Society

There is every excuse for lack of society news these days; always there is the hot lazy weather to consider, and the vacation spirit which causes society to move to the country, the berry patch and trout streams in an attempt to get away from town life and all its worries. Summer brings woe to every society reporter, whether in the large city or the small town, and one is distracted to know where to turn for news to fill the Saturday column.

A jolly dancing party was given at the county infirmary Saturday by Miss Gladys Markwardt, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Edward Owens, who are managers of the infirmary. The immense porch was used for dancing and later in the evening a delightful supper was served by the hostess.

The guests were: Miss Lottie Fischer, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Cornish, Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Davison, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Sreeman, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Wabbles, Mr. and Mrs. Fritz Markwardt, Francis Hannon, Robert and George Fischer and Mr. Mann.

The ladies of the Sacred Heart Campaign fund drive who started their work of canvassing the city this week, met at luncheon at the Rex cafe Thursday for a social and business hour.

The new emphasis on trained leadership was the interesting topic taken up during the social and business hour of the Women's Missionary Society of the Christian church, at the home of Mrs. Ray Anderson, Thursday afternoon.

Seventeen ladies were present. Talks were given by Mrs. J. E. Beckley, Mrs. George Wirtz, Mrs. C. F. Trimble and others. Mrs. W. E. Seehorn and Mrs. E. J. Mayer assisted the hostess and refreshments were served during the afternoon.

At four o'clock this afternoon Miss Anna Hackland became the wife of Samuel Eugene Holden, at the home of her mother, Mrs. George B. Downing, on Seventh and Washington streets. The Rev. C. F. Trimble officiated at the wedding, and Miss Ruth Linsey acted as maid of honor. The bride's brother, Bernard Hackland stood up with Mr. Holden. The only other guests were the immediate family. A light lunch was served at the close of the ceremony and the young couple left at once for a honeymoon trip to Crater Lake.

Mrs. Holden was one of the most popular girls to graduate with the class of 1926 from the Klamath county high school. She is also a graduate of the public schools here. Since her graduation she has been employed by the First National bank.

Mr. Holden is a recent arrival in Klamath county, having come here this year to accept a position with the California-Oregon Power company. He was formerly a resident of Chicago.

Eugene Melvin Prouty and Nellie Lewis were married last night by the Rev. F. C. Trimble at the home of the bride, Miss Lewis is a Klamath Falls girl, having been raised here and educated in the city schools. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Lewis, old residents of Klamath county.

At a quiet wedding yesterday at eleven thirty Samuel F. Long and Hazel Barrow were married. Rev. E. P. Lawrence performed the ceremony and A. L. Christy and B. F. Hogue acted as witnesses.

The bride has been a teacher in the country schools of Klamath county for a short time. Mr. Long has but recently come to Klamath Falls from Grants Pass. He is a well known logging contractor there.

The Happy Hour Club will meet at the home of Mrs. George Humphrey at her home at 69 Pine street next Tuesday afternoon.

Boost your city, boost your friend, Boost the lodge that you attend; Boost the street on which you're dwelling Boost the crowd that you are selling, Boost the people round about you; Possibly they can do without you; But success will quicker find them, If they know that you're behind them.

Boost for every forward movement, Boost for every new improvement; Boost the stranger and the neighbor, Boost the man for whom you labor, Cease to be a chronic knocker, Cease to be a progress blocker; And if you would have your home town better, Boost it, boost it to the top letter.

AT THE THEATERS

"The Fighting Shepherdess" is a dramatic story of life in the picturesque western sheep country. Kate Prentice, played by Anita Stewart, is the pretty daughter of the proprietress of a questionable roadhouse. Saved from the advances of Pete Mullendore, half Indian and half negro, by Mormon Joe, a recluse sheepherder, she leaves the tavern. She becomes Mormon Joe's protegee and partner in the sheep business. Kate is happy until she hears the gossip calling her "Mormon Joe's Kate." Hughie Disston, from the East, visits the sheep country, meets Kate and accepts a dare to take her to the Boosters' Ball. Kate is shunned, but on the way home Hughie tells her he loves her and that when his college career is completed, he will return for her. That night Mormon Joe is murdered, and suspicion points to Kate. Lack of evidence frees her, but the stain remains. Kate becomes wealthy. Hughie returns, but finds a change in Kate, and goes back to the city heart broken. Mullendore, who has acquired large sheep holdings and political influence, orders Kate to leave the community, but fate intervenes. Dying as the result of a fight, he confesses murdering Mormon Joe. Those who scorned the fighting shepherdess learn to love her, not excluding Hughie. But money doesn't bring her happiness. A big sacrifice does. At the Star Theatre Sunday.

Tom Mix is to be seen as a United States Deputy Marshall—a part he played in real life many years ago—in his latest production, "The Terror," at the Liberty Theatre tonight.

This is only one of the many adventurous chapters that have been written into Tom Mix's life. He left the Virginia Military Academy at the outbreak of the Spanish-American war to enlist with Col. Roosevelt's Rough Riders for service in Cuba. He was a member of the American Expeditionary force which suppressed Filipino uprisings. He helped quell the Boxer uprising in China, and was severely wounded there.

Upon recovering from his wounds Mix joined the Texas Rangers, and there followed numerous exciting incidents, the full story of which would make an exceedingly exciting motion picture scenario. It was soon after this that he became a United States Deputy Marshall.

For three years from his cellar shop window William Grogan, journeyman plumber, had seen the same two shapely feet trip lightly by. Saturdays and minus the gap of July and August led him to the conclusion that she was a school teacher. He had never seen her face, and yet he fell in love with the girl whose feet twinkled past every day. In quest of adventure, he put himself aboard a ship for a trip around the world. The pair of feet was on the same boat. Mystery, adventure, treachery and love, with the strange luck of the Irish, make this story a thrilling romance indeed.

"The Luck of the Irish" is an Allan Dwan screen adaptation of Harold MacGrath's most popular novel by the same name. It is the feature attraction at The Liberty Theatre Sunday.

"Trilby," the famous novel and stage drama, has again been dramatized through the medium of the screen. It will be shown at the Liberty on Monday with the much-admired Clara Kimball Young in the sensational role of "Trilby."

"Trilby" is the story which caused such a sensation after it was published years ago. The screen version magnifies the action and drama in the story and with Maurice Tourneur as the director it has been given the full benefit of a skillful handling. "Trilby" will probably go down in motion picture annals as one of the greatest screen dramas ever produced.

Ours is a practical people, to whom ideals furnish the theory of political action, upon which they want not only firm assurance but also effective practice. They want programmes, but they want action to flow from them. They want constructive common sense. They want the development of the common will, not the views of a single individual. They are beginning to realize that words without action are the assassins of idealism. On the other side, they are equally disgusted with seeking for power by destructive criticism, demagoguery, specious promises and sham.—Herbert Hoover.

Miss Sportleigh—"Mercy no, Mr. Jones, I don't know a thing about the game. I don't even know which end the caddy you take hold of when you hit the ball."
