The Roman Sestertius.
Sestertius is the Latin name for a Roman coin meaning half of the third, that is, two and half, from "sest" meaning half and "tertius" meaning third.

When silver coinage was introduced in Rome in 208 B. C., with the copper as a unit, the silver sestertius was valued at 2 1/2 asses. The standard is retained only one-fourth of its original weight. The sestertius was equivalent to the original libral as; and, as accounts had formerly been made in terms of the libral as, they were now made in terms of the sestertii. After the first Punic war, which ended 241 B. C., the sestertius ceased to be coined. The weight of the as was many times reduced. In 217 B. C. the denarius was made equal to 16 asses and the sestertius to 4 asses. With the reorganization of the coinage system under Augustus (63 B. C. to 14 A. D.) a copper sestertius of 4 asses was coined under the control of the senate. This was about 4 cents in United States money.

A Rainy Day.

A rainy day in Switzerland puts a sudden stop to many diversions. The coachman may drive to the tavern, and then back to the stable; but no farther. The sunburnt guide may sit at the door, and welcome; and the boatman whistle... at his own sweet will—but no foot stairs abroad for that; no traveler moves, if he has time to stay. The rainy day gives him time for reflection. He has leisure now to take recalcitrance of his impressions, and make up his account with the mountains. He remembers, too, that he has friends at home; and writes up the journal, neglected for a week or more, and letters neglected longer; or finishes the rough pencil-sketch begun yesterday in the open air. On the whole, he is not sorry it rains—though disappointed.—Henry W. Longfellow.

Varying Opinions.

Deacon Gildrow says that if a man loves a woman well enough to cheerfully write a check in payment for her new suit, though he knows it means that he will have to make his old overcoat do another winter, it is safe to marry her.

And Mrs. Deacon Gildrow says that if you love a man well enough to think you would like to see the floor of the closet littered up with his old shoes it will be perfectly safe to marry him.
