Demi-Gods of Old Rome.
Castor and Pollux, also called the Dioscuri, were heroes or demi-gods of early Grecian mythology. They were brothers and said to be the sons of Zeus, who in Grecian mythology corresponds to Jupiter in the mythology of Rome. Castor was famous for his skill in taming and managing horses, and Pollux for his skill in boxing. Although they were buried, says the Grecian poet Homer, yet they came to life every other day and enjoyed divine honors. The worship of Castor and Pollux was introduced at Rome at an early time. They were held to have aided the Romans in battle with the Latins, or natives of Italy, and a temple was erected to them in the forum. After these two mythical heroes was the ship named in which St. Paul completed his memorable voyage to Italy, in order that he might appeal to Caesar for justice and protection.

Eskimo Inherently Honest.
The Eskimo regards honesty as paramount. He will never misrepresent facts, and although he may want to dispose of an article badly he will rather depreciate it than run the risk of overpraising. A man who lies or deceives another is severely punished. An Eskimo will not permit a fellow man to need for food or clothing, once he has enough for himself and his family. War, to the parka-hooded men of the North, is unknown. They decide differences by staging dance duels and outwitting each other, and old men act as judges to decide winners. In this way honor is satisfied. Brutality is unknown. In combating nature, fighting the walrus, the whale and the bear with primitive weapons, the Eskimo displays unusual coolness and plans his way out of danger with extreme self-possession.

Value of Snakes.
Most people have a decided shrinking from snakes, which is not to be wondered at in tropical countries.

STOP PUBLIC CREMATION OF HINDOO CORPSES

VANCOUVER, B. C., Aug. 17.—Following recent action of the city council in notifying the local Hindoo colony that no further open-air cremation of bodies would be allowed in the plot hitherto reserved for that purpose in the Mountain View cemetery, a petition has been presented to the civic health committee by the Khalsa Diwan society against such action.

Aldermen were urged not to interfere with Hindoo funeral rites, for their religion requires open-air ceremonies. They objected to using the crematorium as the aldermen suggested.

where their bite is venomous and often fatal. But the grass snake ought not to be confounded with the rattlers, cobras or pythons. It is as harmless to humanity as a frog and a good deal more useful. No greater enemy to bugs is in existence. And slugs are among the most hurtful of garden and field pests. They keep down the numbers also of such other pests as mice, shrews and other small rodents. But as slug destroyers they deserve to be cherished rather than massacred at sight, which is their usual fate.

TOWN DIED CENTURIES AGO

Segovia, in Spain, Has Signs of Life Only Part of One Day of Each Week.

Segovia is a dead city of Spain. There are dead towns in this country which both lived and died within half a century, and few that are much more than a century old. But Segovia died centuries ago, and it is as old as civilization in Europe.

The Romans built Segovia. It stands on a rocky ridge between two swift rivers—a compact little city of narrow streets and old stone houses crowded together. A mighty aqueduct, which was built by the Romans, still brings the city its water supply from the Guadarrama mountains. Segovia, high and narrow on its ridge, lies like a great ship in the plain, moored by its aqueduct to the distant mountains.

Segovia is a city of deserted churches. Long ago it lay in a sort of contested land between the region held by the Moors and that held by the Christians. Sometimes one held it and sometimes the other. Both built churches there. Now Segovia has lost so much of its population that most of these churches stand empty, despite the fact that Spain is a pious land. Some of them have been locked for centuries, and only the bats know the secrets of their dark interiors, where neither sound nor sunlight has been for so long. Others have attendants who will open their doors to the curious.

Once a week Segovia awakens. Peasants come to the city from all the surrounding country. They are primitive people who look like figures from the middle ages. There is laughter and color in the streets then. Bells ring and a few of the churches open their doors to worshippers. But by sunset all of the peasants are gone and Segovia goes to sleep for another week.

EASY WAY TO CLEAN CLOCK

Small Piece of Kerosene-Soaked Wool Placed in Case Will Gather Dust Particles.

When a clock stops it is a mistake to suppose that it must at once be taken to the workshop for repairs. In most cases clocks cease running because of the accumulation of dust particles which clog the bearings. It is not even needful to take the clock to pieces to clean it if a simple plan is followed which will be found to work very well. Soak a piece of cotton wool in kerosene and place this in a small saucer, a canister lid, or anything similar. Then put this in the case of the clock under the works. Close up, and at the end of 24 hours, examine the cotton wool. It will be found to be covered with black specks; these are the dust particles brought down by the fumes of the kerosene. Wind the clock up and it will start away again. Where the works of the clock are in an enclosed case a few drops of kerosene should be poured through the small hole which is present in the metal covering. Turn the clock about a while so that the kerosene is distributed and after an interval it is extremely likely that the works will commence their normal operations again.—Scientific American.

Learn the Art of Life.

Life is so full of beautiful stories that it is inconceivable that there should be any need of fiction or any other form of art. Life itself is an art and requires artists to live it. There are few of these and that may account for written art.

People who can live on the plane of their agreements and avoid the plane of their antipathies make life an art. There was a cobbler friend of ours, poor, honest, witty, a philosopher and withal handsome. He had a wonderfully gifted, beautiful sister and she married a forceful "plute," who was devoted to her and whom she loved as truly as she loved her brother, the shoemaker. The shoemaker was a leader in a radical reform movement; the plute was the leader of the opposition. The shoemaker disdained any sort of financial help from his brother-in-law, but being an old bachelor, lived in the plute's house, sharing a

AT THE THEATERS

"Brothers Divided," booked for the Liberty Theater for tomorrow, is one of those pictures that make the world seem like a mighty fine place to live in.

The story revolves about two brothers—one crabbed and selfish and hard; the other tender and generous, and square. Twenty years in the confines of a prison had taught him to appreciate human nature, and when circumstances placed him in charge of his brother's mill, where the employees were overworked and underpaid, he told them of his past and asked for a chance to make good.

He got it—the result brings this delightful human interest story of work and play, and just plain, happy living to a close that sends a smile chasing the tears away.

"Renee the Adored" is the title by which Renee Adoree, leading lady in "The Strongest," which will be presented at the Liberty theater next Wednesday, is known in Paris, her native city. This popular star of the Folies Bergieres and the Alhambra is one of the most popular actresses that ever graced the French stage.

In "The Strongest" Mile. Adoree is making her screen debut, and it was at the request of the author, "The Tiger of France," that she journeyed across the Atlantic to interpret the delightful Claudie of the story.

Mile. Adoree is undoubtedly one of the most beautiful women in the world, and if she can be persuaded to remain in the silent drama her success will be rapid and lasting, because, in addition to her great beauty, she is an actress of exceptional dramatic ability.

TRUCKS ALLOTTED

HELENA, Mont., Aug. 16.—A Washington, D. C. dispatch says Montana has received from the war department through the bureau of public roads of the department of agriculture, 416 trucks of various kinds and a vast amount of other valuable material for use in state road work.

This statement is outlined in a letter from John N. Eddy of Helena, chief engineer of the Montana highway commission, to Dr. O. J. Owens of the Southern Commercial Congress.

It is under a provision framed by Dr. Owens and introduced into the senate by Senator Bankhead that war trucks and material are being allotted the states for highway building.

happy family life. There was never a discordant word uttered, because those three tacitly avoided topics on which they did not agree. They knew the art of life.—Chicago News.

GOLDEN RULE VANNICE BROTHERS

First Showing of the NEW FALL STYLES

THE NEW FALL STYLES are creations of real beauty and charm. The designers of today are artists and students. Artists in the way they handle their colors; students of the style periods of the days gone by. Decorative motifs found in the new Fall Fashions may have been originated centuries ago, a cleverly draped effect may have been the idea of some belle of the Second Empire—whatever the past eras have contributed and devised for the adornment of women has been adapted to the present-day demands by the designers of France and America.

Not all of the new Fall Styles have arrived. A large number of advance models have been rushed to us, by express, for this first showing of the autumn fashions. The others are being made up and will be shipped to us from time to time.

The question of the new Fall costume is bound to be an all absorbing topic for the next month or so.

In order to give you an idea of the style trends and Fashion edicts for Fall, we have arranged a display of some of the most charming of the new modes in the show-windows along our entire Main street frontage. Here you will find many of the most fetching styles in a setting that sets them off to their advantage.

EXCELLENT buying connections enable us to open a new department and to assure our clientele that our showing of the new Fall Styles will be second to none in Oregon. That seems to be a rather broad statement, but we are able to show a large assortment of chic, fresh, NEW millinery because EVERY HAT WHICH HAS NOT BEEN SOLD AT THE END OF TWO WEEKS may be returned by us, to the manufacturers and exchanged for other and newer styles—an unusual privilege.
