding of the psychology of a woman's soul.

On the northern coast of Scotland it is a favorite theory with the fishing and sea-faring people that in a storm three waves are strong and violent, while the fourth is comparatively weak and less dangerous.

LONG LOST PLANE PART RECOVERED

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., June 17. (By Mail.)—The undercarriage which Harry Hawker dropped from his airplane when he took flight from here a year ago on his pioneer attempt to cross the Atlantic without stop has been recovered, and presented to the Public Museum for keeping with other exhibits associated with the colony's history. The gift was made by W. B. Grieve, M. L. C., who purchased the carriage after fishermen had picked it up off Cape St. Mary's, 200 miles south of southwest from the point where it dropped into the sea.

When Hawker set out on his trans-oceanic attempt on May 18, 1919, he flew over the air dome of Frederic P. Raynham, almost on the edge of the coast. Within sight of his arrival, who was standing by his plane unable to take-off because of an adverse wind, Hawker cut loose his undercarriage as a gage to contest for the honors of the air, and to lighten his load; then winged away seaward with Ireland as his object. Raynham, accepting the challenge, sought to start notwithstanding the unfavorable conditions, but he was unable to leave the ground and his machine was wrecked, he was injured, and his navigator, Major C. W. F. Morgan, almost killed. Hawker, it will be recalled, flew 1,100 miles before engine trouble brought him down.

ACCUSED UXORCIDE BECOMES MORALIST

PARIS, June 15. (By Mail.)—Landru, the Gambais bluebeard as the police call him, who has been in La Sante prison for 14 months awaiting trial on murder charges growing out of the disappearance of 11 women to whom he is alleged to have promised marriage, received what he told his lawyer to be the greatest shock of his life a few days ago.

BETTER DEAD

His lawyer had just informed him that his villa at Gambais where Landru is accused by the police of having gone away with his numerous fiancées had been ransacked and pillaged by burglars. The villa is famous as it was the last place that the missing women entered and from it they were never seen, to come out.

The police charge that Landru murdered his victims in the villa, disposing of the bodies by cremating them in a little kitchen stove. Human bones, hair and little trinkets belonging to the missing women were also found in the villa, the police say.

"What a world we live in," exclaimed Landru, when his lawyer broke the news to him. "Our generation respects nothing, nothing is sacred to them. It is enough to make one despair of the human race."

The hornbills of Africa and India plaster up and imprison the hen birds in a hole in the tree, with only a small opening left in the plaster through which to feed them and their young when hatched.
