YREKA, July 9.—J. R. Stoddard, formerly of Niskiyou county and for some years a resident of Trinity county, passed away Monday night at Red Bluff, aged about 80 years. Mr. Stoddard was a prominent rancher of Trinity county, and was chairman of the Trinity board of supervisors.

YREKA, July 9.—Word has come to Yreka stating that, some six weeks ago, eight head of blooded Holstein stock, six cows and two heifers, were stolen from the Wadsworth ranch, owned by W. D. MCCLLOUD, July 9.—The McCloud Country club, owned by a group of 40 wealthy San Francisco business men, and located on the McCloud river, was destroyed by fire last Wednesday afternoon. The loss is estimated at $500,000 and whether or not it was covered by insurance is not known.

VACAVILLE, July 9.—An election on the question of bonding the Vacaville union high school district for $35,000 for the purpose of building a gymnasium and manual training building will be held Monday, July 26.

What Should a Retail Store Be ?

When you get down to cases, a retail store is really a public service institution. We look at it that way. You need clothes; at least the police feel that way; they won't let you get very far without them.

So it's our duty to provide clothes; the better we do this—the more we help the public; the more they come to us and support us.

You expect us to get a fair profit for doing this. We've been getting that—only a fair profit; nothing more. But we're willing to take less than that if we can help people meet this "high cost" problem.

WE HAVE WITH US THE OLD PELICAN

"Well, the visit of the right honorable gentlemen from Washington, D. C., lasted quick," remarked the Old Pelican as he sought a seat on the typewriter carriage and brushed a drop of perspiration from his left eyelid with the tip of his wing. "Reminds me of a flock of geese lighting by mistake on a mud pond. They settle, see their error, and, whish, they're up and off again to the big lake. Not as I ever heard that fondness for water was a qualification for Congress."

"You are not only aspersing the fair fame of this progressive city and its self-sacrificing opponents," we interrupted in a tone of cold reproof, "but your insinuations do grave injustice to the visiting lawmakers of the nation, who have but lately partaken of our communal hospitality. These men, selected by the people to represent them in high places, are men of vision and discernment. Their time is valuable and—"

"Buddy," said the ancient one, eyeing us with apparent interest. "I've got a scheme that will save millions of dollars for the hard-worked farmer. If it's true that laughing makes us grow fat, all the farmer needs to do to save his corn is to let you talk to the porkers. You'd put a pound of fat a minute on the thinnest razorback that ever squealed."

"Your plan is entirely unfeasible," we rejoined, "even if scientifically possible. Oratory does not appeal to us. The pen is the chosen medium by which we express our thoughts." "Quit the express shipments and try slow freight," said the old bird cryptically. "It'll suit the consignee better."

"Well, if we don't get nothing else out of it, we'd ought to hang up an endurance run record on that Malin trip. After that long, hard grind it's no wonder the boys need a two day layoff at Crater lake to rest up. It's nice they're men with vision and discernment, as you say. It takes good eyesight to take in much of the country at the rate that crowd was traveling and it'd be a pity after they come so far and took so much trouble with us if they didn't see a place or two where they could spend a little money. Say, who engineered this deal?"

"Why," we said, "the chamber of commerce, the reclamation service and other prominent citizens, arranged the simple reception that was accorded the honored visitors, and generously donated their automobiles and gave valuable time to the escort of the guests, who are men, as we said before, of the highest rectitude and most excellent intentions."

"Well," said the old bird patiently, "they say they use good intentions for paving stones in certain climates, but I never heard of them building any irrigation ditches out of them. Buddy, I'll tell you, the guy that depends on his friends to catch his fish for him is likely to live on corned beef. It costs more to own your own tackle but you're surer of results."

"Your oracular utterance is doubtless intended as an intimation that the project and its appurtenances should be owned by its residents," we hazarded. "You believe that we should cease to cut bait while others catch our financial fish for us."

"You've said a pouch full," said the visitor, as he gathered himself for flight. "I begin to have hopes for you." And launching stiffly, he sailed from the sanctum.

MARYSVILLE, July 9.—Fire which broke out in a stubble field on the property of the Farm Land Investment company at Arboga threatened hundreds of acres of grain.

PORTOLA, July 9.—The death of Mrs. Ethel Gilbert occurred here Saturday. She expired following the birth of a baby daughter. The baby survived.
