

FORDSON FARM TRACTOR

$935 ON YOUR FARM

FOR YEARS, Tractor manufacturers have spent much time and money, and have also accumulated many gray hairs, trying to produce a tractor that will plow—plowing being their only objective.

Henry Ford built 57 models while trying to find the type of tractor that would not only plow successfully but, having completed your plowing, you must have a tractor that will successfully do your surface work, and give you a completed seed bed. This he accomplished when he completed the 58th, or the present satisfactory model.

This model Fordson tractor has been on the market two years, and although within that time there have been a few mechanical improvements and corrections, the principle and design will never be altered, and Henry Ford's best recommendation for this tractor is the work that your neighbor is doing with his Fordson. At present it is being used for binding, baling and threshing. It is a year-around tractor. Its work is not confined to one season.

The Fordson tractor is now distributed by the Ford Motor company through its branches throughout the world, and thus the same service may be obtained by Fordson owners that Ford auto owners have enjoyed for so many years, and which has made it necessary to dodge them continually on the roads.

Again, the large expenditure of money by big manufacturers in order to produce implements in proportion to Mr. Ford's needs, assures the people of their faith in Ford products.

A $25.00 deposit places your order in line for a Fordson tractor or a Ford car, and we shall appreciate that order.

It is said that white is to be the new Irish flag, with a red cross of St. Patrick and a golden shamrock in each corner. The familiar harp is not included in the design. As a matter of fact, Irishmen are not nearly as fond of the harp as other people imagine. They say it belongs to Little Wales.
