Isko Dry Cold Protects The Family Health

One of the chief advantages of Isko, the Electric Cold-Maker, is that its cold is dry cold.

Every housewife knows that dampness and melting ice are inseparable. With Isko refrigeration all kinds of food are kept fresh and dainty, indefinitely.

Furthermore, it is easier to keep your refrigerator sweet and clean where there are no messy drainpipes, dampness and drip-pans.

Isko fits any refrigerator. It runs by electricity. Being automatic it needs no watching or thought or attention.

See Isko, the scientifically simple Cold-Maker, today. Prompt installations are possible if you place your order before the hot weather rush.

Isko comes in larger size for commercial use. Send for our booklet, "Electric Refrigeration."

POT POURRI

By LONE STAR

'Twas a wintry day in summer,
The rain was snowing fast;
When a barefoot boy with shoes on,
Sat standing on the grass.

While the organ peeled potatoes,
Lard was rendered by the choir,
While the sexton rang the dish-rag,
Someone set the church on fire.

"Holy smoke" the preacher shouted,
And in the rush he lost his hair,
Now his head resembles Heaven,
For there is no parting there.

Postscript to the above by Fred Soule:

His death which happened in his birth,

At forty-odd befell;
They went and told the sexton,
And the sexton tolled the bell.

Indignant Bridegroom:—"Look here—you never told me you had any children."

Ex-Merry Widow:—"Oh, they're all such little ones I didn't think it worth while mentioning them."

Listen to this one folks, its a dandy. We have some surgeons ourselves right here in Klamath Falls, but we can't hold a candle to the fellows who fixed this bird up.

William Moore, aged 95, formerly a citizen of Cedar Rapids, but now residing in Columbus, driving a grocery truck, shot himself six times Monday, and he has a good chance of recovery, in a very short time. His wife and three children were all ill with the flu and he became despondent. He shot himself four times through the head, and two times through the heart, and after being treated at the Columbus hospital was able to walk home the same day.

The funeral of Miss Youngblood, daughter of the Rev. Thos. Youngblood who died here 40 years ago, was held Monday evening on the arrival of the train from Frisco.

A traveler was making a trip through "Kaintuck." Moonshine stills provided quantities of strong whiskey for the mountaineers.

As the traveler was leaving the inn where he had lunched, he saw a man lying sprawled out by the roadside. Calling to the proprietor, he said, pointing to the man "Is he drunk?"

Taking a brief look at the prostrate form the landlord said: "Naw—he aint drunk. I saw his finger move."

Mother may I go out to swim?
No my darling daughter;
You seem possessed of too much vim,
There's ice still in the water.

A lawyer, a doctor and Fred Soule sat in a back room at early dawn surrounded by poker chips, and empty bottles.

As they sat in silence a rat scurried across the room and disappeared in the darkness.

The three men shifted uneasily in their chairs, and looked at each other. After a long pause Soule said: "I know what you fellows are thinking. You think I saw a rat—well I didn't."

(And then the fight began.)

Incidentally we just remembered that we promised to give you a tip on the Antediluvian. From time to time we will give you tips so that you can figure out for yourself who he is. Here's the first tip:—He sells life insurance.

"Just look at that rooster" remarked the duck. "Since he's begun crowing he's had his statue placed on top of the barn."

A fat man enjoys one distinct advantage. He knows exactly where the ashes of his cigar are going to land.

Makeup
She was a phantom of delight
When first she burst upon my sight
But after several second looks
Ye Gods! My boy! Also, Gadsook!!

"Hair-Lustr" brightened up her hair
Which glistened with a brilliant glare,
Her eyebrows full of Lashbrowine
Were quite the strangest ever seen.

Some belladonna by the drop
Gave her the look of taking hop
The rouge upon her cheek and lip
Seemed like a chicken with the pip.

Her teeth were brightened with some dope
Not half so clean as nice white soap,
A white enamel on her skin
Made it appear like polished tin.

Some beauty spots were on her bust
Exposed to ev'ry wintry gust.—
A corset tightened round her liver
Held her so tight she couldn't shiver.

Her skirts a foot above her shoe
Exposed two spindle shanks to view,
Which, clad in hose of flimsy lace
Left of her modesty no trace.

Strange fate then caused what she
Most feared
All her false beauties disappeared,
She was a phantom—no delight—
I turned and cursed her out of sight.

AT THE THEATERS

They say the only true criticism is that of a wholly disinterested critic, who has nothing at stake and does not fear to tell the truth. If that is the case, a letter which drifted into the New York office of the Realart Pictures Corporation several weeks ago from a writer in Hollywood, California, contains about the sincerest praise for the work of little Miss Mary Miles Minter which could be imagined. For the writer in question had no ax to grind either with Miss Minter or the Realart company. He merely is an interested observer of picture people and their work in general, an interested bystander at picture-making, and naturally, from his acquaintance with the work of many stars, somewhat of a critic.

It happened that he saw the first run of the finished film, "A Cumberland Romance," an adaptation from the novel, "A Mountain Europa," by John Fox, Jr. And he thought enough of it to write the following letter to Realart, the very same day: "A Cumberland Romance" is in my opinion the greatest picture Mary Miles Minter has ever done—and I think I have seen her in most of her photoplays. No one can accuse her of being a 'doll' in this picture. She is a living, breathing girl who wonderfully expresses the changes wrought in the quick-tempered, elemental mountain maid under the spur of her love for the cultured man from the city. The criticism that she is never allowed to 'have a curl out of place' is scotched for all time. She ACTS. She takes the character and sustains it from start to finish. In my humble opinion there is not a single flaw in a very beautiful and gripping piece of work.

"To Director Charles Maigne belongs a great share of the credit for this fine production. He gives the star every possible opportunity, but he does not destroy dramatic values by lessening the scenes belonging to other characters, all of whom have strong roles which are convincingly played. "My opinion is that 'A Cumberland Romance' is a 'knockout.'"

The Korean woman has not even a name. In childhood she receives a nickname, by which she is known in the family and by near friends, but, when she arrives at maturity, it is employed only by her parents. To all others she is "the sister of" or "the daughter of" such a person. After her marriage her name is buried; she is absolutely nameless. If it happens that a woman has to appear in a law court, the judge gives her a special name for use while the case lasts, in order to save time and to simplify matters.

A feature of Japanese weddings is the building of a bonfire made of the toys of the bride.

BIG EATERS GET KIDNEY TROUBLE

The American men and women must guard constantly against kidney trouble because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out, they weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times a night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizziness, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys; to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation; thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water beverage, and is found in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.
