ACCIDENT COMMISSION SUES FOR PREMIUM

Suit to recover $299.33, alleged to be due as premium for industrial accident protection, has been filed in the circuit court against C. T. Darley, county engineer, by the state industrial accident commission. It is asserted that between 1915 and 1918 defendant at various times employed carpenters, plasterers, and excavators, and did not at any time waive protection under the industrial accident law. An audit of the payroll shows that the amount sued for is due, the complaint alleges.

Part of the work was done on the Strahorn railway, for which the defendant had a construction contract.

EXPLOSION OF POWDER TIES UP TRAFFIC

Passengers into Klamath Falls from the north night before last were delayed several hours on the Siskiyou mountains, just this side of the town of Siskiyou, while a wrecking crew cleared up the remains of a powder car that exploded in the midst of a freight train.

The details of the accident had not been obtained today but it is known that no one was injured when the car blew up, and the burning of two other cars was the only other damage, besides the delaying of the passenger train. Klamath Falls passengers stayed in Weed and came on last night.

LOST IN MAZES OF OWN TRACKS

"Hey, there, how far is it to Odesa?" This question was fired at a fellow who was going to Odesa and it was asked by a chap who thought that he was headed towards this well known resort. "Odesa? Why, man, you are headed for Klamath Falls." Then a few words of explanation and each proceeded on his way rejoicing. And to all of this hangs a tale.

Sunday, John McCall, assistant postmaster, left here for Crater Lake, expecting to spend most of the day there. Everything went lovely until he reached the point where the road leading to Eagle Ridge leaves the westside highway. He decided it led straight to Crater Lake, and did not discover his mistake until he had reached Eagle Ridge. He backtracked, but when he reached the main highway his sense of direction went askew, and instead of turning north, "they say" that he seasawed back and forth between Eagle Ridge and Long Lake most of the day, until finally he asked a tourist to pilot him out of the maze of tracks he had been making, and he finally reached the scenic wonder of the world late in the afternoon, so tired that he had to stay there all night.

When asked about it he said the report was "greatly exaggerated" but from the glint in his eye and the vehemence with which he remarked about it being "darned funny that there are no road signs," one was led to believe that he must have had a merry time cutting circles when he should have been traveling the straight and narrow path to the place higher up.

FREAK BET MADE ON PRESIDENTIAL RACE

NOGALES, Ariz., Aug. 19.—What is said to be the first freak election bet in Arizona on the Harding-Cox contest was made here by two residents of Patagonia, a mountain mining camp about 28 miles from here. Dr. H. J. Chenette and Kent Taylor have wagered a trip in a peanut cart from Patagonia to Nogales, Sonora, on the election. If Senator Harding is elected, Taylor will push the druggist from Patagonia over the dry mountain road in the cart and buy him a drink in Mexico, which could not be legally purchased in the United States. If Cox wins, the hotel man will get the same treatment from the druggist.

JAPANESE RAILWAYS BEING ELECTRIFIED

IRRIGATIONISTS PLAN MEETING

as a development congress was held this month in San Diego, fathered by southern California and the southwestern states, to enlist federal support for the Colorado scheme. That project is so large that if the government's efforts are centered on the southwest the Pacific northwest will suffer. The congress will discuss ways of impressing upon Congress the necessity of developing arid lands in the Pacific northwest in the event the soldiers' land settlement bill becomes a law.

Communities are invited to write to the secretary of the State Development Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce relative to sending exhibits, pictorial or physical, of produce raised on reclaimed lands and of irrigated sections.

The heads of the transcontinental railroads serving the Pacific northwest have agreed to have representatives at the congress if they cannot attend themselves, and representatives of several large eastern financial institutions will also have a place on the program. The call for the congress has the signatures of the governors of the five states and also the ten senators from these commonwealths. The executive committee gave this message:

"It is a national necessity that these lands be made productive, to become the homes of our ex-service men and women and made to support a dense population. It will be a second line of defense against all enemies and insure us a place on the Pacific and a proper share in the commerce borne by her waters.

"A hungry nation is not a content and happy one. Ways for increasing food production must be found. The quickest, the surest, the easiest way; the way that has an unblemished record of success is the watering of our arid lands. With a southwestern league of states advancing the Colorado Basin project and a northwestern league presenting the national pride and interest will be deepened in the great empire comprising the states of the Rocky Mountain and Pacific seaboard country, and national thought will be quickened to the strategic need, from considerations of national defense, of an increased population and potentialities of its ten million acres, enlarged production in this region."

CANADA WILL NOT TAX STOCK IMPORTS

He also said that an order in council probably would be passed shortly, providing for the free importation of United States sheep into Canada.

AT THE THEATERS

When Lord Quex (Tom Moore) rests his glance upon Mariel (Gloria Hope) in the new Goldwyn picture, "The Gay Lord Quex," Cupid chalks up a direct hit and leaves his arrow quivering in that young man's heart. Quex is pierced beyond all chance of recovery by the shaft and loses no time in gaining an introduction to the charming girl to whom he immediately declares his love. Much that would be discouraging to the ordinary wooer occurs between this point and Quex's final triumph, but Tom Moore is not an ordinary Romeo, so he bravely faces his obstacles and wins the girl.

In Tom Moore's latest Goldwyn picture, "The Gay Lord Quex," the important part of Sophie Fulgarny is played by Hazel Daly, who in private life is Mrs. Harry Beaumont, the wife of the director of this production. Hazel Daly has appeared in other Tom Moore pictures, but never before did she show such an aptitude for intrigue or such a passion for tangling up romances as in "The Gay Lord Quex." For a while it looks as though she were going to ruin everything, but, guided by her husband's direction, she succeeds in saving Mariel for Lord Quex and in doing so wins an admirer for herself.

As a detective in real life Tom Moore might not be able to ferret out the cause of the well known High Coat of Living, but in his latest Goldwyn release, "The Gay Lord Quex," he does a bit of effective sleuthing that saves the day for him and protects the name of the woman in the case. Having reason to believe that he is being spied upon while in a duchess's apartments, Quex (Tom Moore) discovers the eavesdropper, who proves to be a maid servant, and so involves her in the situation that she is unable to reveal her knowledge without reflecting upon herself. At the Star tonight.

RIVAL FOUND FOR LOCAL ICE CAVE

HEPPNER, Ore., Aug. 19.—While on a Sunday outing trip on Upper Rock creek, County Agent L. A. Hunt discovered a deposit of ice which may rival the famous ice cave of Klamath Falls. In the Mount Adams country at a point where the Heppner monument highway crosses Rock creek is a large spring famed throughout that region for the low temperature of its water.

Mr. Hunt and his party stopped for a drink and while poking around on the rocky mountain side above the spring Mr. Hunt felt a current of extremely cold air. He discovered it came from a big crevice in the rocks. Clearing the loose rock and debris from the crevice to the depth of a couple of feet, Mr. Hunt discovered the ice deposit.
