DEMONSTRATION OF TRACTORS IS INTERESTING

While super-abundance of enthusiasm among farmers was not evidenced by overflowing attendance, at least during the half hour that the Herald representative was on the lot, the Fordson tractor demonstration on the Sullivan farm two miles south of the city yesterday afternoon was getting results in an astonishing amount of ground turned over, harrowed and smoothed down with a culti-packer. Three Fordsons were working on a ten acre tract, two plowing and one harrowing and rolling and the work was thorough. It was an interesting demonstration for the onlooker, and field representatives of the Ford company and several implement companies who were conducting it, said it was interesting to them. The demonstration will be finished today.

The ground had not been plowed for several years, and never was plowed to the depth reached yesterday. One outfit pulled two fourteen-inch Oliver plows, breaking the soil to an average depth of ten inches. The other had a sixteen inch Oliver, with a sub-soiler attachment. The plow cut to a depth of at least ten inches and the sub-soiler broke the hardpan beneath to a depth of two or three inches more. The sub-soiler was a stiff proposition but the tractor dragged the plow and sub-soiler through without a stop, round after round. The surface was loose but the grouted wheels kept their grip and revolved steadily. Clouds of dust were raised that would have choked a team of horses and make constant rest necessary but the tractors didn't mind the dust a bit.

S. A. Stellwagen, Portland manager of the Ford Motor company, said that the machines were pulling a drawbar load which it would tax ten horses to pull. Most of the plowing was done on intermediate speed, about two and three-quarter miles an hour. The low speed is one and a half miles and high speed is six miles an hour. The tractors operate best on kerosene, he said, but burn either gasoline, distillate or kerosene. The cost of operation is about $3 for ten hours and an average ten hours' work plowing with the two 14 inch shares is six acres.

"The tractor is arriving fast," says Charles Harrison, assistant manager of the Portland branch. "Farmers who own tractors are the men who get the work done. Their crops are in while the neighbor who uses horses is struggling in the mud, half way through with his planting."

People's Market

Mr. Harrison said he saw an interesting demonstration of tractor vs. team while driving from Portland to Salem the other day. He had his son along and the boy is a tractor enthusiast. He suggested that they observe the number of tractors and the number of teams working. Mr. Harrison didn't give the comparative figures yesterday, but he commented on the fact that every tractor outfit they saw was moving, while every team was resting. He admitted that it might have been an unusual day but in the 52 miles he said they did not see one horse-drawn outfit moving, nor one tractor outfit standing still.

Other implement house representatives taking part in the local demonstration are C. Jensen, field representative of the Roderick-Lean Disc Harrow company and Fred Serviss, western representative of the American Seeding Machine company. All implements that work behind the Fordson tractor undergo rigid tests at the Ford plant, with actual field demonstrations. If they pass the manufacturers have Mr. Ford's permission to make and distribute the implements for use with the Fordson. The requirements are exacting and many fail to meet them. One qualification, absolutely insisted upon, is that construction must be so that one man may drive the tractor and easily manage the whole outfit No two-men rigs go.

IRISH OFFICER SLAIN

DUBLIN, July 29.—Frank Brooke, deputy lieutenant for Wicklow county, Leinster province, was assassinated as he alighted from a train this morning. His assailant escaped.

A stock corporation with a capital stock of $200,000 has been organized by women in Korea to deal in the common household commodities.

Managers of prominent summer hotels along the New England coast report that they are suffering this summer for a veritable epidemic of bogus check passing by women stylishly dressed and posing as summer tourists.

The daughter of a Parisian artist was married recently in a bridal gown of white satin beautifully and uniquely painted by the friends and colleagues of her father. The colors used were so dainty and delicate that, strange to say, the effect of the dress was most beautiful and harmonious.

Mrs. M. Frances Brady, of Watertown, has been appointed an assistant district attorney of Middlesex County, Mass. It is said to be the second case in the United States where a woman has been named for such an office, the other being in New York City. Mrs. Brady in her new position will receive a salary of $2250 a year.

It has been humorously suggested that by living so long, Mme. Sarah Bernhardt, the eminent French actress, is defeating her own ends, for she has already tested her coffin by sleeping in it, and some thirty years ago she had a tomb erected for herself in Pere Lachaise cemetery in Paris. The tomb is a magnificent affair of marble and she has frequently visited it and heaped it with flowers.

If Oregon merchants would see to it that 25 per cent of their stock was made in Oregon, there would not be enough workmen in the state to make the products. The result would be more workmen, bigger payrolls and more business for everybody in the state, especially the merchants.

The American power boat handicap for the cruiser championship of America will be held on Long Island sound on August 14, in connection with the annual regatta of the New York Athletic club. The distance of the championship race will be 50 nautical miles.

Mrs. Arthur Hamilton, the first woman to swim the Solent, is going to repeat this summer her attempt to swim the English channel, in which she failed last year. Whether she will be more successful this time remains to be seen, but the chances seem to be against her. Many expert women swimmers tried the feat, but none so far has come within even measurable distance of success.

New York fans are now wagering that "Babe" Ruth, the home-run king, will pass the 50-mark before the season is many weeks older.

HUN OFFICERS HAVE HARD LOT

BERLIN, July 7. (By Mail).—No one in Germany sighs more fervently for "the good old days" of the kaiser than the former army officer. Forced off the government payroll by the reduction of the army, untrained for work other than soldiering, and so generally disliked by the population that he has difficulty in finding any kind of employment, the officer's lot in democratic Germany is a hard one. His pre-war world, in which he strutted about as the privileged pet of his emperor, has been utterly destroyed.

Many have been reduced to extreme financial straits. The middle-aged ex-officer gets a pension of 3,800 marks a year, but that is only about a fifth of the amount required to maintain a family. So urgent is their need that a movement has been set on foot to form an ex-officer's association for the purpose of inducing the government to provide them with land and subsidies.

A former officer, deftly discussing with the correspondent the plight of himself and his fellows, remarked that the expression once current in the United States, "There's no good Indian but a dead Indian," applied precisely nowadays to the German public's attitude toward the officer class.

Private soldiers bear out this statement. "At the beginning of the war," one said, "the troops were fond of their officers, who ate the same food, carried their own packs, and shared the hardships of the men. But most of the regular officers were quickly killed off, and those left were sent away from the lines for staff and other duties.

"Their places were taken by reserves, who were an entirely different lot. They had to have special kitchens and milk and plenty of wine. They refused to march with the troops, always riding in automobiles, and making the men carry their packs. They were bullies and tyrants, and the men grew to hate them. The civilian population felt the same way. I was in Belgium when the armistice was signed, and when we withdrew to the Rhineland the people there were willing enough to provide lodgings for us privates, but they refused to have officers in their homes. Those fellows now are only getting what's coming to them."

In a number of cases ex-officers have found themselves inadvertently applying for work to the very privates they once commanded. These former soldiers, business men and shopkeepers, take keen delight, it is said, in turning down their old superiors. Many of the young ex-officers are taking up engineering and other technical lines, starting at the bottom of the ladder as manual workers in overalls.

After the first revolution it was a risky thing for an officer to appear on the streets in uniform. They were emboldened by the Kapp coup last March and since then have been showing themselves in increasing numbers, especially student reserve officers, who are easily identified by their pale faces slashed with fresh sword cuts received in duels.

St. Paul is preparing for the entertainment of the tenth annual tournament of the National Printers' Baseball league. The game will begin on the last day of July and continue over a period of one week.

Carl Lundgren, baseball coach at the University of Michigan since 1914, is to leave this fall to accept a similar position at the University of Illinois, where he first won fame as a pitcher 20 years ago.

Old Ben Tincup, the Indian player once with the Phillies, has been setting such a lively pace with the Louisville club this season that it would not be surprising if he were given another try in the majors.

Unless there is a two-year-old hidden away some place in reserve for the big stakes to come later in the season, the championship among juveniles might just as well be handed to Incheape, the great son of Friar Rock and Rose of Gold.

Bryan Downey, the Columbus fighter, has two younger brothers now in the mitt game. Anthony is a 150-pound boy, while Joe, the "baby" of the family, tips the beam at 205 pounds.

A New Orleans promoter is endeavoring to bring together Johnny Wilson, the new middleweight champion, and "Happy" Littleton, who has made a good showing in his recent bouts in the Crescent City.

The new executive board of the General Federation of Women's Clubs will hold its first meeting in Washington, D. C., Sept. 14-16.
