

SEEK HIGHER STANDARD OF LEGAL ETHICS

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 16.—More organized activity by bar associations in the selection of fit candidates for judicial offices is urged by the committee on professional ethics and grievances in a report prepared for presentation at the annual convention of the American Bar association here, August 25-27.

In the opinion of the committee "an appointive judiciary with a preliminary endorsement of candidates by the bar is the ideal manner to secure a uniformly efficient bench."

The report also emphasizes the need for thorough cooperation of members of the judiciary and the bar, for the purpose of maintaining high professional standards in legal practice.

Questionnaires seeking suggestions as to how this cooperation might be accomplished have been sent out to approximately 1500 members of the judiciary throughout the United States during the past year, according to the report, which has been made public by the local committee in charge of arrangements.

In reply, it states, recommendations have been made that the bars in the various localities be incorporated, with the canons of ethics as a part of their constitution. Wherever this plan is carried out, the recommendation is made that the corporations be entrusted with complete supervision of the activities of all practicing attorneys and of those who follow the profession without first having met the prescribed tests.

The report suggests that the lack of tests as to character of applicants for admission to the bar "is the cause of many unworthy men slipping in."

Many points as to ethical practice have been raised during the year, according to the report, and the committee, in turn, it states, has sought to obtain comprehensive information as to the ethical observances in courts throughout the United States and the disciplinary practices invoked for breaches of professional conduct.

One of the recommendations embodied in the report is that the committee be centralized to allow the holding of conferences at stated times, in order to act on important questions which arise.

The members of the committee are Henry W. Jessup of New York; Thomas Patterson of Pittsburgh; Jas. D. Shearer of Minneapolis; Hugh Henry Brown of Tonopah, Nev. and Henry J. Carter of New Orleans.

WORK STARTS ON LAKEVIEW MILL

LAKEVIEW, Ore., August 16.—(Special to the Herald.)—Survey for a new mill site, 16 miles north of here, will be started immediately it was reported here today. Pennsylvania capitalists are behind the project, which will start with a single-hand mill and a daily capacity of 60,000 feet, it is said. Timber is available for operations covering the next 15 years at the initial capacity.

It is planned to build a logging road from this city to the mills, shipping the product through here. The plans at present are to have the mill in operation at the opening of the season next year.

To start, the product of the mill will be manufactured at Reno, where the men behind it expect to establish a small factory for sash, doors and other products. When the N. C. & O. railway into Lakeview is broad-gauged, as present information, which so far is not detailed, indicates it will be the Reno plant will be moved to this city and enlarged, it is reported.

BOXING BOUTS
ARRANGED FOR SAT-NIGHT

Frank Smith, newly appointed matchmaker of the Klamath Falls boxing commission, today announces completion of a card for Saturday night, the first fights pulled off in the local arena for several months. The promoter says that all of the boxers who have signed up have deposited forfeits for non-appearance and the bouts will come off according to schedule.

The headliner is a ten-round welterweight battle between Billy Huff and Bobbie Wagner, both well known in athletic circles. Huff's name is always a drawing card with local fans. Wagner, who has appeared here on two or three occasions, is an all round athlete and made a name for himself in northwest intercollegiate football before entering the ring.

Louie Lyon of Los Angeles will meet Eddie Murphy, the local boxer, in a six-round special event. Murphy has proved himself a hard hitter, of no small cleverness. Lyons, who has been here for several days, has met some good men in his ring career, including Roy Fain, Stanley Thompson, Young Fitzsimmons and Danny Wordell, the Canadian champion, whom he defeated.

Kid Willis of Klamath Falls and Young Hartley of Yreka are down for a four-round bout and a couple of local boys will be picked for the other preliminary.

The third man in the ring will be "Wild Bill" Reed of San Francisco, who aspires to tackle Earl Ritchie, local heavyweight. A match has practically been arranged for Labor Day.

Frank Smith, the new matchmaker, has had 30 years experience in the game, starting with the Denver Athletic Club, for which he was promoter for several years. He organized and conducted for years the Elite Athletic club of Ogden and was instrumental in bringing out a number of well known boxers, including Young Corbett and Denver Kid Parker.

Alaska has nearly as many varieties of climate as can be found in the eastern or middle western states.

ROAD BUILDERS
ENJOINED FROM DAMAGING ACTS

A mandatory injunction against Klamath county, its county court, the state highway commission, Oscar Huber, contractor, and J. W. Moorhead, sub-contractor on the Malin-Klamath Falls stretch of the Malin to California highway, was issued late Saturday by Judge D. V. Kuykendall, on petition of Robert D. and Fannie M. Cheyne, forbidding defendants from damaging ditches, fences and crops of plaintiffs during course of the road construction.

The order decrees that the defendants must not leave the established right of way and trespass on plaintiff's premises, that they must keep all livestock off plaintiff's fields, and that they must at once build culverts through the road embankment to carry the irrigation water across.

This injunction suit was directed solely against alleged acts of damage and trespass, and is entirely different from the recent suit brought by Sophia S. Henley, which sought to restrain entirely the county and highway commission from entrance upon plaintiff's land.

SINNOTT SAYS
CONGRESSIONAL

(Oregonian)

What the west should do to educate the easterners as to the value of irrigation, is to bring 150 or 200 members of congress into a couple of irrigation states where they can see just what is being accomplished, according to N. J. Sinnott, representative from the second congressional district. Mr. Sinnott, who was at the Imperial yesterday, says that the recent visit of members of the appropriations committee will be of great benefit to Oregon.

"There were three members of the committee who came west," explained Mr. Sinnott, "who had more or less of an impression that irrigation was simply a means of getting appropriations from the government."

Now they know what irrigation means. Mr. Wood, of Indiana, found men from his state on the various irrigation projects which we visited.

"There was a delegation of them to greet him at Hermiston and tell him of what water had done to that country. Meeting so many home folks who are irrigationists gave Mr. Wood a new angle on the proposition. A committee man from New Jersey found a man from his own district on an irrigation farm and this former constituent showed that he has made a clear profit of $40,000 in 10 years as an irrigationist. A committee man from Iowa also found men from his state who are out in the west on these projects.

"When I left the committee in Montana, the easterners were even more enthusiastic over irrigation than any westerner I have found. They talked of the 'arid west' until I showed them fields of alfalfa and when they returned home their viewpoint had entirely changed. They no longer know that 'irrigation is not merely a scheme to get appropriations from the government, but that it means the development of the west."

"If this idea could be carried out—educating members of congress—reclamation would make faster progress than it can by resolutions and memorials. If the irrigation congresses instead of holding meetings would raise a fund to bring a large number of congressmen to see what irrigation is doing, it would be money well spent.

"The trouble with the mid-western and eastern member of congress is that they cannot grasp the possibilities of irrigation, but if given an opportunity to see with their own eyes what has been accomplished by pro-

GIGANTIC PLAN FOR IRRIGATING
ALL CALIFORNIA

SACRAMENTO, August 16.—Tentative plans of Colonel R. B. Marshall of the United States Geological Survey for irrigating practically the entire interior of California through the means of water storage and a gigantic canal system, starting at the proposed dam site of the Iron Canyon project, in Tehama county, were outlined before the Sacramento Valley Water Users' Committee organization meeting here for the first time, Saturday.

While admitting that his scheme is one of the most comprehensive proposed and would cost millions of dollars, he expressed the belief that the project is not only feasible but probably the only permanent solution of the water shortage problem.

The size of the canals, which would cover both sides of the Sacramento and San Joaquin valleys, he declared, would have to be determined by an engineering investigation, but this, he added, could be readily accomplished once the soundness of the project has been decided upon.

He estimates the canals would carry sufficient water for the year-round irrigation of 12,000,000 acres of land, an empire in itself.

Marshall told the committee he has been about thirty years with the geological survey and, after a thorough study of the subject, has become thoroughly convinced, there is plenty of water for all user in California if properly conserved.

He explained he not only would conserve the waters which now run to waste in the Sacramento and San Joaquin rivers and their tributaries, but would aim to increase the supply by bringing the Klamath into the Sacramento through the Shasta Pass. He also would prevent the encroachment of salt waters from the San Francisco and Suisun by carrying out the construction of the talked-of dam across Carquinez Straits.

SPRINGS AND WELLS IN SEKSIYOU RUN DRY

REDDING, Aug. 16.—Springs and wells in the Siskiyou have gone dry, according to a report received here.

Southern Pacific water tanks at Hornbrook, Grass Lake, Cole, Steinman and Siskiyou have suffered heavily by the drought.

The railroad is meeting the emergency by shipping water to its tanks in oil cars. Water is being pumped from the Klamath river to locomotives at Klamath, below Hornbrook, a subdivision point.

ACCIDENTALLY SHOT;
DEAD AS RESULT

PENDLETON, Aug. 16.—W. C. E. Pruitt, publicity agent of the Round-up, one of the best known newspaper men in the northwest, died early today following the amputation of his left foot. The foot was injured yesterday when a shotgun was accidentally discharged.

About as much money as the war cost would be required today to induce the New York Club to sell "Babe" Ruth, or the St. Louis Cardinals to part with Roger Hornsby.

jects, they would receive a liberal education within a few days. It would not be necessary to take them all over the west—they could go into Idaho or the Yakima district. Every man who would make such a trip, and it should be a pleasure trip, would be a booster for reclamation."

Mr. Sinnott says that he contemplates making a complete tour of his district before returning to Washington. Senator C. L. McNary will probably accompany him through the second district.

OHIO CITY SUFFERS
HEAVILY FROM STORM

TOLEDO, O., August 16.—Damage estimated at more than $1,000,000 was done here today by a severe rainstorm, which floated away stretches of city paving, flooded cellars and paralyzed traffic.

PERMIT WILL NOT BE GRANTED

Despite considerable progress in the erection of a carnival outfit on Klamath avenue near Eighth street, two members of the city council indicated today that an application for a permit to conduct the affair would be denied. It is understood the permit will be asked for at tonight's council meeting.

A dancing platform has been partially erected. There is no objection to this said Councilmen Brandenburg and Upp, the only members of the council available for an interview. Both said, however, that they opposed wheels of fortune and other gambling features which are already on the ground.

An occupation license has already been secured by O. J. Underwood, but it is understood this covers only the dancing floor. The games and booths, the councilmen thought, were separately managed.

Councilman Brandenburg said he heard last week, while acting mayor, that the proprietors of the devices intended to operate without a license, and he instructed the police to stop them immediately. He said that the owners had been to see him in regard to the matter, but he did not take their names.

The new ordinance licensing tent shows, etc., passed by the council a few weeks ago, fixes the license for carnivals at $100 a day, and limits them to a six days' stay here.

TANK OPENS TO
KIDDIES TOMORROW

The civic and educational committee of the Klamath county chamber of commerce met Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock and directed the formation of regulations for the school children who are to have free use of the Hot Springs plunge every Tuesday and Thursday morning. Dr. Stewart was present and offered his assistance as swimming instructor for one hour each week. This offer was accepted and Dr. Stewart will be on hand tomorrow morning when the tank will be opened to the children.

The following tentative regulations have been adopted:

All children up to 13 will be admitted to the tank from 8:30 to 10 o'clock. Children from 13 to 16 will be admitted after 10 o'clock. Parents are requested to instruct the children to stay in the tank not exceeding one hour.

The committee want to have it understood that this is to include children from any part of Klamath county as well as those residing in town, and any child who lives within driving distance who wants to take advantage of the swimming instruction should try to be at the tank at the hours designated. The instructions and use of the tank will be entirely free to children who have their own towels and bathing suits. Children may secure at the tanks, suits and towels at the cost of ten cents per suit and five cents per towel.

The committee in charge of the tank held a meeting this afternoon at 1:30 to complete arrangements and will all be on hand tomorrow morning to assist in the work of handling the children. Any parents or others in town who will volunteer their services in handling the tank should phone the secretary of the chamber of commerce, or any member of the committee.

SEN. CHAMBERLAIN EXPECTED

Postmaster W. A. Delsell had a telegram Saturday from Senator Chamberlain, stating that the senator would arrive in Klamath Falls this evening by way to Crater Lake.

CRANE MILL
BURNED; SET
FIRE SUSPECTED

Fire, suspected of being incendiary in origin, yesterday destroyed H. E. Crane's mill on the Rahn ranch at Swan Lake. The loss is estimated at $20,000, covered by $12,000 insurance. The mill was entirely destroyed.

The fire started between 12 noon, and 1 o'clock, in the center of the mill. There were five employees on the premises, including the watchman who had left the mill and joined the others at dinner. It was about one o'clock when the fire was discovered.

Attempts to save the plant were handicapped by lack of water, and it was later discovered that the pipe line that supplies the mill had been disconnected about a quarter of a mile from the plant. The flames had gained such headway when discovered, however, that the small force of fire-fighters would have been unable to have quenched them, had the water been running.

One of the employees of the plant stated that he saw a man running from the spot where the pipe line was disconnected, keeping under cover of a fence. He says he recognized the fugitive.

The mill was built this season and recently started operating. It had just reached good running order and was turning out about 20,000 feet daily. None of the sawed lumber was destroyed, nor were any logs burned.

MORE TALK OF AERIAL STATION

Tomorrow afternoon Klamath Falls will be visited by one of the finest types of airplanes now in the service of the Oregon, Washington and Idaho Airplane Company. N. R. Evans, who represents that company, is here today with a view of locating a field at this point. The airplane which will arrive tomorrow will be the Curtiss Oriole and will do a number of fancy stunts while here.

This company has in mind the organization of a branch company here with a view to establishing airplane service between this point and Medford, Bend and Lakeview. They also plan to establish a hydroplane line from Upper to Lower Klamath Lake and from Klamath Lake to Crater Lake. The last named trips will be one of the most spectacular and interesting flights in the world.

A few minutes discussion of this proposition will be one of the features of the members forum of the chamber of commerce on Wednesday. All members of the chamber should not forget that the regular weekly forum will be held again this week on Wednesday at 12:30 at the White Pelican hotel, and in order to have a seat you should reserve same by phoning the secretary of the chamber of commerce as early as possible. Another real treat will be given all those on hand at this meeting.

CHARGED WITH ATTEMPTED FRAUD

Alleged acceptance of transportation from an employment agency in San Francisco, representing the Algoma Lumber company, to the plant of the lumber company at Algoma and failure to go to work under their agreement, is the cause for confinement in the city jail of five Mexican laborers, M. Negrita, F. E. Amaya, A. Madrid, T. Rivas and C. Garida. They are charged with defrauding their employer.

The alleged agreement was that the men should receive transportation, refundable after 60 days of employment. They arrived at the camp at noon, it is reported, and after an altercation with the boarding house keeper, left almost immediately. They took the train for Klamath Falls and were arrested here.
